BONNER TO QUIT, SAYS CONSTITUENCY

Former attorney-general Robert Bonner, now MLA for Cariboo, will not run in the next provincial election, the president of his Social Credit constituency said. (See earlier story on Page 2.)

"It's definite he won't be running again," said Jim Bann in a telephone interview from Quesnel. "We will be looking for a new man to stand in Mr. Bonner's place. I talked to him last night."

Meanwhile, contacted in Quesnel, Mr. Bonner said he plans to make a statement about his political future Sunday.

Trudeau 'Neutral' As Strike Nears

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said today the threatened strike-grounding of Air Canada will be solved, if it is to be solved at all, by direct negotiations between the company and the union involved.

He said in the Commons that the government is taking "a completely neutral position" in the dispute which may result in a strike at 11:59 p.m. EST Sunday.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Mr. Trudeau made a probable strike almost inevitable by saying Thursday that Air Canada had made an extremely generous wage offer which was bigger than the government itself would have proposed.

David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, said Mr. Trudeau had come down on the side of management.

Mr. Stanfield asked twice whether Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey is returning from vacation to take a hand in the negotiations.

NO DIRECT REPLY
Mr. Trudeau declined to reply directly but said the acting minister, Manpower Minister Allan MacEachern, is assisting in any way he can.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Trudeau should get some proper advice before making another intervention as he had Thursday.

Mr. Trudeau asked whether Mr. Stanfield was advising that Air Canada should accept the demand of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers for a 20-per-cent wage increase.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Mackasey should be on the scene.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker asked whether Mr. Trudeau would use the prestige of his office to bring the disputing parties together, in view of the prime minister's statement that the government is strictly neutral. Mr. Trudeau said he hasn't considered doing so.

VICTORIANS CAN STILL FLY

Air travel to and from Vancouver Island will not be entirely cut off if Air Canada machinists go on strike Sunday. (See story on Page 2.)

Mr. Diefenbaker asked also whether the government would introduce legislation preventing strikes that might stifle the economy.

STILL UNDER STUDY

Mr. Trudeau said the government is still studying the recommendations made by air independent inquiry into labor legislation.

Wallace Nesbitt, Conservative transport spokesman, asked whether Canadian Pacific Airlines' franchise will be extended to the Atlantic provinces, now served by Air Canada.

James Richardson, minister without portfolio responsible for aviation, said the Canadian transport commission would approve any reasonable request by other airlines to provide service to the Atlantic region.

Mr. Nesbitt said he was asking about a permanent franchise for CP Air to operate to the Atlantic provinces.

Mr. Richardson said there has been no application to provide such service. The commission had no plans for changes in authorized routes. Mr. Trudeau said in reply to Russell MacEwan (PC—Central Nova) that a cabinet committee has drawn up contingency plans for movement of mail and certain persons.

Manitoba Digs In As Red River Rises

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last-minute flood-fighting preparations were being taken in Manitoba's Red River valley today as high water continued to roll northward from North Dakota.

At the border town of Emerson, 65 miles south of Winnipeg, machinery moved earth fill into position to plug gaps in the dike surrounding the town when necessary.

A flood control spokesman said permanent dikes on the river towns are high enough to contain predicted levels, and it does not appear necessary to raise them.

Outside the town dikes, 400-odd farm homes have taken advantage of a federal-provincial protection program introduced after the last big flood year of 1966. Aid was given to raise homes and buildings beyond the high-water mark and build farmstead dikes.

Sandbags and plastic sheeting have been made available to more than 250 other homes on the flood plain.

The river continued to rise today but remained below flood stage.

At Lumsden, Sask., 17 miles north of Regina, the flood waters of the Qu'Appelle River are expected to remain at a level about two feet above dikes for another four to five days. The waters are contained by sandbags put up by townspeople and other volunteers earlier this week. The Saskatchewan government has asked 90 Armed Forces personnel to remain on patrol in the town until Sunday for maintenance purposes.

CUT A CHANNEL

Emergency Measures Organization crews cut a channel across a highway in the Lumsden Valley to allow faster drainage of the Qu'Appelle into Mountain Lake.

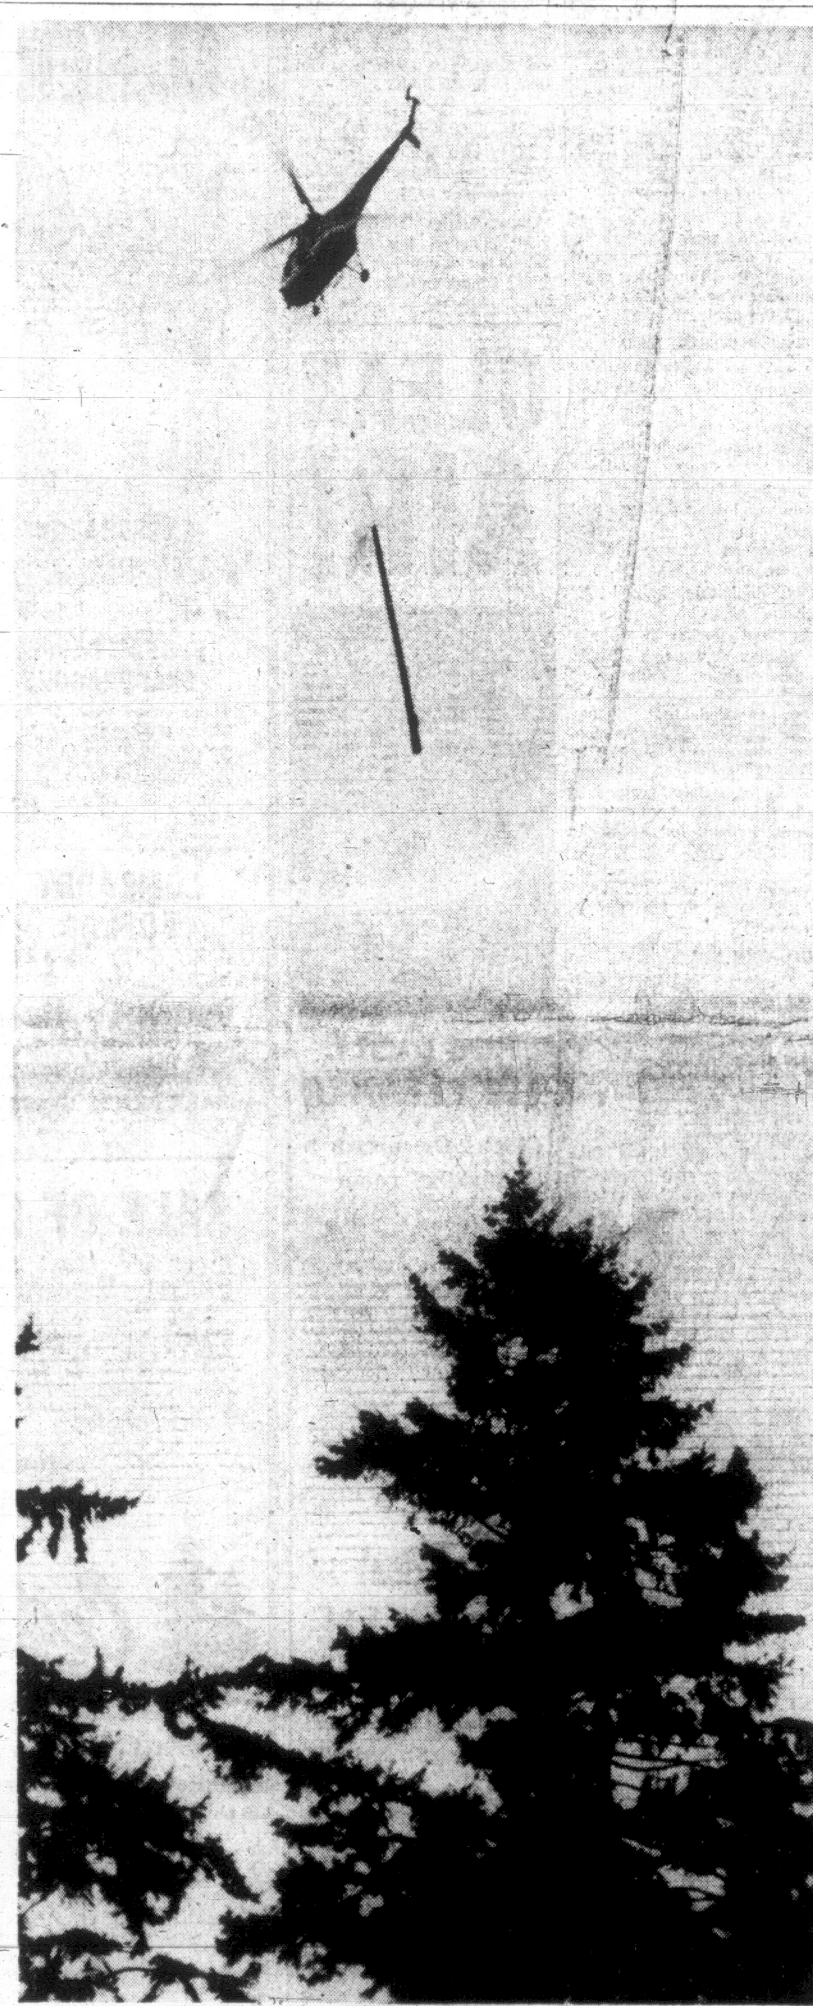

About 100 cottages and 1,000 bathhouses on small lakes 40 miles downstream from Lumsden are threatened as the river is expected to raise the lake levels two to four feet above normal.

As Manitoba awaits the on-rushing crest of the Red River, a more immediate problem is posed by the swollen Assiniboine and Souris Rivers.

Flood control in Winnipeg said 50 Armed Forces personnel were at work through the night under artificial light at St. Francois Xavier, on the Assiniboine 15 miles west of Winnipeg.

The river was within a foot of breaching dikes at a highway bridge in the area and officials said a further rise of six inches would make the position critical.

Nixon Orders Resumption Of N. Korea Spy Flights

UP, UP AND AWAY goes this power pole, en route to the steep rocky side of Mount McDonald at Goldstream Park, 12 miles northwest of Victoria. Pilot Roy Webster of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and his Sikorsky-55 helicopter solved the problem of placing poles in holes blasted for them in precipitous slope. Chopper will also be used to string a 2,200-foot power line up the mountain to the Langford Ranger Station. (Bill Halkett Photo)

'Planes Will Be Protected'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today ordered resumption of United States spy plane flights near North Korea and said: "They will be protected."

Nixon reported the flights had been discontinued after the shooting down of one of the unarmed planes Tuesday by North Korean jet aircraft.

Then he said: "I have today ordered that these flights be resumed. They will be protected. That is not a threat. It is merely a statement of fact."

Nixon told his fifth news conference as president that the North Korean attack on the EC-121 had been "unprovoked, deliberate, without warning."

He reported the plane was flying away from North Korea at the time of attack because its mission had been "aborted," that is it had been ordered cancelled.

FIGHTERS SPOTTED

Presumably the cancellation was ordered because U.S. radar had picked up the take-off of two MiG fighter planes from a North Korean field.

The U.S. plane, Nixon said, had never gone closer than 40 miles to the Korean coast and at the time of the attack was 90 miles from North Korea over the international sea.

The reason for the reconnaissance flights, Nixon said, is threats and hostile actions against South Korea by North Korea.

He noted the U.S. has 56,000 troops in South Korea and said threats against South Korea are also threats against those troops. It is the responsibility of commanders to do everything necessary to protect them, he added.

RULES OUT RETALIATION

Nixon pictured the reconnaissance flights as part of the defence strategy for those forces. He said "We have had a policy of reconnaissance flights for 20 years" and reported there had been 190 such flights this year in the North Korean area.

The shooting down of the plane Tuesday apparently cost 31 American lives. Nixon apparently ruled out earlier this week any military retaliation—such as an air strike against the North Korean base from which the fighter planes took off.

He decided instead on a protest directly to North Korea.

Nixon said the plane incident is different from the Pueblo affair because there was some question for a time where the U.S. spy ship was at the time of its capture by North Korean gunboats.

"There was no uncertainty whatever where this plane was," he said. "There is no question of what they claim is their air space."

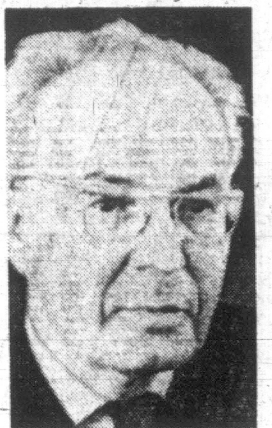

Returning to his pledge to provide future flights with protection, Nixon said: "When planes of the United States or ships of the U.S. are in international air space, they are not fair game, they will not be fair game in the future. That was the basis for this interim decision."

NOT WITHDRAWING

On Southeast Asia, Nixon said he is "somewhat optimistic, although we still have some hard ground to cover," to bring peace to the area.

He also said he is not considering a unilateral withdrawal of United States forces from Vietnam.

TROOPS PROTECT CZECH CENTRES

PRAGUE (AP)—Police reinforcements and soldiers guarded strategic points in Czechoslovakia today, but there were no reports of disturbances protesting the replacement of Alexander Dubcek as Communist party chief.

The 190-member central committee at a crisis meeting Thursday named Gustav Husak, the four pro-Moscow head of the Slovak party, to replace Dubcek.

Trucksloads of police reinforcements and army armored cars were outside university buildings, at the National Assembly, near student dormitories and at factories.

No plans for demonstrations were reported so far. Moscow is reported to have warned that Soviet occupation troops would step in if local forces could not keep order.

CTK, the Czechoslovak news agency, said the central committee had finished its plenary session and further details of the leadership reshuffle would be announced later.

Soviet Army Chief Now No. 2 in Power

By ANATOLE SHUB

MOSCOW (WP) — With the deposition of Alexander Dubcek in Czechoslovakia, the marshals of the Soviet army have manifested the greatest political power they have ever enjoyed in Communist Russia.

Marshal Andrei Grechko, the 66-year-old defence minister, brought about in Prague what the Soviet Communist Party politburo secretariat and a host of party and government envoys high and low were unable to do at conferences in Dresden, Moscow, Cierna, Bratislava, Prague, Kiev and elsewhere over the past year.

Grechko's ultimatum to Czechoslovak President Lud-

vik Svoboda last week forced the rehabilitation of discredited Czechoslovak Soviet agents, the ouster of Dubcek and Liberal hero Josef Smrkovsky, and the admission that last spring's Czechoslovak renaissance was a "counter-revolution." Grechko thus completed the political job which a half-million Warsaw Pact soldiers commanded by his deputy, Marshal Ivan Yakubovsky, began with the invasion last Aug. 20.

UNACCOMPANIED

Grechko came to Czechoslovakia unaccompanied by any leader or official of the Soviet Communist Party. He moved on to East Berlin to treat as an equal with the Communist Party chiefs of occupied East Germany and Poland, Walter Ulbricht and Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Even before this week's decisive "second round" in Prague, one of the highest leaders of the Yugoslav Communist Party in Belgrade was telling visitors: "Do not overestimate the influence of such politicians as Andrei Kirilenko, Pyotr Shelest or even Alexei Kosygin. The political summit in the Soviet Union today is composed of Brezhnev, Grechko and Yakubovsky—and nobody else matters."

The Soviet army has been on almost continuous manoeuvres in eastern Europe for nearly a year, while the Soviet military budget has increased some 25 per cent since 1967. Russia, according to London's Institute of Strategic Studies, has pulled even with the U.S. in the missile race, and new Soviet rocket tests have been announced for the Pacific next month.

FEWER MEETINGS

Meanwhile, the party central committee—theoretically the country's leading force—has been meeting less and less frequently, with virtually none of its debates ever made public. Since the invasion of Czechoslovakia, the central committee has met only once—briefly, late last October, ostensibly to hear a report on agriculture. (Preceding the meeting, there had been widespread rumors of resignations in the politburo.)

Another central committee meeting may take place next week, to ratify the "Prague triumph," but there has been no confirmation so far.

Garden, House Chemicals Show Cancer Link

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A number of the world's most widely used agricultural, garden, household and industrial chemicals are about to be named as causes of cancer in mice when given in big doses.

This will happen this spring as the result of a $2.6-million federal study of common pesticides, herbicides and animal food additives. Dr. Kenneth M. Endicott, director of the U.S. National Cancer Institute, said in a recent interview.

This will not mean these chemicals do or do not cause cancer in man. But the announcement is certain to cause major concern, and new pressure for more control of some of the thousands of chemicals that pervade man's environment.

The study will point a strong finger of suspicion at several chemicals and trigger far more intense investigation of their effects.

Also, Endicott said, "I'm satisfied there will be enough anxiety" to cause "some new regulatory activity."

"We probably are going to have to revise our national standards for toxicity testing to include more long-term tests," he predicted. "We are even confronted by the possibility that we may have to hold some compounds back for years while we test."

Under suspicion—and still undergoing evaluation after delay of this report for more than a month—are 51 out of 130 common pesticides, herbicides and other chemicals tested in more than 20,000 mice.

... SPY FLIGHTS

Nixon's discussion of South Vietnam was marked at the outset by one ironic slip: He twice referred to that country as South Korea.

PEACE HOPES IMPROVED

"The chances for peace in Southeast Asia have significantly improved since this administration came into office."

"I'm not trying to raise false hopes that peace is just around the corner, this summer or fall." But a number of developments had convinced him the outlook was improving.

He said one such factor has been improvement of the South Vietnamese government's capabilities, and another has been the attitude of the Saigon government toward the makeup of a post-war government.

In addition, Nixon said, there has been an improvement in the political stability of South Vietnam.

On an issue of major domestic importance, Nixon said his administration intends that the 10-per-cent income tax surcharge will be "reduced and removed as soon as we are able to do so."

He gave no indication how soon that would be.

Back on the subject of Vietnam, Nixon said he does not intend to order any reduction in U.S. activity on the battlefield. He said U.S. casualties have decreased because of a reduction in offensive action by Communist troops.

U.S. FORCES TO STAY

He said there is no prospect that U.S. forces can be withdrawn until the Saigon government takes over a greater share of the combat burden, or the Paris peace talks produce progress warranting such a step.

On another major point, Nixon said he has no plans to take to the country his case for deployment of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system. Nixon said he believes his news conference — this was his fifth as president — cover that.

Nixon said his decision for deployment of a limited missile defence system was not based on politics, but what he considered best for Americans.

Bonner to Announce Retirement at Weekend

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Robert Bonner is expected to announce this weekend he will drop out of B.C. politics to end a 17-year career as chief lieutenant in Premier Bennett's administration.

His departure would be one more strong indication a general election will be called this year.

The 49-year-old executive vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and Social Credit MLA for Cariboo said in a telephone interview Thursday night that he will reveal his political plans this weekend.

He is visiting his riding and has a meeting lined up Sunday with Cariboo Social Credit constituency association president Jim Bann.

HAD A CHOICE

Both Bonner and Bann made statements adding weight to MB chairman J. V. Cline's strong hints to the Times that Bonner must choose between his business and political posts because their interests conflict.

Bonner, commenting from Quesnel, agreed with Cline's feeling that "you can't sit on both sides of the fence."

He added that if he had intended to remain "indefinitely" in public life, he would not have joined the timber giant as an executive last May when he quit the cabinet.

PROJECTS COMPLETED

He said he continued sitting as Cariboo MLA in the last session out of a sense of obligation to the riding but he now had completed his planned projects there or had "got them off to a good start."

Bann told reporters that Bonner can have the Social Credit nomination in Cariboo for the next election if he wants it.

"But I don't think he will take it," he added.

"With an election in the air, we want an answer—a definite one way or another. Yes or no."

Bann recalled that Bonner last January, before the session, told the constituency association he would not seek election anywhere else if he decided to stay in politics but he warned it to begin looking for candidate possibilities who live in the riding.

(Bonner still lives in Victoria but commutes to his job in Vancouver.)

SHOP AROUND

"It's true he told us to shop around for another candidate but we haven't pushed this since January," Bann said.

"Now time has run out. If Mr. Bonner says no, then we need time to find a new man and break him in."

Premier Bennett told The Times earlier this week that rumors Bonner was about to leave politics were "without an essence of truth" and denied that they met for talks in Vancouver last weekend.

Bonner was under tremendous pressure to sever all political connections when he joined MB last spring but he refused to give up his seat, the speculation went, because a byelection victory for the NDP was considered likely.

REDUCED MARGIN

NDP candidate Rev. Hartley Dent came within sight of victory in the previously safe Social seat in the 1966 election which saw William Speare returned with a severely reduced margin.

But Speare resigned the seat within weeks to create a byelection opening for Bonner who had lost his Vancouver-Point Grey seat to Liberal Garde Gardom in the general election.

Dent came close to knocking Bonner out of Cariboo despite his prestige as a cabinet minister and an unprecedented Social effort which saw Premier Bennett personally campaigning hard in the byelection.

With Bonner joining MB barely 18 months later, it was felt the riding would react bitterly against any succeeding Social candidate in a second byelection forced by resignation of its government MLA.

Observers, as a result, expect Bonner to retain the seat out of a sense of loyalty to Bennett until he could bow out gracefully just before a general election.

This would soften but not prevent the blow to Premier Bennett, who has relied so heavily on the man he persuaded to leave an executive position in the B.C. Progressive Conservative Party to join his first cabinet as a non-elected attorney-general Aug. 1, 1962.

Later the same year, Bonner squeaked into the legislature in another byelection opening created for him by resignation of a Social MLA.

He remained as attorney-general and the government's second-in-command until last May but over the 16 years in cabinet he also handled the education, industrial development, trade and commerce and commercial transport portfolios for varying periods of years.

MULATTO GETS HEART

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Prof. Christiaan Barnard performed a heart transplant operation Thursday night on a 38-year-old mulatto woman, a racial first in South Africa.

Officials at Groote Schuur Hospital said Dorothy Fisher was in satisfactory condition after the operation. The donor was not identified.

Barnard, who pioneered heart graft surgery, has used the hearts of a number of non-white donors on white patients.

BENNETT WILL DRIVE VOTERS TO NDP CAMP

Liberal Leader Pat McGee Thursday said the chief danger of Social Credit to British Columbia is that it will pave the road to power for the New Democratic Party.

He told the Windermere Chamber of Commerce that an early election is needed, because the longer Premier Bennett remains in office, the worse becomes the danger that he will drive voters to the N.D.P.

"All such study can tell us," said Endicott, "is which compounds need future multiple studies in many species of animals, by different routes of administration at different dose levels. And these studies will take some years to complete"—though there will be more and more information along the line to guide government regulators.

The whole story goes back several years.

In November, 1963, the cancer institute assigned a study contract to Bionetics Research Laboratories of Falls Church, Va., and Bethesda, Md., to investigate a long list of compounds for: (1) possible cancer effects; (2) Production of a normal babies by exposed mothers; (3) Effects on heredity. (Bionetics was purchased last year by Liltion Industries.)

CANCER EFFECTS

For cancer effects—the first results—Bionetics tested chemicals for 18 months in groups of 144 animals each. Some "control" animals were given harmless chemicals, some known cancer-causing chemicals for comparison.

Working with cancer institute scientists, Bionetics researchers found that 51 compounds caused "a statistically significant excess" of tumors, some cancerous, some not. Also, some blood smears gave indications of leukemia.

Air Strike Won't End Flights Here

A strike by Air Canada machinists, set for Sunday, will end the crown corporation's flights in Victoria as well as other parts of the country.

However, getting to and from Vancouver Island should not prove much of a problem because of existing alternative air flights as well as the ferries.

Cross-Canada flights will be sharply reduced with Air Canada out, but it would be possible to fly via the United States.

The Air Canada situation has led to the cancellation of the annual meeting of the Canadian Committee in Oceanography which was going to be held in the Empress Hotel next week.

A spokesman for CP Air, the new name for Canadian Pacific Airlines, said the company has placed an embargo on all live animals and perishable goods for air freight on its flights as a safety measure in anticipation of a strike.

"We've got all we can handle and we already have a backlog of air express," said an official. CP Air is not accepting any more passenger reservations for flights from April 20 to 28 because they are filled. Standby tickets only are being sold for flights after that and until May 4.

"You can buy your ticket and hope to get a seat if someone doesn't show," said the official.

Log Drive Ban Urged

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union plans to ask the Commons forestry and fisheries committee for legislation under which Ottawa could stop the Nass River log drive. The halt would permit a study of whether log drives hurt the river's salmon runs.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A southwesterly flow of cool, moist air will continue over British Columbia for at least the next 48 hours. An active disturbance embedded in this circulation has already spread rain and gales over the north coast. Rain from this system will reach the south coast this afternoon. Occasional rain will mark its passage across the interior to night and Saturday morning. Coastal areas will be showery tomorrow in its wake.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Now come the days when you must watch out for sunburn. In almost any part of the continent after mid-April, your skin can get cooked more easily than it could two months ago.

On days when the air is clear and clean and the sun is at a high elevation, your uncovered skin can become red in a few minutes, especially if it is skin that has been covered up all winter — your chest and shoulders, for example. If you go out in the sun in warm weather for the first time this season you can get a severe burn in half an hour.

Watch out particularly for a reflection of radiation from the sun from below — on the sand surface of the beach, for example. Clouds can add to the radiation that strikes your body, so don't think, under a hazy sky, that your white shoulders or your untanned nose won't burn.

20% Cut In NATO Force?

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The phased reduction of Canadian forces in Europe, announced by Prime Minister Trudeau April 3, will get under way early next year with a 20-per-cent cut in Canada's NATO-assigned air division, informed observers are predicting.

The same 20-per-cent cut was to have been implemented this year but was deferred following the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Present strength of the air division is 4,200 men and six squadrons of aircraft. The number of men will fall to 3,800 later this year when the division's three bases in Germany are reduced to two.

The number of squadrons will remain the same, at least to the end of the year when Canada's present commitments expire.

There is a growing impression here that the air division will bear the brunt of the force-cutting program in the next few years.

The 6,000-man mechanized brigade group, made up of three infantry battalions, one armored regiment and one artillery regiment, which Canada maintains in Germany, is considered already at a viable minimum strength. In an emergency it would require 3,000 additional men to reach full strength and provide necessary reinforcements.

The air division, organized into squadrons, presumably could be whittled down further than the army brigade and still retain a semblance of operational viability.

FOUR STRIKE ATTACK

Two of the division's squadrons are reconnaissance formations and four are strike-attack formations with both nuclear and conventional capabilities.

Mr. Trudeau raised some questions about the roles of both the brigade and the air division when he delivered a speech in Calgary last Saturday night. But his strongest doubts appeared to be about the air division.

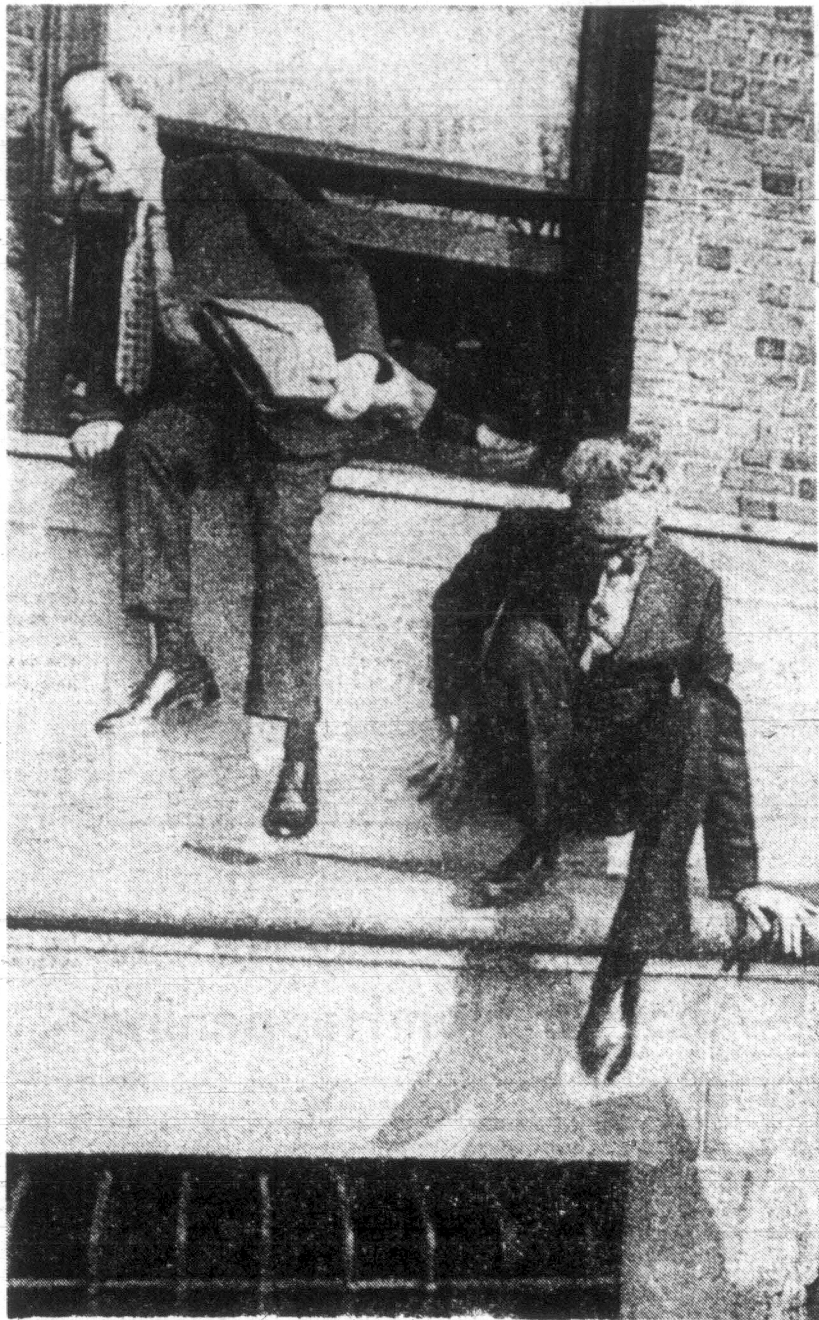

"What is the scenario for using nuclear arms in Europe, in our bombers, in our CF-104s?" he said. "Do we want to participate in this way in an alliance without knowing in which way these so-called tactical weapons will be used?"

"And has the scenario ever been explained to you, to the Canadian people, as to under what conditions our aircraft would fly nuclear weapons and unleash them on Europe?"

Officials emphasize that the extent and timing of the Canadian pullout from Europe still is a wide-open issue. Defence Minister Leo Cadieux has indicated that the final decision may not be taken until December.

The government has asked the defence and external affairs departments to study the question and provide it with a set of options, which in turn the cabinet would study before mapping a course of action.

Thus the fiercest battles between government factions supporting and opposing strong Canadian ties to NATO have perhaps still to be fought.

Angry Student Crowd Seizes College Hall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

About 200 militants seized a Columbia University building in New York for a seven-hour sit-in marked by a violent clash with security guards as several university campuses in the United States continued to stir with student unrest.

The Columbia group voluntarily left Philosophy Hall late Thursday after being served with a restraining order. The students emerged chanting: "This is just the start. We will win."

Two administration officials accompanied by security guards served the court order. They were met by students who unleashed a barrage of bottles and discharged fire extinguishers.

The officials escaped by throwing a chair through a window and jumping to safety. Three students were injured and one of the officials was cut on the wrist.

BREAK FURNITURE

Many of the students then broke up furniture in the building, taking table legs to use as clubs if police were called. But acting President Andrew Cordier said no police would be summoned.

The demonstration, led by the Students for a Democratic Society, was to demand "open enrollment" at Columbia for all New York high school students who want to attend the school.

In Ithaca, N.Y., a burning cross was dropped on the steps of a Negro woman's co-operative house at Cornell University. Eleven Negro women live in the house set up after demands by black women students who said they felt ill at ease in regular dorms.

At Harvard, the faculty of arts and sciences voted overwhelmingly to ask the school's two governing boards to reduce the Reserve Officer Training Corps to an extracurricular activity without "special privileges or facilities."

STUDENTS ON STRIKE

There are only 322 ROTC students at the 15,000-student university but abolition of the military program has been a prime goal of the current student strike at the Cambridge, Mass., school.

Another general meeting of the student body was called for today to consider whether to continue the strike which began last Friday. An informal poll of nearly 2,000 students Thursday night showed 75 per cent favored a return to class.

Troop Pullouts Dominate Talks

By MURREY MARDER

WASHINGTON (WP)—Verbal skirmishing over the withdrawal of troops from Viet Nam Thursday dominated the 13th session of the Paris peace talks.

The U.S. and South Vietnam, partially mending the gap in their positions on the timing of a troop pullout, pressed in vain for the Communist side to agree to the principle of "mutual withdrawal of all external forces from South Vietnam."

To no one's surprise, North Vietnam and its partner, the National Liberation Front, again refused to concede there is any parallel between U.S. troops and troops fighting "with the Vietnamese people's war of resistance." This is the euphemism used to blanket in the northern troops fighting in the south.

But while no ground was given or taken in Thursday's exchanges, it showed continuing Hanoi-NLF interest in cautiously questioning what the allies have to offer—with conceding that any bargain can be struck.

Pattern Is Familiar

The North Vietnam-NLF pattern of argument on troop withdrawals is identical to the theme Hanoi used in pressing for an "unconditional" halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. U.S. troop withdrawal must be "unconditional"; no "ransom" can be paid "for the end of U.S. aggression," and there cannot be any "reciprocity."

What the U.S. is probing for is at least a sign of acknowledgment that tacit withdrawal of troops can take place.

Chief U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge told newsmen at the end of a 4½-hour exchange: "It is very clear that the other side does not wish to discuss any mutual withdrawal of troops."

In a later, more qualified reply at a press briefing, delegation spokesman Harold Kaplan added the hedge, "not yet."

The NLF's spokesman, Tran Hoai Nam, disclosed Thursday that deputy delegation chief Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, who left Paris earlier this week reportedly en-route to Hanoi via Moscow, "is now carrying out a mission to Moscow as well as to a certain number of other capitals."

He did not disclose the purpose of her mission or the other capitals to be visited, but it is assumed that Peking may be among them. The chief-war allies of Hanoi and the NLF are the Soviet Union and China.

Mrs. Binh's mission has reinforced the widespread belief on this conference scene that North Vietnam and the NLF both are in the process of re-examining their strategy and that during this interval this conference will largely mark time.

The Communist side's strategists here still appear to be groping for ways to counter the propaganda impact of the Saigon regime's declared readiness to hold secret talks, and the widespread speculation in Washington and Saigon of impending partial withdrawals of U.S. forces from the war—irrespective of any accord in Paris.

Curtain in Prague

THE RELENTLESS, TRAGIC stifling of freedom continues in Czechoslovakia, as one by one the political and social rights regained a year ago are taken away. It was last spring that the Czechoslovakians, under the liberal leadership of Party Secretary Dubcek, reasserted their rights to criticism, to freedom of the press and of speech, to assembly, to better communication with other countries—to many of the normal human freedoms that had been denied them under years of heavy Soviet domination.

There were warnings from Moscow, whose leaders saw an important block in their western ideological wall crumbling. But, "voluntary" retrenchment could not be imposed on the Czechoslovak people who were tasting the sweet fruits of liberty. The older generation remembered again that Czechs had been one of the freest peoples in Europe; a younger generation found exciting the freedoms which youth normally demands. Russia acted swiftly, and Red Army tanks and troops quickly occupied the country. Press freedom died almost overnight, always the first casualty when dictatorship takes charge. And despite protests, demonstrations and the cries of a people helpless before a superior military force, the memorable period ended.

But even this was not enough for Moscow. The government leaders under whom those freedoms had sprouted were still on the scene, and the pincers of Communist discipline slowly closed on them. This week thousands of persons were rounded up for questioning and hundreds of them remain in police hands. The official campaign was against "anti-social elements and criminals"—the usual cover-up for the arrest of all who resist the Moscow line. Alexander Dubcek, the national hero who had sparked and led the brief return to freedom and survived from day to day while shaky negotiations and manoeuvres continued between Prague and Moscow, was ousted from his powerful position as head of the Communist Party. He is replaced by a Slovak, Gustav Husak, who is ready and willing to restore Moscow policy and bring the nation into line.

Loath to risk a catastrophic war with Russia, the West has been helpless to do more than wish the Czechoslovakians well. Now the curtain is clamped down again, with no rising in prospect. The bloom of freedom in its old home is crushed, perhaps until the day when a similar movement can arise in Russia itself. For the dream lives, even in those for whom freedom has long seemed no more than a theoretical concept. History's march is a stumbling one, but it has an eventual goal. Meanwhile Czechoslovakia remains an inspiration — and a warning.

'Independent and Impartial'

THE SECHTEL INDIAN BAND and the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia have asked the Minister of Indian Affairs and the Minister of Justice for an independent and impartial investigation of charges of police brutality, and the request carries a double implication that should be noted by the people of this province. Primarily, the two Indian organizations want their complaints looked into by someone in whom they have confidence; at the same time, their appeal shows complete dissatisfaction with the manner in which the provincial government handled an earlier inquiry.

The band has called the investigation by the provincial attorney-general's department "biased, incomplete and unjust". Such charges indicate the unsatisfactory state of mind of the Indians; equally they cast on the reputation of the RCMP further doubts which should not be permitted to lie unproven. The present situation is not acceptable to either party.

The incident shows once again that when disputes of this nature arise, official investigations must be conducted by persons who enjoy the trust of both parties and of the public. Government employees are placed in an invidious position if given such assignments. It is fair to neither party if there remains a suspicion — whether justified or not — of bias.

The federal authorities, who are responsible for Indian affairs, could resolve the matter by appointing an acceptable investigator. In the present stage of encouraging Indians to participate more fully in the white society, it is important that they should enjoy complete confidence that justice has been done. On the other hand, it is manifestly unfair for the RCMP to have to carry a burden of charges which should quickly be either substantiated or withdrawn beyond any public doubt.

'To Every Action ...'

THE CONCERN OF MR. RICHARD E. LESTER, chairman of the board of governors at Simon Fraser University, over "community backlash" is understandable. But when he says that the universities face their greatest peril from the community, not from the students, that the university is a "place of challenge" and must be defended against community "backlash to the freedom of the university," he seems to overlook the position of the taxpayer in relation to the institutions of higher learning.

Simon Fraser has experienced its troubles. Many of them originated with students there. And the troubles spilled over into the community if for no other reason than that members of the community pick up a large share of the bills for the university. Mr. Lester would scarcely tell the community that its obligation was merely to pay up and shut up, leaving the university to be run in isolation from the community. There must be liberty in universities, but isolation is impossible when they are largely financed by the public which has an interest in finding out what it gets for its money.

If the public is dissatisfied, it can be expected to react accordingly — asserting, in principle, the physical law that to every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. The perils of the backlash are obvious. Their causes cannot be ignored.

Recoil from the Strike Gun

WHEN CRITICS CONSIDER the adverse effects of teachers' strikes, emphasis usually centres on the unhappy example such incidents provide for pupils. New York City furnished a recent example. A more direct disadvantage seems to be plaguing the Florida Education Association now. It called the first state-wide teacher strike in the United States a year ago.

Since that time it has lost about half its former 55,000 members and is forced to operate on a severely curtailed budget. The executive secretary and chief strategist during the strike has been dismissed and many teachers are still waiting around hoping to get their jobs back.

Conventionally a strike is considered a blunt and often brutal weapon. In the case of the Florida Education Association it appears to have also been a boomerang.

NATO Meeting—Another Non-Happening

AFTER eight years of observing the twice-annual NATO ministerial meetings, sometimes from near and sometimes from afar, one is struck by their regular unmemorability. It is necessary to turn to the record to recall what, if any, news they produced.

The official chronology published by the NATO information service in Brussels is indicative. For example, in May of 1962 the ministers reviewed "the circumstances in which the alliance might be compelled to have recourse to nuclear weapons." In December of that year they were said to have closely examined the Cuban affair and to have reaffirmed their position on Berlin and disarmament.

Some dozen equally exciting meetings later, last November's session was summarized as follows:

"The ministers denounce Soviet actions in Czechoslovakia as contrary to the basic principles of the United Nations charter and give a warning to the U.S.S.R. (The warning was non-specific, which the summary does not mention.) They decide to improve the state of NATO defence forces, confirm they will continue to study the possibilities of detente, and reaffirm the indispensable necessity of the Atlantic alliance."

Little has changed since then — except that Canada, contrary to the declaration, decided on a move opposite to improving the state of its NATO defence forces, and reaffirmed a belief in something less than the indispensability of the alliance. The major developments within NATO remain unilateral and outside the council, in keeping with the tradition set by President de Gaulle when he virtually pulled France out of NATO by press conference on Sept. 9, 1968.

Semi-Annual Question

The recent ministerial meeting here was again largely a non-happening. These occasions chiefly provide a twice yearly chance to seek the latest instalment of the running question: is NATO weakening or will it stumble on for a while yet?

The answer this time was again that it will indeed stumble on.

Canada's ambivalent attitude was not made a point of contention, and the subject was kept out of the final conference communiqué. But the attitude within NATO is well-known: Canada's proposed troop reduction in Germany is viewed dimly by all but France, which approves it for the wrong reasons. The hope is that Canada really means what it says in promising that the actual reductions will be decided in discussions and not unilaterally, as the principle was decided. Secretary-General Manlio Brosio's stress on this at his pre-session press conference assures us that we will be closely watched on this point.

The main concern here was over the possibility of talks with the Soviet Union. Interest was aroused by last month's proposal from the Budapest meeting of the Warsaw Pact for a European security conference of both East and West European states. This reshuffle of an old Soviet idea dropped the usual demand for prior Western recognition of both NATO and the Warsaw Pact. It also appeared not to bar the United States from such a conference while including the Soviet Union.

Kremlin Blast

But suspicions were aroused anew when, the day before the NATO meeting here, the Kremlin chose to issue an official statement blasting NATO as an aggressive military machine retarding peaceful solutions to world problems, forcing the existence of the Warsaw Pact, organizing espionage and something called "ideological subversion," inspiring coups in catering to all those Nazis in West Germany, and generally threatening the peace.

Even if it was, as is believed here, intended to soothe jittery Warsaw Pact regimes, the Kremlin performance was not encouraging. The NATO meeting wound up taking a cautious attitude, i.e., deciding to do nothing.

CHARADE EXPOSED

The ABM Fight Goes Purely Political

THE apparent decision of the Nixon Administration to make the fight over the Safeguard ABM purely a political one has given some of the game away.

All the talk about the danger of the SS-9 "supermissile" with which the Russians were "going for a first-strike capability," all the carefully leaked material about Soviet antisubmarine devices has all come down to an operation out of the Republican National Committee to rally support behind the President and disparage the opponents as either Kennedyites or somehow subversive. It is not a very pleasant performance with which to wind up the first 100 days.

Carefully orchestrated background briefings by White House insiders Bryce Harlow and Herbert Klein last week showed the direction of the battle. Careful attention will be paid, apparently, not to the scientific arguments against the ABM, nor to the obvious conflict between the Pentagon and the Russian intentions, nor to the arguments that there are higher-spending priorities for the $6-$7 billion initial cost.

Instead, research will centre on the origins of the opposition — who are they, what are their political backgrounds, how were they recruited, what are their real credentials? And finally, pressure will be put on all Republicans to remind them that a successful campaign against the ABM will only help Sen. Edward Kennedy, who seems to have replaced Mao Tse-tung in the GOP demonology.

Arguments Remain

But the arguments about Safeguard remain. And they have been advanced, over the last several months, as much by such Republicans as Charles Percy and John Sherman Cooper — the acknowledged leader from the beginning of the fight — as by the Senate Democrats, of whom Ted Kennedy is not even primus inter pares.

The major arguments these men are now marshalling are quite simple. First, Safeguard will not increase the credibility of our strategic deterrent; second, it provides no meaningful protection

Oak Bay Recreation Centre

It would appear that the Oak Bay Council is willing to sacrifice the many small family businesses to gain revenue from the sale of property they own on the southerly boundary of the municipality, to a shopping complex, so that a recreation centre can be built on the remainder of the property.

A similar scheme was defeated five years ago, simply because taxes were doubling every 10 years; and various people were going to make a great deal of money.

The reeve explained that the recreation centre would cost $1.6 million, which of course would be at least $2 million as costs escalate today. He also explained that sale of the riding academy and Henderson Road property would go a long way towards the cost of the centre, and as taxes would continue to increase 10 per cent a year, the extra revenue from apartment sites would broaden the tax base. This has not stopped the yearly increase. In other words the extra revenue from apartments has not kept pace with taxes.

I do not think the municipality should take such a big bite, but confine the program to a swimming pool for the kids. — Over Taxed.

NDP Capitalism

The growing disillusionment with the natural drabness of the present type of society, an aging premier losing vitality, the sham glamor of two leadership contests in two opposition parties, are all factors which will most likely lead to the defeat of the Social Credit government at the next provincial election with the NDP, consequently forming the next provincial government.

Upon being elected, new NDP leader on April 12, 1969, Tom Berger stated his objective "... to form the first socialist government in B.C. ..."

The claim bears reviewing. The question NDPers cannot answer is: If the objective of NDP and their predecessor CCF members is Socialism, why then were the parties ever founded? Why did they not simply join the already existing Socialist Party of Canada, which at one time was the third largest party in Canada? The fact is that they didn't (and don't) want socialism. Socialism to them was an obscure word somewhere in the distant blue. What they wanted was "something now" within the framework of capitalism. Their appeal was to alleviate, but not remove, the more glaring miseries of the working class. In other words they were a party dedicated to the social reforming of capitalism but not its removal.

Now as the NDP get their feet nearer to the trough of power they drop more and more of their reformist zeal and take on the chameleon nature of other openly capitalist parties.

Once elected we can expect capitalism to run them as it runs every political party that attempts to administer it.

It is for these reasons that Socialists have not and do not support the NDP. — Larry Tickner, General Secretary Socialist Party of Canada.

By F. MANKIEWICZ and T. BRADEN

against either a Chinese attack or an accidental one from the Soviet Union; third, it will not increase significantly our store of knowledge about anti-missile defence.

First of all, without a radical breakthrough in Soviet submarine detection technique, our deterrent is already as credible as it needs to be, with several hundred missiles roaming under seas. In any event, in order to attack our Minuteman silos, which Safeguard is designed to defend, the Russians would have to increase radically the number of warheads on their MIRV missiles and increase equally the number, size and accuracy of the missiles.

Thus a Russian first strike at a Minuteman "farm" would be extremely heavy in a small area; the "blackout" and other effects making the ABM unworkable would be enormous. In short, we would be making it a bit more expensive for them, but not much more than that.

Chinese Threat Absurd

As to the limited Chinese threat, it is absurd to think they would send one of their few missiles at one of ours; if they want only to do damage, there are many other things they can do, against all of which ABM is useless.

If an accidental attack is feared, Safeguard will not help us if the attack is aimed at a city. It will foil an accidental shot at a Minuteman silo only if it is triggered by a computer — which the Pentagon says it will not do — and in any event, since the cost of the ABM is several thousand times greater than the cost of losing a Minuteman silo, we will have developed an elephant capable of stomping a mouse.

Finally, it is absurd to say — as defence department spokesmen are now saying — that by deploying the limited Safeguard system we will give ourselves a chance to see how it works, to decide if we want to go further. Unlike a bomber, which can be test flown, an anti-ballistic missile just sits there once it is deployed, and you hope it will work when you need it.

One of the leaders in the Senate anti-ABM fight now thinks the votes are there to block any appropriation. So while it is getting harder to defend the proposal on the merits, the political arguments are becoming easier.

Looking Back

From the Times, April 18, 1969.

The steamer Tees, which arrived from the west coast last night, brought a cargo of 300 barrels of whale oil and 600 sacks of fertilizer from the whaling station at Sechart. While the vessel was there the Orion brought in two Sulphur Bottoms which had just been caught, bringing the total number for the season at the station alone to 21. If the St. Lawrence is as fortunate, the number must be at least 40.

Militarism: Disturbing New U.S. Trend

By GENERAL DAVID M. SHOUP
The Atlantic

America has become a militaristic and aggressive nation. Our massive and swift invasion of the Dominican Republic in 1965, concurrent with the rapid buildup of U.S. military power in Vietnam, constituted an impressive demonstration of America's readiness to execute military contingency plans and to seek military solutions to problems of political disorder and potential Communist threats in the areas of our interest.

This "military task force" type of diplomacy is in the tradition of our more primitive, pre-Second World War "gunboat diplomacy," in which we landed small forces of Marines to protect American lives and property from the perils of native bandits and revolutionaries.

In those days the U.S. Navy and its Marine landing forces were our chief means, short of war, for showing the flag, exercising American power, and protecting U.S. interests abroad.

The U.S. Army was not then used so freely because it was rarely ready for expeditionary service without some degree of mobilization, and its use overseas normally required a declaration of emergency or war.

Now, however, we have numerous contingency plans involving large joint Air Force-Army-Navy-Marine task forces to defend U.S. interests and to safeguard our allies wherever and whenever we suspect Communist aggression.

We maintain more than 1,517,000 Americans in uniform overseas in 119 countries. We have eight treaties to help defend 48 nations if they ask us to—or if we choose to intervene in their affairs.

We have an immense and expensive military establishment, fueled by a gigantic defense industry, and millions of proud, patriotic and frequently belligerent and militaristic citizens.

How did this militaristic culture evolve? How did this militarism steer us into the tragic military and political morass of Vietnam?

Prior to the Second World War, American attitudes were typically isolationist, pacifist, and generally anti-military.

The regular peacetime military establishment enjoyed small prestige and limited influence upon national affairs.

The public knew little about the armed forces, and only a few thousand men were attracted to military service and careers. In 1940 there were but 428,000 officers and enlisted men in the Army and Navy.

The scale of the war, and the world's power relationships which resulted, created the American military giant.

Today the active armed forces contain over 3.4 million men and women, with an additional 1.6 million ready reserves and National Guardsmen.

America's vastly expanded world role after the Second World War hinged upon military power. The voice and views of the professional military people became increasingly prominent. During the post-war period, distinguished military leaders from the war years filled many top positions in government. Generals Marshall, Eisenhower, MacArthur, Taylor, Ridgeway, LeMay, and others were not only popular heroes but respected opinion-makers.

It was a time of international readjustment; military minds offered the benefits of firm views and problem-solving experience to the management of the nation's affairs.

Military procedures—including the general staff system, briefings, estimates of the situation, and the organizational and operational techniques of the highly schooled, confident military professionals—spread throughout American culture.

The Second World War was a long war. Millions of young American men had matured, been educated, and gained rank and stature during their years in uniform. In spite of themselves, many returned to civilian life as indoctrinated, combat-experienced military professionals. They were veterans, and for better or worse would never be the same again.

America will never be the same either. We are now a nation of veterans.

To the 14.9 million veterans of the Second World War, Korea added another 5.7 million five years later, and ever since, the large peacetime military establishment has been training and releasing draftees, enlistees, and short-term reservists by the hundreds of thousands each year.

In 1968 the total living veterans of U.S. military service numbered over 23 million, or about 20 per cent of the adult population. Today most middle-aged men, most business, government, civic, and professional leaders, have served some time in uniform.

Whether they liked it or not, their military training and experience have affected them, for the creeds and attitudes of the armed forces are powerful medicine, and can become habit-forming.

A Second World War hero, General Shoup rose to become Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps for four years until his retirement in Dec. 1963. This is a condensation of an article he wrote in collaboration with another retired Marine officer, Colonel James A. Donovan.

The military codes include all the virtues and beliefs used to motivate men of high principle: patriotism, duty and service to country, honor among fellowmen, courage in the face of danger, loyalty to organization and leaders, self-sacrifice for comrades, leadership, discipline, and physical fitness.

For many veterans the military's efforts to train and indoctrinate them may well be the most impressive and influential experience they have ever had—especially so for the young and less educated.

As they get older, many veterans seem to romanticize and exaggerate their own military experience and loyalties.

The policies, attitudes, and positions of the powerful veterans' organizations such as the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and AMVETS, totaling over 4 million men, frequently reflect this pugnacious and chauvinistic tendency.

Their memberships generally favor military solutions to world problems in the pattern of their own earlier experience, and often assert that their military service and sacrifice should be repeated by the younger generations.

Closely related to the attitudes and influence of America's millions of veterans is the vast and powerful complex of the defense industries, which have been described in detail many times in the eight years since General Eisenhower first warned of the military-industrial power complex in his farewell address as President.

The relationship between the defense industry and the military establishment is closer than many citizens realize. Together they form a powerful public opinion lobby. The several military service associations provide both a forum and a meeting ground for the military and its industries.

The associations also provide each of the armed services with a means of fostering their respective roles, objectives, and propaganda.

The American people have also become more and more accustomed to militarism, to uniforms, to the cult of the gun, and to the violence of combat.

While generations have been brought up on war news and wartime propaganda; the few years of peace since 1939 have seen a steady stream of war novels, war movies, comic strips, and television programs with war or military settings.

To many Americans, military training, expeditionary service, and warfare are merely extensions of the entertainment and games of childhood.

Even the weaponry and hardware they use at war are similar to the highly realistic toys of their youth.

Soldiering looses appeal for some of the relatively few who experience the blood, terror, and filth of battle; for many, however, including far too many senior professional officers, war and combat are an exciting adventure, a competitive game, and an escape from the dull routines of peacetime.

It is this influential nucleus of aggressive, ambitious professional military leaders who are the root of America's evolving militarism.

There are over 400,000 commissioned officers on active duty in the four armed services. Of these, well over half are junior ranking reserve officers on temporary active duty.

Of the 150,000 or so regular career officers, only a portion are senior ranking colonels, generals, and admirals, but it is they who constitute the elite core of the military establishment.

'The professional military is one of the best organized and most influential of the various segments of the American scene'

It is these few thousand top-ranking professionals who command and manage the armed forces and plan and formulate military policy and opinion.

How is it, then, that in spite of civilian controls and the national desire for peace, this small group of men exert so much martial influence upon the government and life of the American people?

The military will disclaim any excess of power or influence on their part. They will point to their small numbers, low pay, and subordination to civilian masters as proof of their modest status and innocence.

Nevertheless, the professional military, as a group, is probably one of the best organized and most influential of the various segments of the American scene.

Three wars and six major contingencies since 1940 have forced the American people to become abnormally aware of the armed forces and their leaders.

In turn the military services have produced an unending supply of distinguished, capable, articulate, and effective leaders.

The sheer skill, energy, and dedication of America's military officers make them dominant in almost every government or civic organization they may inhabit, from the federal Cabinet to the local PTA.

In general the military are better organized, they work harder, they think straighter, and they keep their eyes on the objective, which is to be instantly ready to solve the problem through military action while ensuring that their respective service gets its proper mission, role, and recognition in the operation.

In an emergency the military usually have a ready plan; if not, their numerous doctrinal manuals provide firm guidelines for action.

Politicians, civilian appointees, and diplomats do not normally have the same confidence about how to react to threats and violence as do the military.

The motivations behind these endeavors are difficult for civilians to understand. For example, military professionals cannot measure the success of their individual efforts in terms of personal financial gain.

The armed forces are not profit-making organizations, and the rewards for excellence in the military profession are acquired in less tangible forms.

Thus it is that promotion and the responsibilities of higher command, with the related fringe benefits of quarters, servants, privileges, and prestige, motivate most career officers.

Promotions and choice job opportunities are attained by constantly performing well, conforming to the expected patterns, and pleasing the senior officers.

Promotions and awards also frequently result from heroic and distinguished performance in combat, and it takes a war to become a military hero.

Civilians can scarcely understand or even believe that many ambitious military professionals truly yearn for wars and the opportunities for glory and distinction afforded only in combat.

A career of peacetime duty is a dull and frustrating prospect for the normal regular officer to contemplate.

The professional military leaders of the U.S. Armed Forces have some additional motivations which influence their readiness to involve their country in military ventures.

Unlike some of the civilian policy-makers, the military has not been obsessed with the threat of Communism per se. Most military people know very little about Communism either as a doctrine or as a form of government.

But they have been given

'Warfare becomes an extension of war games and field tests'

reason enough to presume that it is bad and represents the force of evil.

When they can identify "Communist aggression," however, the matter then becomes of direct concern to the armed forces.

Aggressors are the enemy in the war games, the "bad guys," the "Reds." Defeating aggression is a gigantic combat-area competition rather than a crusade to save the world from Communism. In the military view, all "Communist aggression" is certain to be interpreted as a threat to the United States.

Our militaristic culture was born of the necessities of Second World War, nurtured by the Korean War, and became an accepted aspect of American life during the years of cold war emergencies and real or imagined threats from the Communist bloc.

Both the philosophy and the institutions of militarism grew during these years because of the momentum of their own dynamism, the vigor of their ideas, their large size and scope, and because of the dedicated concentration of the emergent military leaders upon their doctrinal objectives.

They dynamism of the defense establishment and its culture is also inspired and stimulated by vast amounts of money, by the new creations of military research and material development, and by the concepts of the Defense Department-supported "think factories."

These latter are extravagantly funded civilian organizations of scientists, analysts, and retired military strategists who feed new militaristic philosophies into the Defense Department to help broaden the views of the single service doctrines, to create fresh policies and new requirements for ever larger, more expensive defense forces.

Somewhat like a religion, the basic appeals of anti-Communism, national defense, and patriotism provide the foundation for a powerful creed upon which the defense establishment can build, grow, and justify its cost.

More so than many large bureaucratic organizations, the defense establishment now devotes a large share of its efforts to self-perpetuation, justifying its organizations, to preaching its doctrines, and to self-maintenance and management.

Warfare becomes an extension of war games and field tests. War justifies the existence of the establishment, provides experience for the military novice and challenges for the senior officer.

Wars and emergencies put the military and their leaders on the front pages and give status and prestige to the professionals.

Wars add to the military traditions, the self-nourishment of heroic deeds, and provide a new crop of military leaders who become the rededicated disciples of the code of service and military action.

Being recognized public figures in a nation always seeking folk heroes, the military leaders have been largely exempt from the criticism experienced by the more plebeian politician.

Flag officers are considered "experts," and their view are often accepted by press and Congress as the gospel.

In turn, the distinguished military leader feels obliged not only to perpetuate loyally the doctrine of his service but to comply with the stereotyped military characteristics by being tough, aggressive, and firm in his resistance to Communist aggression and his belief in the military solutions to world problems.

Standing closely behind these leaders, encouraging and prompting them, are the rich and powerful defense industries.

'America will never be the same... we are now a nation of veterans'

Standing in front, adorned with service caps, ribbons, and lapel emblems, is a nation of veterans—patriotic, belligerent, romantic, and well intentioned, finding a certain sublimation and excitement in their country's latest military venture.

Militarism in America is in full bloom and promises a future of vigorous self-pollination—unless the blight of Vietnam reveals that militarism is more a poisonous weed than a glorious blossom.

'Participation' May Kill Theatre

By KENNETH TYNAN

Thirty-odd years ago, in a monograph called "The Total Theatre," Walter Gropius argued that the purpose of the modern playhouse was to "abolish the separation between the 'fictitious world' of the stage and the 'real world' of the audience... to draw the spectator into the drama... to coerce him, into participation into the play."

That's a fair statement of the 'conventional wisdom' on the subject; and very healthy it sounds, involvement being as universally commended as voyeurism is deplored.

But "participation" was plainly intended as a metaphor. What is happening today in the performing arts is that people are taking it literally. And this means that a vital boundary is being erased.

For evidence, look at America. If you go to the off-Broadway production of "Dionysus '69," you are encouraged to quit your seat and make love to members of the cast, individually or in groups. Moreover, there's a place in Manhattan known as Cerebrum and described as "an electronic studio of participation."

According to Newsweek, they give you a filmy white sheet to wear, beneath which you can strip if you wish. You then recline on the carpet, listening to records, looking at oscillating lights, and toying with mirrors, balloons and hand-creams. There is no show: You are the show, dummy!

And wouldn't you guess that the argument for participation has lately been pushed to its final and absolute extreme by Marshall McLuhan? Here is one of his prophecies for our species:

"I expect to see the coming decades transform the planet into an art form; the new man, linked in a cosmic harmony that transcends time and space, will sensuously caress and mold and pattern every facet of the terrestrial artifact as if it were a work of art, and man himself will become an organic art form."

In other words: Whatever is art. Events in Britain haven't yet reached the stage at which McLuhan's prediction might seem plausible.

Happenings, for example, are still in their infancy—or the infancy of those who produce them.

Yet only a few months ago, at one of London's little theaters, a naked actor approached my seat, extended his hand and invited me to join him in a tango. When I declined, he pouted at the rest of the audience, thereby branding me a spoliator.

But it was I whose sport was being spoiled. I believe in art as a spectator sport, as an activity that offers the results of perception to those who may be able to perceive them.

But this belief is constantly being eroded by the new notion that there is no difference between the artist and his audience.

I enjoy, above all, art that doesn't need me, self-sufficient art, which goes on existing even when I am not present; the kind of art that continues to be, like the sycamore tree, when there's no one near it.

But unless we are awfully careful—unless we insist that performers and onlookers (actives and passives) have separate roles to play—we may very well find that something irreversible has taken place: namely, the death of the spectator. The corollary of which is nothing less than the death of autonomous art.

Age-Old Rites Install Bishop

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The great silvery chimes of Christ Church Cathedral rang out over the city Thursday night proclaiming that John Ogle Anderson, 57, a native of Winnipeg, had been installed as Bishop of British Columbia.

The colorful service of installation established that Bishop Anderson had been installed as head of the Anglican diocese of British Columbia, comprising Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands, but not the mainland.

As Bishop Anderson said (shortly before his installation): "We shall have to do something about this very confusing situation."

ANCIENT TRADITION

Meantime, Bishop Anderson accepted a tradition that reaches back to the time when William the Conqueror was proclaimed King of England at Westminster Abbey, London, in 1066.

Bishop Anderson became Bishop of British Columbia to an accompaniment of soaring choir, blaring trumpets, thundering organ and the singing of a congregation of more than 1,500 men, women and children from churches all over Greater Victoria.

"There was something a bit medieval about it," a 17-year-old male student said, "and it made me a bit uncomfortable. I felt it was out of touch with our day and age."

A 19-year-old girl student at Uvic took the opposite view: "I was thrilled to be back teeth," she said. "This is the kind of color that is missing in our world today. Everything is so damn prosaic."

'IT'S TERRIFIC'

"Here we have a man of God being proclaimed Bishop of British Columbia... it's terrific. And all that wonderful singing, and the color and the pageantry. I only wish we had more of this kind of thing."

Said an elderly man in the congregation:

"If we don't have inspiration, we're finished. A society that is founded only on material values will perish. All history shows it. The Romans went down and out when they decided the only thing that mattered was a high standard of living."

"So it will be with Britain and Canada and the United States if we're not careful."

The majestic service opened with three loud bangs on the cathedral doors by the new bishop, wielding a short mallet.

"Who goes there?" "I, John Ogle Anderson, Bishop Elect of British Columbia."

DEEP ROOTS

Such ceremonies sound ludicrous in these sophisticated times, but they have deep roots in history and they proclaim the fact that no one under our British system of justice, can walk into your home, your church or your chapel without a warrant.

"This privilege was invaded when the Nazis stormed through Europe," Bishop Anderson said. "We must guard it very jealously in the years ahead."

He believes tradition is important if our Christian civilization is to survive. "History has shown that our traditional rights can very easily be set aside when a wilful, ruthless man decides these rights are a nuisance to him."

The service of installation opened with a procession led by Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, Dean Whitlow, the cross bearer and Anglican clergymen from many parts of British Columbia.

After the new bishop had been admitted to the cathedral, the choir sang:

"I was glad when they said unto me

"We will go into the house of the Lord."

Dean Whitlow then mounted to the altar and, turning to the bishop incumbent, said:

"Right Reverend Father in God we welcome you most warmly in the name of the Lord."

The bishop replied: "Thank you, Grace be with you and peace, from God, Our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ."

"WHO GOES THERE?" Bishop John Ogle Anderson is asked as he gives three loud bangs to Christ Church Cathedral's doors to start the ancient, colorful rites for his installation Thursday night as the head of the Anglican Church on Vancouver Island.

Celibacy to Remain, U.S. Bishops Declare

By WILLIAM R. MACKAYE.

HOUSTON (WP) — In an unexpected move, the nation's Roman Catholic bishops Thursday declared there is no chance their church will ease its rule that Latin-rite priests must be unmarried.

Consultations with bishops elsewhere and "with those ultimately responsible for decisions" affecting the priesthood "make it clear and certain that the heritage of priestly celibacy will be in no way abandoned or compromised," the bishops said.

The new statement, reinforcing sentiments set out two years ago, appears almost certain to limit the scope of a major study on the nature and problems of the priesthood that the bishops recently set in motion.

The 12 to 18-month study, much of which is being managed by the National Opinion Research Centre in Chicago, is to begin Sept. 15.

The bishops sought to avoid the implication they were torpedoing their own research by noting that Thursday's resolution was adopted "without prejudice" to the work and purpose of the survey. But the resolution itself clearly cancels earlier assurances that the problem of celibacy was one topic to be reviewed in the study project.

In other action, as the National Conference of Catholic Bishops concluded a three-day meeting here, the bishops approved:

- A resolution condemning efforts in a number of states either to liberalize or repeal anti-abortion laws.
- A strongly worded telegram to the Senate and House urging the extension of the National Labor Relations Act to cover farm workers.

Before the Magistrate

The Crown and the defence closed their cases Thursday in the trial of two young men charged with breaking out and theft from the former Broad Street youth centre last October.

Edward G. Thomas, 21, of 2314 Bellamy, and Frederick B. Sexton, of 2706 Claude, were remanded to Thursday when Magistrate William Ostler will deliver his judgment.

Main Crown witness was Frank Richards, 22, who earlier pleaded guilty to the same charge and was sentenced to a year in prison.

He testified he met the two accused in the centre Sunday, Oct. 13, and they planned to wait in the building until closing time so they could break into the pop machine. Richards said he and "one or both" of the others hid in a broom closet until everyone left.

He said Sexton kept watch from the window while Thomas aided him in breaking open the machine from which was taken a lot of change. They divided the money later, he said.

A hammer and broom handle were used to open the machine.

Eric C. Olsen, 1495 Admirals, was fined $350 for impaired driving.

Ann Kenzie, 66, of 2826 Cedar Hill, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to shoplifting about $30 worth of merchandise from The Bay.

She had $123 in her purse when caught.

Another Thaw In Fund Freeze For Six Schools

The provincial government has decided to allow school boards to build six more activity rooms in the province, it was announced Thursday.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said the government had resumed a policy of permitting activity rooms April 1 and already had approved the calling of tenders for a second group.

The new batch includes tender calls for adding activity rooms to the Brentwood and Keating elementary schools in Saanich.

The others given the education department's blessing are located in Chilliwack, Delta, How Sound and Powell River districts.

STRIKE ACTION By Machinists' Union May Force Shut Down of Air Canada Flight Operations

Air Canada announces with regret that, following almost 4 months of negotiations, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers representing more than 6000 employees, including such classifications as mechanic, storeman and station attendant have established a strike deadline of April 20th, 23:59 hours E.S.T. If the strike should materialize, the airline would be forced to suspend all flight operations.

UNION DEMANDS

The IAMAW are demanding a wage increase of 20% plus fringe benefits amounting to a further 10% for a one year contract. Under the previous contract the top hourly rate for mechanics was $3.97.

AIR CANADA OFFER

The company has offered a wage increase of 23% plus improved benefits spread over three years.

CONTINUED PUBLIC SERVICE

Air Canada ticket offices on a selected basis will remain open and make every effort to assist airline customers if a strike should occur. In addition, reservation services will be available to accept future travel planning requirements. Air Canada suppliers will be given individual advice on the handling of outstanding orders.

City Planning May Require Theologians

Theologians may end up doubling as city planners, says Maurice Egan, director of Vancouver's social planning and community development program.

Guest speaker at the 31st annual meeting of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria in the Red Lion Motor Inn Thursday, the social worker said:

"We must know what type of an animal man is before we can start building the kind of city he wants to live in. Up to now, city planners have usually been engineers, architects or economists. Perhaps it is time to sue some new breed theologians."

Egan warned that the current population explosion might result "in the world becoming one contiguous city."

He also stressed the involvement of residents in city planning is important.

"People must, and will have the final say in how their cities will be developed."

PATTERN SAME
Egan said the problem of cities may have grown, but have not changed much in pattern.

"Before Pompeii was buried under Vesuvius' lava 2,000 years ago, it was a city where respectable people were moving out to live in the suburbs. Businessmen tried to lure residents to the downtown area by gladiators and amphitheatres. Husbands were complaining about their wives' extravagances, and adults were sure that youth was going to the dogs."

Retiring president B. A. Tobin outlined some of the projects undertaken by the council during the past year.

These included the establishment of a volunteer bureau on a permanent basis, and the formation of a housing agency. The latter provided contacts between persons needing low-cost housing and people who could supply such housing.

YOUTH DETAIL
As a direct result of a community inquiry sponsored by the council, the Victoria police have established a youth detail. Two detached workers, co-operating with the YM-YWCA and the Boys' Club and financed by the city, are giving leadership and guidance to several youth groups, also as a result of council action.

Treasurer William Hooson reported receipts of $25,333, disbursements amounting to $24,853, and a bank balance of $498.

Members voted to change the name of the group to Community Council.

The new president is Harold Moist, Esquimalt's recreation director. Vice-president is Saanich Alderman Edith Gunning and treasurer, J. D. Milne.

The Sara Spencer Foundation, which maintains Spencerhouse, also held its annual meeting at the luncheon.

President Jack Barraclough announced receipts of $18,313. A total of $17,636 had been spent on maintenance.

Edward Popham was elected a director for a five-year term.

Meet Seeks More Zip In Clothes

Ever notice that the pockets and the linings in men's suits are worn out before the rest of the garment?

Ever notice the elastic in socks and shorts loses its snugness too soon? And how about those zippers that won't zip, so wearable clothing gets tossed out before its time?

These are problems the Consumers Association of Canada is coping with today in its annual meeting in Vancouver. About six Victoria delegates will take part.

Provincial president Mrs. W. E. Rolls is a Victorian. She said business before the meeting calls for requests to manufacturers to improve pockets, linings, elastic and zippers.

The association will direct the request through the department of consumer and corporate affairs at Ottawa, to give them more muscle.

Other resolutions:
● That fish canneries be required to give more adequate information on labels of cans regarding contents and that the department of consumer affairs set a grading requirement.

● That stamp vending machines which are not operated by the federal post office be outlawed. (Federal machines dispense 25 cents worth of stamps for a quarter but some privately operated machines dispense stamps of lesser total value.)

● That all poisonous drugs and cleaning agents be packaged with safety caps and covers which cannot be removed by small children.

Saanich Art Show Promises Variety

Practically every art and craft imaginable will be on view when the Saanich Peninsula Art Centre holds its 16th annual exhibition in Sanscha Hall, Sidney.

The two-day show will be held May 10 and 11 from noon to 8 p.m. Titled "Art and the Community," it will be officially opened May 10 at 2:30 p.m. by Mrs. George R. Pearkes.

Guest artist will be Carole Sabiston, the well-known creator of stitchery and fabric collage.

Many craftsmen will be there to demonstrate their work.

They will include violin maker Sigvald Holbakke, members of the Victoria Flower Arranging Guild, Nita Donaldson, who will be making gold and silver jewelry; Myrtle Swaffield, freehand potter; Bill Cayzer, sculpture; Kate Bloomfield, oil painting; and Jean MacLennan, wood marquillage.

CEREMONIAL MASKS
George Clutesi, author of the book "Potlatch," to be released by Gray's Publishing Co. in May, is hoped to attend during the afternoon. He is expected to bring ceremonial masks, some more than 200 years old.

Exhibition convener Mrs. Floyd L. Fowler, Sidney, says Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Montgomery will demonstrate copper embossing and enamelling; Irene G. Warren, block printing on fabric; Floyd Fowler, wood carving; Don Faustman, ceramic jewelry; Iris Godwin, leathercraft; V. J. Field, wood inlay.

JUDGES ENTRIES
Charles Brookman of University School will judge entries submitted by pupils of 18 schools in Saanich School District No. 63. Contest chairman is Mrs. Charles F. Swannell.

Also on display will be the work of Claremont High School students.

Dave Anderson will be judging displays sent in by various art clubs. Anderson is founder of the centre which now has almost 200 members.

A watercolor, "Cowichan River Mist," and a stoneware bowl, donated by Mrs. Alex J. Steel and Mrs. D. Foster, will be raffled at the event.

LADIES EYE TIMES HANDICAP

It's a ladies' world, around one of the barns at Sandown Park before Saturday's running of annual Times Handicap. Expected to be one of the favorites to collect Times purse, Gli-Nih Kwa strikes confident pose with her groom, Elaine Dunn. Three-year-old filly is owned by Miss Jackie Patmore of Victoria. Only male influence is provided by trainer Don Carley. Gli-Nih-Kwa will be running against top three-year-olds at Sidney track in Saturday's feature race. Entries are on Page 37.

No Reason for Jitters Admits No-Hit Hurler

By The Associated Press

Bill Stoneman, who wrote baseball history for the expansion Montreal Expos Thursday night when he pitched a no-hitter, had good reason not to be nervous—the situation was unfamiliar.

"I never even came close to a no-hitter before," said the Montreal hurler after baffling Philadelphia Phillies 7-0.

It was the first no-hitter in an expansion team's debut year.

The main reason for Stoneman's absence of jitters was simple: He was consigned to an apparent life of oblivion in the bullpen until rescued in the expansion draft by the Expos, the first Canadian team in the majors.

Thursday's brilliant effort was his first complete game in the majors, and only the second in his pro career. The first was with a minor league team two years ago.

DIDN'T FEEL PRESSURE

That, said the 25-year-old right-hander, was probably why he didn't "think there was any pressure."

"The nerves weren't there. I wasn't as nervous as I should have been. I had good stuff and I was getting the ball where I wanted it."

Before the Expos drafted him from Chicago Cubs, Stoneman generally was a reliever.

But Gene Mauch, Montreal manager, said he was impressed with Stoneman's appearances against Philadelphia, a team he managed for nine years until he was fired last summer, and decided to give him a shot at being a starter.

He lost his first two tries this season, but was untouchable against the Phils Thursday night.

Stoneman, who said he threw a fastball and curves with a few change-ups, walked five and struck out eight for the Expos.

THREE WERE CLOSE

The closest Philadelphia came to a hit was in the first when Deron Johnson smashed a liner down third that was foul only by inches, when centre fielder Don Bosch made a shoestring catch on a sinking liner by Don Money in the second, and when Rusty Staub made a long running catch of a line drive to right field by Tony Taylor in the third.

Stoneman didn't have to face the Phils' top slugger, Richie Allen, who sat out the game with a bruised right shoulder.

CARDS BLANKED

In other National League games, Chicago Cubs boosted their record to 9-1 by blanking St. Louis Cardinals for the second straight night 3-0. Pittsburgh Pirates stopped New York Mets 4-0. Atlanta Braves ripped Houston Astros 9-3, and San Francisco Giants edged San Diego Padres 5-4.

St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst, in an effort to revitalize the poor hitting of his defending NL champs, shook up his lineup by benching three of last year's stars—Lou Brock, Julian Javier and Tim Lincecum.

But, it didn't help. Chicago's Bill Hands and Phil Regan teamed to stop the Cards on four hits, handing them their fifth home loss in five games.

Jim Bunning struck out nine and permitted just three hits in a strong six-inning showing against the Mets.

... PLANS STRATEGY

Golf Needle Sharpened

LONDON (UPI)—A fiery Scotsman isn't afraid of the best American professional golfers.

All he needs do, he insists, is prove to the Ryder Cup team he will select is that "the dozen Americans we face are just 12 other guys—ordinary human mortals and not magicians. Perhaps I have proved myself that they can be beaten and I want to get this over to our lads."

That is the mission 44-year-old Eric Brown will deliver to the British Ryder Cup team which will oppose the U.S. at Royal Birkdale Sept. 18-20.

Brown, who was undefeated in singles matches in four Ryder Cup tests, declared upon his appointment as non-playing captain this week, that "we have got to give the Americans the needle on the first tee. The Americans are great when they are up, but not that great when they are on the receiving end."

Sam Snead will be the American captain, and of the venerable American pro, Brown said he had "nothing but admiration for Snead" but added "I think we can match wits very well."

Phil Loves Cold Germs; Leads Assault on Habs

Cheevers Blanks Canadiens As Bruins Bomb Worsley

BOSTON (CP)—Phil Esposito had a cold, but his stick was hot.

Gerry Cheevers was hot, but his glove was cool. Cheevers barred the Boston net to Montreal Canadiens and Esposito figured in every goal as the Bruins toppled the visitors 5-0 Thursday night.

The victory left Montreal with a 2-1 edge in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final. The fourth game is here Sunday at 2 p.m. EST and the fifth in Montreal Tuesday.

Esposito led the charge with two goals and three assists, while line-mates Ken Hodge and Ron Murphy added one goal each, with Ed Westfall picking up the other.

Hodge assisted on two goals and Murphy on one to give the line 10 points for the night.

Esposito, who posted a record 126 points on 49 goals and 77 assists during the regular National Hockey League season, believes his most productive nights occur when he has the sniffles.

He had them Thursday night and he said after the game: "I'm going to inject myself with cold germs before every game from now on."

For Cheevers, it was his third shutout in six playoff games this year.

For veteran Montreal goalie Gump Worsley, the defeat was a heartbreaker, snapping his string of consecutive playoff victories at 17.

The defeat also stopped Montreal one game short of another record. Had they won, the Canadiens would have broken their own record of 11 consecutive playoff victories set in 1959 and 1960.

Sinden's Shuffling Helped Bruins

The capacity crowd of 14,659 saw Boston take a 1-0 lead into the second period and stretch it to 2-0 after 40 minutes.

The first period took 50 minutes to play, mainly because of the constant jockeying of lines by the rival coaches.

DODGE RALPH'S LINE

The juggling by the Bruins kept the Esposito line away from the line of Ralph Backstrom, Claude Provost and John Ferguson, which had handcuffed it effectively in the first two games.

Boston coach Harry Sinden said the line shuffling had worked to Boston's advantage.

Cheevers said his hardest shots were quick glove grabs of shots by Backstrom, Jacques Lemaire and Dick Duff. They came early in the game when a Montreal goal could have changed the complexion of the play.

"At least we're making a series of it now and its something to prove it against Montreal," Cheevers said.

Esposito indicated he was in top form early in the game. After 3:37 of play he picked up Bobby Orr's rebound and whipped the puck into the net.

It took Boston until 16:35 of the second period to extend the margin, and again it was Esposito who made the play. This time he relayed a goal-mouth pass to Orr who passed it to Westfall and he slashed the puck behind Worsley from the lip of the crease as the goalie scrambled to block Orr.

SCORES SECOND GOAL

Montreal's John Ferguson was serving a minor for tripping John Bucyk at 3:37 of the third when Esposito got his second goal of the night.

On this one Esposito beat Worsley from 20 feet out and from an acute angle to the right.

Boston broke the game wide open at 10:07 as Esposito and Hodge set up Murphy. Sixteen seconds later Esposito combined with defenceman Dallas Smith to give Hodge his goal and end the scoring.

Leftwinger Eddie Shack sat out the game, his place on the

Kings Finally Score But Blues Get More

ST. LOUIS (CP)—It took Los Angeles Kings 102 minutes and 12 seconds to prove goaltender Jacques Plante is human after all. But they still trail 2-0 in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series with St. Louis Blues.

The Kings, held scoreless by the 40-year-old goalie in the opening game, scored their first goal of the series at 2:12 of the third period Thursday night to end Plante's bid for a record 14 playoff shutouts.

Gary Sabourin's second goal of the night at 14:31 of the last period killed a comeback by the Kings propelled the Blues to a 3-2 victory before 15,776 hysterical fans. The third and fourth games of the series will be played Saturday and Sunday in Los Angeles.

Plante could have been a hero for the second time in three days if he didn't have a flair for theatrics that used to give coach To Blake fits when the flamboyant goalie was with Montreal Canadiens.

He drew an assist on Red Berenson's first-period goal and was playing brilliantly until he decided to retrieve a loose puck in the corner early in the final period.

Plante was trapped behind his net when Los Angeles defenceman Dave Amadio fired a shot from the right-wing boards. It caromed off Noel Picard's stick into the empty cage and Plante lost his opportunity to break the record of 13 Stanley Cup shutouts he shares with Turk Broda, formerly of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

It was a stupid play, Plante said. "You'd think that after 14 years in this league I'd know better."

Amadio's goal cooled the Blues and at 8:28 Bryan Campbell gave the Kings a 2-2 tie that lasted six minutes and three seconds.

Blacker the Fish - Better the Day for Fishing

OUTDOOR REPORT

Anglers Have Guessing Role

By STEWART LANG

Anglers planning to toss or troll lures this weekend might be playing a guessing game.

Few salmon fishermen have been able to locate places that have produced consistent catches in the past week and trout fishing can change quickly with weather conditions.

Saanich Inlet remains a good choice for the persistent ones with huge quantities of herring in the Goldstream end and Tod Inlet.

Both spring salmon and blues are showing near Goldstream Island and Misery Bay. One 27½ pounder was caught last Sunday between Hall's wharves and the Island by Art Hall.

Don Bissett boated a spring weighing 27.08 pounds in Tod Inlet Wednesday. Other good locations are directly in front of the rockslide on the Bamerton-cutthroats near the creek mouths when the water recedes from nearby fields.

Westwood Lake near Nanaimo was reported to be alive with jumping trout but few were biting.

Great Central and some of the smaller lakes remain locked in ice but some good steelhead returns have been noted from China Creek. Kelts seem the rule rather than the exception in Ash and Stamp rivers.

Oyster, Puntledge, Gold and Salmon rivers are still fair.

Trout fishermen have been successful around the mouth of the Elk River, bringing home catches up to 20 inches in length.

Trout fishing is still improving with Shawinigan and Quamichan good. Somenos Lake may be expected to become good for cutthroats near the creek mouths when the water recedes from nearby fields.

Fritz Follows Easier Route

Herb Fritz might have been feeling less weary than his rival when he tackled Calgary's Ray Tull in one of today's semi-final matches in the 39th annual Empress tournament at Victoria Golf Club.

The 1966 champion from Cloverdale, B.C., had few worries and was even-par Thursday when eliminating Ken Morgan of Seattle, 3 and 2.

Other semi-finalists followed a more rugged route with one match going to the 18th and the other two extending to extra holes.

Larry Hansman of Vancouver had the hardest time, going to the 20th before ousting Jack Beeson of Seattle. Former winner Tull finally downed Vancouver's George McKay on the 19th.

In an all-Portland match, Al Edwards earned a 1-up win decision over Jim Snider, also a former winner.

Edwards and Hansman met in today's other semi-final match.

MEDALLIST IN FINAL

Medallist Mrs. William King won a berth in today's finals of the women's division by downing Mrs. S. A. Leahigh of Portland, 6 and 5.

Her opponent for the title is Mrs. G. Leveque of Calgary, who required an extra hole to defeat Mrs. P. Zuelke of Portland.

Gray of Portland and Mrs. M. V. Safford won the Evergreen medal competition Thursday.

Gray fired a net 68 to finish one stroke ahead of George Kelly of Calgary and 1968 champion Jim Barry of Victoria.

Mrs. Safford carded a 79, two strokes in front of Portland's Bernice Bronaugh.

Relegation Playoff Ends Season

Victoria and District Soccer League secretary Art Shaw has announced suspension of play with the exception of the promotion-relegation series between Red Lion Inn of the first division and second-division champion Cosmopolitan Royals.

Cold weather that delayed the schedule and the fact that city parks will be turned over to softball after the weekend were cited as reasons for ending league play without holding playoffs or finishing the second division schedule.

Red Lion has a chance to end the best-of-three series Sunday at 2 p.m. in Heywood Avenue Park. Third game, if necessary, will take place the following Sunday at Topaz Park.

Dodgers Deal Dean

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers traded shortstop Tommy Dean and right-handed pitcher Leon Everitt to San Diego Padres today for right-hander Al McBean.

Stone Shares Azalea Lead

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Joe Campbell, who is cutting down on his tournament golf, and Bob Stone, who is having a flight at it at the age of 38, shared the first round lead in the $35,000 Azalea open golf tournament Thursday with six-under-par 66s.

They were only one stroke ahead of nine 67 shooters, with nine more tied at 68.

Among the players one stroke back was Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg. Victoria's Bill Wakeham had a one-under-par 71.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Correct calculations on lanes clicked off, winning total of 880 for computer operator Pat Kirby in Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Pat collected women's fivepin award in 26th week of annual 27-week competition as she rolled games of 364, 245 and 271 in Wednesday Mixed League at Mayfair Lanes.

MacDonald to Battle Hunter in Main Bout

Ken MacDonald of Vancouver Firefighters Boxing Club, scheduled to participate on an amateur card in Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School Saturday, has been named to the nine-member provincial team.

MacDonald's foe in Saturday's feature bout will be Langley puncher Ian Hunter, who lost a split decision to MacDonald in a battle for the provincial 139-pound title.

Members of the B.C. squad will take part in the Western Canada championships at Calgary on May 3. Winners advance to the May 31 national championships in Toronto.

The B.C. team will be coached by Ellio Ius of North Vancouver, who handled the Canadian team in the 1967 Pan-American Games.

Others named were Neil Austin of Langley; Joe Cooke of North Vancouver; Derek Austin of Langley; Alex Angelomatis, North Vancouver; Don Young of North Vancouver; Pat O'Reilly

Medal Golf Test At Gorge Course

Lotz Had Great Start; Five Under After Four

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP)—Dick Lotz, who tamed tough La Costa with a fantastic start, held a two-stroke lead going into today's second round of golf's Tournament of Champions. But there was a group of five charging at his heels.

Lotz, five under par on the first four holes Thursday, ended with a 67.

Gary Player, the British Open champion, was among a group of five challenging at 69.

Also in the group are Arnold Palmer, 49-year-old PGA king Julius Boros, Tom Weiskopf and Dave Stockton.

Defending champion Don January, Masters champ George Archer and Billy Casper, one of the pre-tourney favorites, all had 71s. U.S. Open champ Lee Trevino went to a 74 and Gene Littler, the season's leading money winner, had a 75.

Boros holed a 30-foot chip shot for an eagle that spiced his round. Palmer played the front nine in three-under, then scrambled. Player had three birdies. Weiskopf reeled off seven birds and Stockton steered in birdie putts of 25, 20, 20 and 15 feet.

But the bright, sunny day belonged to Lotz.

He rammed in a 25-foot putt for a birdie on No. 1. On the par-five second hole he was on in two and coaxed in a curling 30-footer for an eagle. A magnificent approach on No. 3 left him with an 18-inch tap for a birdie, and he went five under with a 15-foot birdie putt on the fourth hole.

He coasted in the rest of the way, matching another birdie with his lone under-par round on No. 17 where he was in the rough twice and missed the green.

Softball Umpires To Attend Clinic

Questions on softball rules and rule changes will be fielded Sunday by Glen MacDonald, chief umpire of the B.C. Amateur Softball Association, during an umpires' clinic at the Ingham Hotel.

The Vancouver official is scheduled to attend the two-hour session, starting at 2 p.m. and open to all interested persons.

Habs Pad Lead

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — Montreal Junior Canadiens trampled St. Catharines Black Hawks 10-5 Thursday night to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven eastern junior semi-final for the Memorial Cup. One game is tied and St. Catharines is at Montreal Saturday.

Who speaks softly and carries a big kick?

We do.

"If that thing's running, I'll buy it." That's what a man on the dock said as one of our new Mercs moved by. It was and he did. Not surprising—because quiet is engineered into our '69 Mercs all the way from the mighty 125 hp to the feisty 4 hp.

Mercury's full system of silencing includes small-bore, short-stroke engine design, Power Dome combustion chambers, internal reed valves, rubber-mounted aluminum wraparound cowl with sound-absorbent liner, sound-isolating support frame, sound-sealed control and fuel line fittings. Whew! Plus Mercury's Jet-Prop exhaust that buries sound and fumes underwater. All this makes our '69 Mercs the quietest outboards you can buy.

Come in and listen. Then you talk... and we'll listen. Chances are we can get together on your new Mercury. Quietly.

WAIT AND SEE, SAYS REPORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — The sports reporter who broke the story here Thursday that Maple Leaf Gardens was about to be sold to Columbia Broadcasting System refuses to be body-checked by a flurry of denials.

Marc Charlebois, sports director of radio station CKOY, said today he is still convinced his information is sound despite quick denials from Gardens management and CBS in New York.

view he first heard the report Monday in Montreal. "I checked it out in Ottawa Tuesday and confirmed it with a good Toronto source Wednesday."

"I still believe the report to be accurate. Wait and see."

Victoria O'Keefes Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

It was reported erroneously Thursday that the 2 p.m. match would be played Saturday at Macdonald Park.

Although O'Keefes are out of the playoff picture, they are planning on wrecking Westminster plans to finish higher than fourth.

Firefighters snapped a third-place deadlock with the Labs in Vancouver Thursday and moved into a second-place tie with UBC Thunderbirds by nipping Burnaby Villa 2-1 in the final league game for both squads.

The Birds wind up their schedule this weekend and could nail down the runner-up spot with a tie or win, leaving Labs with only a third-place deadlock as their target.

Lipton Trophy Launched Again

Next Sunday, for the first time since 1966, one of Victoria's oldest and most attractive yachting trophies will again come up for competition.

The Sir Thomas Lipton Perpetual Trophy, one of a series of Lipton Cups presented by the tea magnate to "Royal" Yacht Clubs around the world, is handicrafted in silver. Almost three feet tall, the ornate cup is topped by a miniature Viking ship, and features an engraving of Victoria's Parliament Buildings on the smooth surface.

Around the base, silver shamrocks record the names of the various winners, beginning with 1915 when Royal Van's Gad brothers won in the Spirit.

Over the years, the trophy has had a number of different class allocations, and varied locales for competition. Remaining constant, however, was the intent: to combine close boat for boat tactics with a reasonably long course and the jurisdiction (sailed under the auspices of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.)

Following the First World War (when competition was suspended) the race was run by whichever yacht club was hosting the yearly PIYA Regatta.

For example, in 1925 Victoria hosted the Regatta, and the Lipton event, off Royal Roads. That year, a Royal Victoria boat, Dr. John Harper's deep sea ketch Fayth, took the trophy.

Humphrey Golby, one of Harper's crew on that race, remembers it as a "howling westerly, with winds of 40 m.p.h." The short-rigged Fayth was in her element, and was further assisted when the two lead boats, Gwendolyn and Westward Ho, collided and knocked each other out of the competition.

At first, Seattle yachts, including the Gwendolyn, figured prominently in the results, winning the Lipton Cup eleven times during the "twenties and 'thirties. One of the top Seattle boats, which won in 1923, 1929 and 1930, was Ray Cooke's schooner Claribel, which went on to win the very first Swiftsure Lightship Classic in 1930. (Cooke eventually owned the Circe, which was crewed over the years by many Victoria sailors including Golby, Andy Wright, and Denny Coverdale.)

The only other Victoria winner before the Second World War was ship chandler Walter E. Adams, a former Commodore of Royal Victoria, whose double-ended yawl Truant won in 1914 and 1926.

Gradually, the Lipton Cup Race became associated with the Labor Day Regatta, first at Cowichan Bay, and later at Maple Bay. When the now-defunct Cowichan Bay Yacht Club was a member of PIYA, regattas were organized jointly by Cowichan, along with Royal Vancouver and Royal Victoria Yacht Clubs.

For awhile, Victoria sailors had a winning streak. It began with Ned Ashe, who skipped the Atkins designed May D to victory in 1949, 1952, and 1958. Dr. C. Helmer in Carita II won in 1956.

Then the 26-foot Scandinavian-imported Spitzgatters ruled supreme; the last winners among wooden boats, Bill McIntosh's Skool won in 1961. And Hunter Vogel in his famous Aida (which also won the 1963 Juan de Fuca Race) took the Lipton Trophy in 1957, 1959, 1960, and 1963.

When Vancouver naval architect John Brandmayr won in 1962, it was the beginning of a new era. His Coho was a fiberglass yacht. And it was followed in 1965 by another "over 30-footer," Paul Cote's Jeunesse, a fiberglass boat also of Brandmayr design.

The last race at Maple Bay in 1966 saw the Trophy go to Seattle's Dr. Bates McKee in the 37-foot Adelante, which was also the 1964 winner.

This year's Lipton Trophy Race, which starts at 10:00 hours on Sunday April 27th, will probably see a large fleet with many of the boats in the 20-30-foot range.

It will also attract a number of "out-of-towners," especially former winners such as Hunter Vogel, who has indicated that he will compete in the Lollipop, (like the Aida, a double-ended Scandinavian design).

Entries for the race will be accepted by the Fleet Captain at Royal Victoria Yacht Club up to 18:00 hours on Saturday, April 26th. All boats racing must have a valid CCA rating, or, upon approval of the Club-Measurer, take the rating at the top of the class. (Accepted ratings fall between 15.0 and 34.9 CCA.)

The course will be particularly suited to spectator viewing, with the start line by Clover Point, and Constance Bank and Fairway Buoy marks of the course.

Jeers Dispute Claim Politics Not Involved

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier set off a chorus of jeers from Conservative benches this week when he said the Canada Council had been bound by law to disregard political considerations in awarding a grant to Stanley Gray, the McGill University lecturer who calls himself a revolutionary.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) led the opposition attack on the $5,500 grant to Gray, demanding "a clear statement of the government's position on the 'question of Canada Council awards to persons known to counsel violent social disruption and revolution.'"

OXFORD STUDIES

Gray, a 24-year-old political science lecturer whose dismissal from the university for disruptive activities is now before an arbitration board, received the grant for political science studies at Oxford. He said Wednesday he would accept it only if he could not continue to lecture at McGill.

Gray is a leader of campus ultra-radicals at McGill and was one of the leaders of a mass march for a "French McGill" March 28.

The Commons fight over the grant to Gray, punctuated by the Speaker's calls of "Order," ended only after it had been sidetracked by former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker into an attack on the CBC, which he accused of planning to devote an hour to yippee leader Jerry Rubin, who has been ruled inadmissible to Canada by the Immigration department.

COUNCIL DECISION

Pelletier told the Commons that members of the Canada Council themselves, rather than the jury established to deal with university affairs, had made the decision on the Gray application after long study.

Opposition members jeered when he said that under the law governing the Canadian Council, political considerations had to be set aside in awarding grants.

He said Gray was "definitely" qualified for the grant academically.

"Of hundreds of applications he was at the top of the list," he said.

In the Commons Diefenbaker accused Pelletier of making a dissertation "in respect of freedom of anarchists" and asked him whether he was aware "that some little or petty Caesar of the CBC has announced that Jerry Rubin will be accorded one night or one hour, whatever the period is—one hour of one night—on the CBC on either Thursday or Friday of this week to spread and disseminate his seditious and eve treasonable utterances."

Diefenbaker touched off unorthodox applause from the public galleries, as well as from some government backbenchers, when he asked if the secretary of state would "at the same time find out why so popular a show as the (Don) Messer show is being denied to the people of Canada by these individuals who prefer revolutions."

CBC director of information programs, Knowlton Nash, ordered an immediate inquiry when Diefenbaker's charge reached him.

A CBC spokesman said the inquiry turned up a filmed interview with Rubin, a leader in the Youth International Party, that had been made in the U.S. and was to be used at some undetermined date on a CBC Ottawa local public affairs program, "Something Else."

The spokesman said the interview lasted only "a few minutes" and would definitely not be used this week.

NEW DATSUN 1600 at DAVID MOTORS IS THE MOST POWERFUL ECONOMY CAR IN ITS CLASS

96 h.p., 100 m.p.h., 30-35 m.p.g.

Now you have a choice of three Datsun 1600s: the sporty new 2-door, a de luxe 4-door and de luxe family wagon. In its price class, only Datsun 1600 gives you a high-performance 1600 cc overhead cam engine that's good for 96 h.p. and 100 m.p.h. It means great pick up and all-day cruising at 70 m.p.h. And all the time you'll get 30-35 miles per gallon with either 4-on-the-floor stick shift or the 3-speed automatic.

engineered for safety

The new Datsun 1600 is probably the safest economy car you can own. It has a specially designed impact-absorbing body and great road-holding with an all-independent suspension system. Safety features include: disc brakes up front (now with the double protection of twin master cylinders), collapsible steering column, headrests, belt/shoulder harnesses, 4 headlights, padded dash and interior fittings, and more.

quiet and comfortable

The Datsun 1600 has "windows up" ventilation. Fresh air streams in through adjustable ventilators on the dash, c-pillars, and side air is automatically extracted through rear vents. The instant-acting heater/defroster keeps you warm and your windows clear through the coldest winters. There are more than 150 Datsun dealers coast-to-coast and 11,000,000 in parts to back you.

"PERMA-DECK"

THE TOUGH SUNDECK COATING

FACTORY DEMONSTRATION THIS WEEK-END

Perma-Deck works just like it sounds. It seals out all weathering, so your deck lasts almost forever. It does not peel, blister or crack and it does not wear unevenly in traffic areas. The waterproof surface never leaks or stains or warps. It comes in a range of attractive colors, and it is slip proof. Most important, you can apply it yourself. It is easily applied with roller or brush to any wood, concrete or metal surface. It will probably never need refinishing, and that is why it is called Perma-Deck.

NICHOLSON TO BECOME ST. JOHN KNIGHT

Lieutenant-Governor John R. Nicholson will be invested Saturday as a Knight of Grace, Most Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

The ceremony will take place in Government House at 3 p.m. After being invested by the order's chancellor, N. Ian MacLaren, Ottawa, the lieutenant-governor will invest some 21 men and women who will be admitted to or promoted in the order.

Prior to the ceremonies, the annual meeting of the Council of St. John for B.C. will be held at St. John House, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Chairman will be provincial president W. S. Pipes, Vancouver.

On completion of the ceremonies, a reception will be held at Government House for officials and guests.

Moment of Panic On a Parking Lot

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Everything happens to me! At least it seems that way. Especially if I'm working on a schedule that necessitates split-second timing. Like the other day when I had an appointment at 5:15 p.m., and decided to include a stop at a supermarket on the way.

Over the years I've become a firm believer in locking my car whenever it is parked. So much so that it's now second nature when I step out to snip the lock on the drive side, go around to the opposite door, reach in for my purse and my keys and then lock the door on that side.

I went through the drill when I stopped at the supermarket the other day.

Only to find after I'd snipped everything up on the drive side and hurried around to the opposite door that for some unaccountable reason which I've still not had time to fathom, it was locked tight. Have you ever stood beside a car with the door tightly locked and your purse and keys inside?

It's a panicky moment: Your skin prickles. Your hair stands on end. And you have to fight off the urge to scream — and scream again.

If you hurdle that first moment without opening your mouth you then begin to wonder what to do. WHAT TO DO!!!!!!

Actually the only thing I could do was phone my sister, who has access to my apartment in an emergency, and ask her to go over there, pick up my extra car keys and bring them to me.

I reasoned there had to be a telephone in a supermarket. So hurried in to look for one.

First door I tried was locked. When I rattled the knob a young man glared at me through the glass and waved at me to go away.

It was then I noticed he was counting the day's take. So you can guess I moved off quickly before he decided to put his foot on a burglar alarm.

Around the next corner I came to a glass enclosure where a young lady did loan me her telephone. I got through to my sister and went back to the parking lot to wait.

With thought of my appointment in mind, I had another look at my car. And suddenly I realized that one of the no-draft windows didn't seem to be locked.

However, when I tried to move it from the outside it stuck and refused to budge.

I shook and rattled and banged and pushed. I broke my finger nails and I said a few potent words. Nothing happened.

A car drew up in the parking space beside me and a voice wanted to know "what on earth" I was doing.

It was Oak Bay's Alderman Frances Elford.

She joined me. Together we shook and rattled and banged and pushed. We broke more finger nails and we said a few more potent words. Nothing happened.

Just then a young man came across from another car and asked if he could help. He pushed. Shoved. Grunted. And that so-and-so no-draft window slid open as if it was on greased hinges.

The young man grinned. Flipped the lock and opened the door. And, there I was, back in my car.

By now there was barely 15 minutes left to get downtown for my appointment. But my sister was somewhere on the way with my extra keys and I hesitated to leave.

Alderman Elford solved that one by offering to wait until she arrived.

I took off in high. Arrived downtown at precisely 5:12 p.m. Found a free meter. Jumped out of my car. Snipped the door on the drive side, hurried around to the opposite side to get my purse and keys and...yes...you're right. The darned thing was still locked.

I told you everything happens to me.

P.S. To keep the record straight let me add that this time there was no emergency. That no-draft window was still open. So I was able to retrieve my purse and keys. And I kept my appointment, right on the dot.

More B.C. Jobs For Students

Student job hunters on the west coast have a better chance of getting work than those in the rest of western Canada, says a Victoria Manpower official.

Eric Fleming, placement officer at the University of Victoria manpower office, said employment on the west coast was better last year than in the east, although precise figures are not available.

By the end of April 3,800 Uvic undergrads will be looking for work if they have not already found a summer job.

High school grads will number about 1,200 at the end of June, but the picture will be complicated by an even larger number of Grade 12 students seeking employment.

MAY IMPACT

"The impact of local advertising won't be felt until May and June, when local firms start hiring students to serve the tourist industry," Fleming said.

Wednesday manpower minister Allan McEachen said there would be more jobs opening up this summer, but more students to compete for them.

He added weight to a recent warning by the Canadian Union of Students that half the Canadian university undergraduates would be unemployed this summer.

Earlier this month the federal department announced a stepped-up advertising campaign urging employers to make jobs for students.

Statistics on employment vary: McEachen said manpower found jobs for 13,000 students last summer; CUS said the figure was 17,000, but noted the "job" sometimes consisted of cutting grass two or three times a week.

BIG OIL RIG LAID OFF

Southeastern Commonwealth Drilling Co. has a $10,000,000 floating oil rig and may soon have no place to put it.

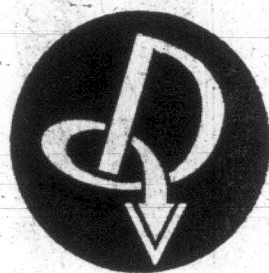

The company has been informed that its drilling contract with Shell Canada Ltd. off the B.C. coast will be terminated within six months.

The cancellation will put the giant sea-going drill rig known as SEDCO-135F—one of the largest offshore rigs in the world—out of work.

House Asked to Embrace 'Playboy Philosophy'

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — A former Conservative cabinet minister, Walter Dinsdale, told the government Thursday it is "bringing the morals and values of skid road into the salons and drawing rooms of the nation."

Mr. Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris), a one-time social worker with the Salvation Army, also dismissed as nonsense Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that the state has no place in the bedrooms of the nation.

"Murder your wife in the bedroom and you will see how fast the state will deal with that problem," Mr. Dinsdale said as the Commons continued debate on numerous changes to the Criminal Code.

The opposition in the Commons justice committee proposed 40 amendments to the 120-clause bill which would change laws dealing with homosexuality, lotteries, abortions, firearms and other matters.

Thursday's debate remained centred on changes which say that acts done in private between consenting adults no longer are subject to laws on buggery, bestiality or gross indecency.

Because of these provisions, the Creditists rejected a government proposal to complete the report stage of the bill by next Tuesday.

Debate on the bill continues today.

'LOVE IS REMOVED'

Mr. Dinsdale said the Commons is being asked to embrace the "playboy philosophy" of sex without love and warned that "if you remove love from sex ... you will destroy human personality."

There was a time, he said, when "politicians were against sin and for motherhood."

"Here we have a reversal of this fundamental principle."

Justice Minister John Turner said the government philosophy was that the private behavior of Canadians "or personal conduct not involving the public area, is better left to private judgment and not be subject to the criminal or penal code."

"In other words, when acts are committed in private between two consenting adults, those acts, however indecent or repugnant or immoral, should remain a matter for their own."

DINSDALE ... attacks skid road morals private consciences and not be a matter bringing into play the Criminal Code of Canada," Mr. Turner said.

He rejected opposition arguments that the amendment would legalize such conduct. "It surely does nothing of the kind," he said. "The bill does not endorse such acts. It does not legalize such acts. It does not even legalize this kind of conduct."

CAN'T BE ENFORCED

Mr. Turner also said that the law on homosexuality now is unenforceable "and a law which is not enforceable is not a good law."

He also was deeply concerned about charges that the bill is a menace to the health of society and would damage family life.

He quoted the Wolfenden commission report in the United Kingdom on the question of homosexuality, which said there is "no evidence to support the view that homosexual activity is a cause of the demoralization and decay of civilization."

C. Terrence Murphy (L—Sault Ste. Marie) said he was "sick and tired" of opposition speakers asking government supporters to speak on the amendment.

He said the people of Canada knew where Prime Minister Trudeau stood on the bill and they knew it was part of his program.

"The people returned a majority of his party to this House," said Mr. Murphy.

"That is the reason we are sitting over here and you are sitting over there."

Mr. Murphy also said he agrees that "sex without love is immoral but that does not make it illegal."

REMOVE THE STIGMA

"I believe what this government is trying to do is to remove the stigma of criminality from those legal acts between a husband and wife, and consenting adults when those acts are committed in private and affect no one else," he said.

Lionel Beaudoin (Creditist—Richmond) said the government should establish clinics to give psychiatric help to homosexuals.

As the bill now reads, it meant young people would be exposed to homosexuals and could mean "contagion among our young people."

Andre Fortin (Creditist—Lotbiniere) said it is criminal to free adults from penalties for homosexual acts and retain the penalties for the young.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said all the new section would do is relieve those who were ill. He also questioned the appeal to religion in some speeches, saying "religion, if it means anything, means compassion and understanding."

FIRM FIRES INNOCENT BOOKKEEPER

PENTICTON (CP) — Fanny Shubin, cleared last month of possession of money stolen from a bank, said Thursday night she has lost her bookkeeper's job here.

"Yes, it is true I have been fired," the 41-year-old Miss Shubin said. "But I just can't talk about it now."

She spoke at the home of the parents of Ann Spiller, the bank clerk convicted of theft of $492,000 from a Royal Bank of Canada branch here. Miss Spiller now is serving a six-year sentence.

The two women had shared a luxury home near here.

Miss Shubin was a bookkeeper at Oliver Industries Ltd. in Penticton. Company president Joseph Oliver was not available for comment on her dismissal.

A month ago, Richard Duncan, manager of the branch from which the money was taken over a period of four years, disclosed that he had been dismissed after 33 years with the bank.

Heads Publishers

TORONTO (CP)—Ralph Costello, president and publisher of The Telegraph-Journal and The Times-Globe of Saint John, N.B., Thursday was re-elected president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association.

'Half of Tax Revenue Comes From Forests'

Despite what the new leader of the NDP says, B.C. forest industries are paying, directly or indirectly, half the province's tax revenue, an industry spokesman said Thursday.

NDP Leader Tom Berger's "reference to the price structure of forest products not providing a fair return to the people is simply not a valid one," said T. J. Mackinnon, public affairs director for the Council of B.C. Forest Industries.

Berger was accused of taking facts out of context and using them in "lonely isolation for a variety of devious reasons."

LIMIT NEEDED

In a speech to the Victoria Rotary Club Mackinnon said the basic need of the forest industry "is a realistic limit on taxes and other costs so that the entire economy of the province can remain healthy."

He said 56 per cent of earned income of most major companies now is paid out in taxes.

"In British Columbia we pay the highest wages and are also the highest taxed forest industry in the world."

It means the industry is placed in "an invidious position" with its direct competitors in the world market.

Mackinnon declared he "would like to make it abundantly clear that the industry is not now—nor has it been in the past—unwilling to pay its fair share of taxes in British Columbia."

Berger told a press conference shortly after his election at the weekend it was "obvious the people are not receiving a fair share of the utilization of their resources."

He said forest industry profits were up 30 per cent over the past year and in some areas the price structure of forest products had increased as much as 100 per cent.

Berger also said the forest industry pays only 12 per cent of provincial taxes.

Mackinnon said it is "some what disconcerting" to hear such statements from the new leader of a major political party.

In 1968, the industry paid $140 million in direct taxes said Mackinnon. "However, the multiplier effect of the industry on wages, services and supplies resulted in the industry generating approximately half of the provincial tax revenue."

NOT 'DIRTY WORD'

As for profit, which he maintains is not "a dirty word," it is necessary to attract investment money to the industry as capital that is "a vital requirement for our economic well-being."

Mackinnon emphasized the forest industry does not set prices but trades in a competitive market against companies paying lower taxes and wages.

Current "peaked" lumber prices are connected with high United States demand, low log inventories and severe winter weather that hampered harvest.

"In the meantime, the forest industry is not doing anything mysterious. We don't control prices. If we sold at a lower price abroad than we do at home we would be accused of international dumping. If we arranged to fix prices domestically... we would be subject to prosecution under the federal Combines Act."

From every dollar increased revenue from price increases, comes 82 cents "directly to the provincial and federal coffers," said Mackinnon.

"I somehow feel this is a fair share for the utilization of the people's resources," he said.

"Please believe that the members of the forest industry are working on your behalf to provide a buoyant and a viable economy."

Teen-Agers To Clean Up Beaver Park

A giant clean-up of Beaver Lake Park is planned for May 4 by members of the Saanich Police Organization for Teens.

Several hundred youths are expected to turn out to pick up litter and refuse to ready the park for the summer.

The clean-up will be held in co-ordination with the Saanich parks department. Free hot dogs and refreshments will be supplied and a folk-rock band will entertain later in the day.

The group also will hold a dance April 25 at Reynolds secondary school. Music will be by Tomorrow's Eyes, a Vancouver band.

Winner of the Teen Queen contest will be announced and two princesses chosen. The contestants are chosen from the municipality's five junior and three high schools.

The dance is open to SPOT members and their guests only.

Arthur Mayse

At the start of this week, Sidney publisher Gray Campbell dropped in with an advance copy of a book that only one man in Canada could have written. It is titled "Potlatch," and in this his second interpretation of West Coast Indian ways, artist-author George Clutesi shows the full brilliance of his talents.

Clutesi, a son of the Tse-Shah whaling clan, also performs a service to white and Indian alike. He cleanses his people's noblest feast of the vulgarizations that have obscured its true significance. He accomplishes this in a story that is certain to delight readers of all ages. It is not fragmented into separate tales, as his earlier "Son of Raven, Son of Deer" was, but moves through the 28 days of Tlo-qwah-nah, a feast of the fourth and highest degree.

Although I don't recall that Clutesi tells us so, the potlatch he re-creates is obviously set in the earlier days of his people.

The traditional gift-givings that conclude it are generous—a fine sealing canoe for the chief who is guest of honor, and lesser presents for all. Clutesi, however, makes plain that the giving of material possessions is only one aspect of a gathering called for purposes that go deeper.

Tlo-qwah-nah offered place and time for the clans to perform their sacred mysteries, and to give thanks to the Creator of All. Songs both old and new are sung by those with the right to offer them. With a diplomacy that white councils might envy, the visitors are reminded of the potlatch-givers' precise territorial borders.

Certain days are set aside for the relaxation of comedy, tomfoolery, and buffoonery. For a charming sequence of this sort, I refer you to a passage in which a canoe-maker coaxes his robin-wife into the great lodge.

Each play has its purpose; and part of that purpose is the education of the U-ma, the beloved children of the clans. The capture by "wolves" of 10 of their number, and the subsequent rescue, are designed to impress on them the fact that they are protected, as well as the importance of clan solidarity and vigilance.

The smashing of a yellow cedar chamber pot by a grotesque visitant from the woods is intended to teach them that such vessels are for the old and infirm. Hardy youth should take to the timber.

Clutesi's love for his people and the near-reverence he holds for their past serve to kindle his song-studded narrative. The result is that those pages come alive, and thereby make good his intent.

"It is meant for the reader to feel," this fine Canadian tells us in his preface, "and to say I was there and indeed I saw."

Clutesi, whose name is correctly pronounced with a soft, falling-away extra "e" that few whites can manage, was an eyewitness at his people's last Tlo-qwah-nah as a very young man. Potlatch was then illegal, made so by a federal ruling that played hup with Indian economics all up and down the coast.

Far-distant Ottawa, relying on Indian agents and missionaries for its evidence, had banned all manner of West Coast Indian festivals and rites. Ceremonial gear had also been confiscated where it could be found, and sold to museums.

Whether Clutesi over-idealizes in his reconstruction of a long-ago hosting by a Nootka-affiliated clan, I'm not prepared to say. I only know that the author is more convincing by far than the Indian's critics.

It is also significant to note that white authority which once acted with such missionary zeal has adopted a somewhat less restrictive attitude toward Indian culture in recent years.

Publication date for Potlatch, a handsome, author-illustrated book of 188 pages, will be May 1. I understand that Clutesi's next will deal with Indian whaling, and that this writer who has now hit his stride is already at work on it.

SALLY ANN READY TO SALLY FORTH

Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal officials have set their sights high for this year's campaign . . . and are confident of success.

This year's drive begins May 1 with a target set for $78,700, an increase from last year's quota of $70,000.

Publicity chairman Wilf Dick says the campaign committee, headed by general chairman Wallace J. MacKay, isn't overly anxious.

Last year netted $78,300, just $400 less than the 1968 target.

Plans are well in hand for the residential canvass which begins May 5, spearheaded by residential division chairman Mrs. A. J. Temple and co-chairmen, Mrs. W. J. Anderson and Mrs. George Farmer.

Last year the Salvation Army spent $535,870 on its various services in the Greater Victoria area.

3.9-Mill Boost Only Beginning

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich council approved a record $7.6 million municipal budget Thursday night, up $1 million on the previous year.

The municipal mill rate was set at 32.6, an increase of 3.9 mills over 1968.

Tax increases of $20 to $44 a year are indicated, on the basis of new assessments, in a sampling of five selected areas.

But this is only half the picture. The other half will be provided by school boards when they set the education mill rate later this month.

In addition, municipal sewer and garbage costs are paid separately and amount to about $40 per household this year for most residents.

Comparisons are not simple because of substantial changes in the sewer levy approved last September. There will be increases and decreases depending where a person lives. Garbage is up by $7 per year, largely because of the switch to weekly collection.

Council sat for a record four evenings in a row lasting a total of 14 hours compared with three evenings and 11½ hours last year.

The budget review trimmed $423,850 from expenditures and chopped the provisional mill rate increase from 7.49 to 3.9, a saving of 3.59 mills.

The biggest increases in expenditure this year, as anticipated, were for roads.

The road maintenance budget was jumped from an expenditure of $69,079 last year to $262,000 this year, largely to recover from the damage of the severe weather last winter.

The road construction budget was tripled—from an expenditure of $194,060 last year to $597,650 this year, designed to begin to catch up for years of neglect in this area. The figure includes a carry-over of $93,200 from 1968.

Major savings were accomplished by chopping $100,000 off drainage work, transferring $100,000 from the 1968 surplus into road capital, $80,500 from two road projects, $50,000 off park improvements and a number of smaller items.

Improvement to Tolmie from Douglas to Oak. Both decisions were on split votes, the first by 5-to-4.

Ald. Edward Lum said that every year Saanich tried to hold its mill rate after the education mill rate was known and council cut back on roads.

"Roads is the area we have cut year after year and we have to bear the consequences because this can't go on forever," he said.

Ald. William Campbell agreed and opposed any cuts in road construction. Both men said public opinion supports increased expenditures.

Ald. Frank Waring said cutting $70,000 off Carey-Glanford was false economy. It meant only $8 extra in taxes to a person living in the affluent Ten Mile Point area.

Also cut was $10,500 improvement to Tolmie from Douglas to Oak.

George Gillett . . . ready for "go sign" on safety village.

Safety . . . by George! At Tom Thumb Village

By PAT DUFOUR

The dream of a retired official of the department of highways traffic division will come to fruition Saturday, April 26, when the Tom Thumb Safety Village is officially opened at Colwood's Juan de Fuca Recreational Centre.

George Gillett, 2234 Sooke, saw a story in a Toronto paper years ago which told of a similar village in Hamilton, Ont.

Gillett made up his mind that the west needed one too. He enlisted the help of the South Van Isle Lions Club, which now sponsors the village, and set to work.

Gillett approached a local car firm and with its help 12 electric pedal cars were donated from a British manufacturer. They will be used to teach Grade II children in the Greater Victoria, Sooke and Saanich school districts road sense and make them fully aware of the complex situations drivers face on the road.

Gillett quotes Ray Hatfield, superintendent of the motor vehicles branch, as having said that by the time youngsters have reached the age of 16 it is too late to train them. "They're too eager to get a car, and get going."

The Lions plan to build a miniature village site adjacent to the centre. Already a replica of a moving company's Victoria building has been made which houses the small cars. On the immediate planning list is a miniature church and two service stations.

The provincial government has contributed to the project by blacktopping the "roads" of the village. The Greater Victoria Safety Council is also taking an interest.

Gillett is sure "that the village will be the best of its kind on the continent."

He says it's the only one in the west. "Vancouver has some instruction available in Stanley Park but is on a small scale, and not a village."

The Lions also plan to have a Sprocketers Club at the village which will guide youngsters in the safe use of bicycles.

School children will be taken on organized tours of the village, receiving instruction both through films and practical application.

Vancouver Island's newest "urban centre" gets the green light at 2 p.m. April 26.

"I believe that most people in British Columbia are anxious to do everything necessary to eliminate the hazards caused by inadequate sewage disposal systems," Liffmark said.

"The only holdouts are some municipal officials in the Victoria area."

"WHO IS RIGHT?" "Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, for instance, continues to advocate dumping of raw sewage into the waters around Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula because he says the municipalities cannot afford to build treatment plants."

"But his MP David Anderson (L—Esquimalt-Saanich) says there is lots of money in Ottawa going begging for treatment plant subsidies."

"I wonder who is right—Mayor Curtis or Mr. Anderson?"

The health minister added he believes "we cannot afford to fail treating sewage which goes into the waters along our shores."

Federal Team To Report On Dock Needs

Decision Closer After Inspection

By BOB MITCHELL

A federal government decision on whether to go ahead with large-scale improvements at Ogden Point docks moved closer this week following a four-day visit by a fact-finding team from the department of transport.

Bert Cavey, chief of harbors and properties, and F. K. Devos, senior marine economist, looked at harbor facilities at Ogden Point and elsewhere, and talked with individuals favoring a major updating of the Ogden Point facilities.

Cavey said Thursday they were in Victoria "just to see what improvements are to be made."

He said a decision on what federal agency would handle the task of making the improvements would be decided on the basis of a report to be submitted to Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

He did not want to comment on the future of Victoria facilities generally "until we've pulled all the facts together in a report."

DREDGING

Basic improvements would call for dredging the berths and approaches at Piers A and B to a depth of 36 feet, raising Pier South B six feet to its original height above high water, and paving the piers—total cost $350,000.

Other improvements which would run into millions of dollars include more lumber assembly and storage space, travelling dockside cranes and covered storage area.

George Farmer, Victoria Chamber of Commerce harbor spokesman, said the CNR, which manages general cargo and lumber movement at the docks, would support "any recommendation we put forth" to the DOT.

The CNR now handles minor improvement details, such as lighting and paving, he said.

CO-OPERATIVE

Victoria MP David Groos described the DOT officials' visit as "beneficial from their point of view and our point of view."

He said the CNR has shown "considerable co-operation" in making preparation for cruise ships scheduled to visit Victoria later this year.

Flood-lighting has been installed at Pier A, and the shed there has been redesigned to allow buses to drive in and pick up passengers, who disembark from the ships.

School Addition To Low Bidder

The Greater Victoria school board accepted the lowest of four bids for a five-room addition to Cloverdale elementary school at a tender opening Thursday night.

The contract will go to H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. for $163,210. Subject to department of education approval. Bids ranged up to $169,423.

Referendum allocation for the project was $163,400.

Officials Relieved Roadblock Cleared

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer this morning signed the agreement clearing way for construction to start in the Rose-Blanshard area.

The minister attached his signature to the final documents two days ago after the Times revealed lack of the signature was stalling the building of 184 low rental housing units.

Contractor George Wheaton said he was happy the apparent impasse had been broken and said construction crews would be in the area within days of the official contract being signed.

It is anticipated that the official contract forms for the $2.4 million project will be in Victoria early next week.

Two Greater Victoria MPs played key roles in removing the latest roadblock confronting the scheme which has been close to three years in the planning and preparation stage.

Victoria MP David Groos, in the city for discussion on Ogden Point docks, touched off ministerial interest Monday when he telephoned Hellyer in Ottawa to ask him to give priority to an early decision.

David Anderson, Esquimalt-Saanich MP, took up the battle in Ottawa.

HADN'T SEEN THEM

Groos indicated this morning the prime cause for the delay was brought about by the failure of Ottawa officials to get the five contract proposals to the attention of Hellyer.

"The minister had not seen the proposals until yesterday" (Thursday), Groos said this morning. "That was when the CMHC who had been studying it in Ottawa brought it forward."

"All documents involved in the scheme have been in Ottawa for at least three weeks."

"Central Mortgage and Housing, the Crown corporation involved in the scheme, rarely take anything but the 'lowest tender,'" Groos added. "But in this case there were other considerations such as more units, more economical maintenance, underground wiring and generally improved appearance."

THREE LEVELS

All five contractors' proposals had been approved by the city and the province, plus technical experts from all three levels of government before being sent to Ottawa.

Mayor Hugh Stephen and other city officials expressed delight this morning that the last hurdle was finally over.

"I think people should be made aware of the role played by Mr. Groos," Stephen said. "After my initial call he moved very quickly to get to the minister."

Groos was due to fly back to Ottawa earlier this week but decided to stay on in the city to handle any problems at the local level.

"I'm very glad the matter has been brought to a happy conclusion," Groos said today. "It's a good example of federal, provincial and municipal co-operation and there is no doubt in my mind that the scheme will be an attractive addition to Victoria."

Cost of the 184 units will be shared by the federal and provincial governments with Ottawa paying 75 per cent of construction costs and the province 25 per cent.

Operating costs will also be shared with Ottawa again paying 75 per cent of operating losses and the province and city sharing equally the remaining 25 per cent.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

DRIVERS FACE CHARGES FOR MAKING WIDE TURNS

City police will soon begin a firm crackdown on offenders of "one of the most abused traffic laws in the city."

Motorists who make wide, sweeping turns from two-way streets on to a one-way street will be charged under the Motor Vehicle Act, Traffic Inspector Richard Berry said.

"It's quite obvious persons are ignorant of the law," he said. "They are not aware of the proper turning movement."

"With more one-way streets coming and people not toeing the line we are going to have to do something about it."

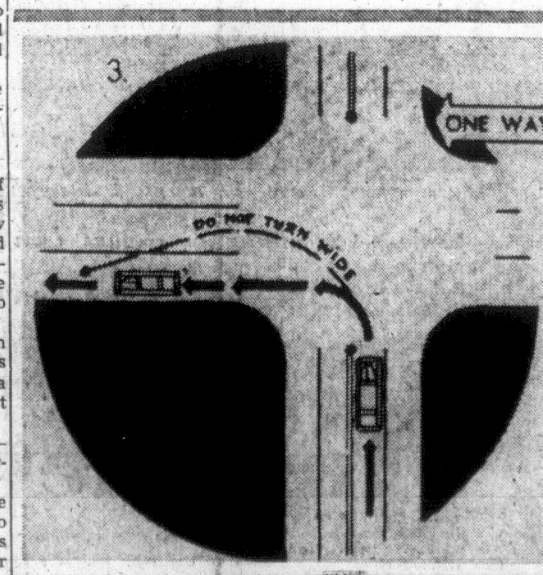

The inspector said the turn, from a two-way to a one-way street, must be made the same as a right turn—as near as practicable to the left hand curb.

"For any passenger vehicle this is possible."

"The Motor Vehicle Act states that the driver should 'turn the vehicle to the left so as to leave the intersection as nearly as practicable in the left hand lane available to traffic moving in the direction of travel of the vehicle upon the highway being entered.'"

Insp. Berry said proper turns would relieve congestion, speed up traffic and help avoid accidents.

Improper turns could mean three demerit points!

DEAR ABBY...

Beard Not Just For the Hippies

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say a few kind words in your column for the thousands of respectable, mature men who wear beards?

I, myself, have a neatly trimmed beard, over which some of my friends have expressed much envy. They would like to grow one, but say their employers won't allow it. While my employer tolerates MY beard, he hasn't forbidden me to wear one.

I am sick and tired of the snide remarks one hears from those who associate beards with hippies, yuppies, beatniks, and subversive characters. It takes time and effort and manliness to grow a beard, and not every male is endowed by nature with enough hair to develop a presentable-looking one.

Perhaps if some prominent figure would grow a beard, he'd get the ball rolling. President Nixon would be a natural! He has a five o'clock shadow at noon, and he'd only be following the example set by another great Republican leader, Abraham Lincoln!

Come on, Abby, give us bearded ones a break.—KELLY.

DEAR KELLY: You rattled the right cage! I happen to appreciate clean, beautifully sculptured, well-kept beards. In fact, the men who have contributed most to my happiness were bearded. Moses, Freud, my grandfather, Uncle Sam, Santa Claus — and my husband!

DEAR ABBY: My mother didn't write a "Dear John" letter to my boyfriend, but I wish she had. I am now "John's wife." I left a comfortable home and a mother and father who loved me to get married at 16.

I am 18 now, broke and unhappy. I live in a hole in the wall with no conveniences, no new clothes, and no car to drive.

I agree with that mother who wrote and asked John to wait until he could offer her daughter something better before proposing marriage.

If I could do it over again, I wouldn't have married so young. I would have waited until we both worked and saved a while. It's too late now because I'm pregnant.

Please, Dear Abby, tell girls who think they are in love to wait for a man who thinks enough of them to provide them with a decent future.

Love DOES fly out the window when poverty comes in the door.

He said he loved me, but I didn't even get a valentine.—SAD FROM SEATTLE.

DEAR SAD: Your letter said it better than I. Thanks for the benefit of your experience. Perhaps other 16-year-olds will brush the stardust out of their eyes and view the realities of life more clearly.

DEAR ABBY: Is a FIFTH COUSIN far enough away for marriage?—ELOISE.

DEAR ELOISE: Genetically speaking, yes.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Home Ec Teachers to Play Part In Nixon's Fight on Poverty

By ELIZABETH SHELTON

WASHINGTON—The Nixon administration is determining ways to enlist the aid of the nation's 100,000-plus trained home economists to combat consumer ignorance, one of the root causes of poverty and the breakdown of home and family life.

Assistant secretary of health, education and welfare Pat Hitt—who directs the department's community and field services, of which consumer services is an integral part, and who hand-picked the president's consumer affairs assistant, Virginia H. Knauer—sees "an exciting new trend."

Based on a home-economics approach to consumer education, this includes expansion of junior and senior high school home economics programs to include subjects relevant to today's living that both boys and girls need to know.

These are such subjects as budgeting the family income; making wise purchases of food, furnishings, clothing and large and small appliances; handling installment buying and other forms of credit; and marriage and family living.

Mrs. Hitt said, "the whole spectrum of living in today's world" would be covered by the co-educational subjects. "There is so much more to consumer education than cooking and sewing and nutrition."

She said sex education, "a delicate situation," should be a part of the integrated secondary-school home economics curriculum, but emphasized that its inclusion is up to local school boards and administrators and parents.

The Nixon consumer-education-through-home-economics approach also envisions expanded curricula for teachers of home economics and the recruitment of active and retired home economists to instruct teachers, parents and children.

In most high schools, girls in academic college-preparatory and vocational-training programs do not have time for home-economics courses. This necessitates evening or Saturday classes, and teachers, or, preferably, teaching teams for these.

To help homemakers in inner city or rural poverty areas feed their families nutritiously, making the best use of their dollars and the surplus foods available under the government's food stamp and other programs, a program similar to the agriculture department's extension service could be operated in local buildings by professional home economists. ## SHOPPING GUIDE

Indian Handicrafts Sold in This Shop

By PENNY SAVER

Years ago when Sid Barron was still cartooning for the Times this paper carried a cartoon showing a pair of American tourists casting suspicious glances at the Japan sticker on some "authentic" totem poles. The saleslady, her hands folded in typical Victorian calm, was explaining that of course they were authentic totem poles. Years ago a small tribe of Pacific coast Indians had paddled west until they came to these little islands off the coast of Asia.

An interesting explanation, but it doesn't excuse the "Made in Anywhere-Else" syndrome that occasionally overtakes souvenir stores. "Made in Japan" just doesn't have the punch of "Made in Victoria" and even plastic can attain a measure of sincerity if it is sold in the city of its origin.

Victoria merchants, I am proud to say, seem to be overcoming the "Made in Anywhere-Else" syndrome. Either that or they have more local arts to choose among. Just the other day I dropped into a store that proudly displayed some wooden statuettes in the window along with the sign: Carved by a local Indian. The owner added to this that he didn't have a "Made in Japan" totem pole in his store.

His stock of totem poles and related objects is wide indeed so this is quite a statement to be able to make. His totem poles proper begin at 49 cents and go as high as $45. There are carved and painted poles and poles that are unpainted but carved in such intricate detail that no paint is needed. (These incidentally are less than a foot high so the patience required is staggering). Some are signed by the Indian artist. For $1.75 there are hand carved letter openers with painted totem poles for handles.

Potlatch Guard

The statuettes that caught my attention in the first place range from $7.95 up. They depict a warrior standing on guard at the Potlatch. He carries a tall spear and has grassy hair tacked on his head. Painted nail-heads form his eyes and he is clothed in an outfit of woven grass.

There are carved masks beginning at $2.50 and going as high as 10.95. Some of the larger ones have eye holes just like the full size masks and all have cedar bark hair.

For $15.95 there are baskets woven of cedar bark and swamp grass. These have Indian style designs woven right in, such as the one I saw which showed a canoe on the front and a whale on the side. The line that joins the harpooned whale to the canoe is even shown. These square baskets have double handles and are great for carrying packages.

I said that even plastic can take on an aura of sincerity and an Indian artist has proved this by making moulded wall plaques, totem poles and statues of a plastic-like substance finished to look like wood. The designs include many traditional figures the beaver chewing a piece of wood, the killer whale thrashing his tail and the legendary Wild Woman of the Woods. These moulded items begin at $1.95 and the price rises in proportion to the size of the item.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where to find these items.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Vivacious Chick of Sixty Measures Her Curves

Q. It's nice to have someone like you to write to. Even if we cannot talk it is a pleasure. I am 5 feet 5, medium frame. I think, and weigh between 133 and 140 pounds. That is the most I have ever weighed. It seems hard to gain any more. I have a good appetite and eat the right kinds of food. I am 60 years old and do not feel my age. I have lots of pep and am a person who likes to do things. Please tell me if I am near what I should be.

Lowman

My measurements are bust—38½, waist—28½, and hips—39 inches. It will be a big thrill to see your answer in our local paper.

A. I do not know why you are trying to gain weight because you are not underweight. In fact, you are just right, if you have a medium build. Your measurements are in good ratio but suggest to me that you should not gain any more and might even lose 4 or 5 pounds. If your frame is small you ought to lose 8 or 10. It's fun, and very pleasant writing to you, too.

Q. Does drinking water or sugar-free soda hurt your diet?

A. No. Water has no calories and some of the drinks you mention have as few as 3 calories a bottle or can.

Q. Is it possible to make a few substitutions on your reducing menus? Will this ruin my chances for losing my overweight?

A. You can make substitutions if you are sure that the foods have the same number of calories. They should also belong to the same category of food. For instance, do not substitute a potato for an orange or greens for fish.

Q. I have been mixing rosewater and glycerine. Is this as good a moisturizer as any other?

A. No, I do not think it is. Try one of the regular ones on the market. You can use these under your usual makeup.

Q. I have noticed that a few of my eyelashes fall out when I remove eyeliner with mascara remover. Is there something in this cosmetic that makes the lashes fall out? I do not want to become eyelashless.

A. So far as I know there is no ingredient in the product which would cause this, unless you happen to be allergic to something in it. Certainly most women are not. A certain amount of shedding is natural. Perhaps you are too rough when removing the lashes. Be gentle in the procedure.

Irish Catholic Girl, 21, Wins Seat in Commons

OMAGH (AP) — A blue-eyed colleen, 21-year-old Bernadette Devlin, is the youngest member of Britain's House of Commons in nearly 200 years after winning an all-woman race in Northern Ireland Thursday.

Miss Devlin, a campaigner for Roman Catholic civil rights and a "united Socialist Ireland," won a byelection in the mid-Ulster District. She defeated Anna Forrest, widow of a veteran Unionist who represented the district until he died.

The vote was 33,648 to 29,437.

In the 1966 election, Forrest had won with 29,728 votes to 27,168 for Republican candidate Thomas Mitchell.

Miss Devlin is the youngest member of the House of Commons since William Pitt the younger was elected in 1781, also at 21. He became prime minister at 24.

CHARLES IS YOUNGER

Miss Devlin is not the youngest member of Parliament. That distinction belongs to a member of the House of Lords — 20-year-old Prince Charles, who is a member of the upper house because he is Duke of Cornwall. But the heir to the throne has never taken his seat and probably never will.

Running as an independent, five-foot, brown-haired Miss Devlin campaigned from the back of an old delivery truck and preached "Ireland for the Irish."

Mrs. Forrest, a 43-year-old Protestant and the mother of three children, waged a quiet campaign. She said she would carry on her husband's Unionist policy, meaning mostly support for Northern Ireland's continuing as a member of the United Kingdom.

The daughter of a carpenter, Miss Devlin was orphaned at 19 and lives with her five brothers and sisters. She was a psychology student at Belfast University until she dropped out to run for the $7,800-a-year seat in Parliament.

Dogwood Ball Saturday

The third annual Dogwood ball, featuring the British Columbia ballroom dancing championships, will take place Saturday evening in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Contestants will come from several parts of the province to take part in the competitions, and many guests will be coming from the United States as well. Hosts at the ball are Mrs. Elsie Holtum and students of her dancing studio.

ment. The salary, she says, is more money than she has ever seen.

"If I get to Westminster," she said jokingly during the campaign, "it will mean that an Irish peasant has at last entered the halls of the mighty."

She will be one of 28 women in the Commons.

VICTORY STATEMENT

Bernadette first came to public attention last October as a member of a left-wing student group that launched street demonstrations against Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority. The campaign rocked the governing Unionist party and set off months of bitter turmoil between Roman Catholics and Protestant extremists.

In her victory statement, she pledged "to work faithfully for all sections of the community, irrespective of religion."

Often called a 20th-century Joan of Arc, Miss Devlin says: "If I find the fellow who gave me that tag, I'll strangle him. I am no saint... just an ordinary Catholic girl."

Standings in the 630-seat Commons now is Labor 345, Conservative and allies 260, Liberal 12, Republican Labor one, Welsh Nationalist one, Scottish Nationalist one, Independent Unity one, Speaker one, Deputy Speakers two, vacant four.

Federal Government Needs Impetus Provided by CAC

The weakening of the Consumers' Association of Canada could render the Department of Consumer Affairs ineffectual, Mrs. W. E. Rolfs, provincial president of CAC, said this morning in Vancouver.

In her report at the provincial association's annual meeting, Mrs. Rolfs attributed the increase in consumer interest and CAC membership in B.C. to "the focus provided by the federal Department of Consumer Affairs."

She said that "there continues to be a close liaison between the national executive (of CAC) and the department, and we are told the department needs the impetus only CAC can provide to accomplish the maximum for consumers."

The prototype of a new organization within CAC had been formed in Chilliwack she said. This is the Consumer Action Committee, a smaller, less complex organization than a local association for areas where there are insufficient active members to form a local branch.

PROVINCIAL BRIEF

Mrs. Rolfs outlined a brief submitted in March to the provincial government requesting a provincial branch or department of consumer affairs.

CAC feels that the Consumer Protection Act and Regulations is insufficient because of the initiative required by the consumer and the business men involved.

The brief, she explained, "requested the establishment of a Consumer Protection Bureau... to which consumers might apply for information, intercession on their behalf and, under certain circumstances, legal action for the consumer."

The brief indicated a need for further consumer protection in the areas of sales of hearing aids, bonding of direct (itinerant) sellers; "cut off clauses and promissory notes in consumer credit sales. It also asked for supervision of trade and professional associations, and licensing and regulation of corporate and business affairs.

Mrs. Rolfs informed the members of a provincial grant of $650 that had been accorded the association and mentioned that despite this increased postal rates may necessitate the curtailing of the twice yearly provincial newsletter.

All Swim-Suit Classics in Fashion This Summer

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

There isn't much you can do any more with the silhouette of a swimsuit. In this era of fashion, when variety has become accepted, all the classic silhouettes are in fashion at the same time.

You can have a maillot, a two-piece with boy shorts, a blouson two-piece or one-piece, a shift or a bikini. You can be covered up or go bare with all kinds of cut-outs.

So what's new? Touches of exotic fabrics and trims. Now, it's not so much the silhouette as what the suit is made of that counts.

Sometimes it's an outerwear look which makes the news. Darlene does a classic maillot in navy and white houndstooth check, follows it up with a textured knit whose wrapped styling is fake-closed with little hardward clasps from neckline to hem. Equally outerwear is the art nouveau print maillot, in psychedelic color combinations printed on glistening white.

The long-torso silhouette is featured by many swimwear designers with an eye to fashion, and Sea Fashions of California has one of the prettiest, in acetate knit, with a pleated skirt and a beaded trim hipline that adds just a touch of contrast color. More exotic long-torso suits are those which derive from the Twenties, such as Jantzen's all-shirred flapper suit with the buckled hipsash and nothing for a skirt but two flounced tiers.

BIKINI COVER-UPS

Bikinis are so small that it's hard to do anything very exotic with them. But Gortex of Israel manages the trick by using an Eastern print and giving the suit a tied top and harem pants for a coverup which lets the bikini show through. Jantzen does it by using a leather-look fabric with a wet finish. Darlene's version is in a tropical print that makes an impression even in bikini brevity.

Softest of suits is the shift over brief pants, looking almost like a sleep dress. It appears in sunburst permanently-pleated nylon, in a summery floral print with a flounced or pleated hemline.

or in solid colors with unexpected trims such as white and red lace.

Coverups remain as important as in recent seasons, although now they are more likely to reveal than to cover much. The see-through trend lends the exotic touch here, whether it be the sheer chiffon of harem pants or a white shift of openwork lace. Where the material is opaque, the coverup's neckline is slashed very low, or if the front is high, the back will be non-existent, to match the low back of the suit beneath.

Many such coverups now come matched to the suit, but there are separate ones, such as those of lace, which can be used with all one's suits. However, it must be said that the coverups and suits made as costumes are the most fashionable versions. For the first swim outfit of the season, splurge a little on a matched set. You can always get one of the all-purpose coverups for the rest of your exotic swimsuits.

Exam Inspires Poetic Plea

Students who have ever struggled with, or are about to try to pass exams in, strenuous courses in physics or mathematics will appreciate the plight of the engineer who pinned a desperate plea in verse form to the notice board at a local college.

In amiable student-faculty non-confrontation, a second poem appeared with helpful advice on how to pass an exam. It could apply equally well to arts courses.

Closely Woven Fabrics Must Be Underlined

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I just made a simple sheath style dress out of one of those brocaded taffeta materials and have discovered that after only wearing the dress one time, it seems to be pulling out at the seams. I have restitched them a little further in but am afraid that the next time I wear the dress the same thing will happen again. Can anything be done to eliminate this problem now or in the future?—Mrs. L. McM.

Dear Mrs. L. McM.:

You gave me the clue to your problem when you mentioned that your dress was made of a taffeta fabric. Taffetas, silk shantung and similar fabrics which are very closely woven have a tendency to pull at the seams since there is absolutely no "give" in these fabrics.

I would always recommend underlining this kind of fabric. With the two layers of fabric treated as one, there isn't as much of a chance for pulling out. If you are using this kind of fabric in a very fitted dress, it is advisable to attach an inside belt of gros-grain ribbon at the waist, making it slightly tighter than the dress thereby causing it to take the strain instead of your dress fabric.

West's Bilingual Hostility Stirs Ottawa

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is moving to undercut a widespread adverse reaction in Western Canada against the proposed official languages bill.

The bill, which would recognize English and French as official languages in Canada and establish a number of bilingual districts across the country offering federal services in both languages, has brought western MPs a heavy flow of critical mail from their constituents.

Vancouver Island MP David Anderson (L.-Esquimalt-Saanich) provides a case in point. Mr. Anderson, 31-year-old former diplomat serving his first term in the Commons, says that for a while after the bill was introduced last fall he was getting a letter a day on the subject.

In recent weeks the flow has tapered off to one a week, no doubt partially as a result of concerted efforts by the government and individual MPs to correct popularly-held false notions about the bill.

PROPOSES CHANGES

Because of the hostile reception given the bill on the prairies and in British Columbia,

OWNER CHANGE VETOED

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt by Famous Players to reorganize its broadcasting holdings in Canada and come within the limits of government strictures against foreign ownership was vetoed Thursday by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The CRTC, in effect, left the U.S.-controlled company in a position where it will have to sell up to $10,000,000 worth of holdings by Sept. 1, 1970.

Holdings of Famous Players Canadian Corp. affected by the decision include a half-interest in two Quebec City TV stations, a similar interest in the television station and two radio stations in Kitchener, and ownership stakes ranging from less than 25 per cent up to 80 per cent in a string of cable TV systems from Montreal to the West Coast.

In denying the application for a corporate revamping, the CRTC made two main points.

It was not convinced that setting up a new company to pool the resources of Famous Players and its 20-odd Canadian broadcasting partners would really reduce the ownership and control Famous Players would wield.

—Famous Players and its partners had "failed to convince" the CRTC that the group's policies would help safeguard and strengthen the country's social, political, cultural and economic fabric.

DRAW VOTING SHARES

The Famous Players application was to set up a company called Teltron Communications Ltd. Under it, Famous Players and its Canadian partners were to pool their resources, drawing voting shares in Teltron to cover their respective contributions to the pool. About a quarter of the voting shares, valued at about $8,000,000, were to be offered to the public on stock exchanges.

But all the non-voting preferred shares would have remained in the hands of Famous Players.

The CRTC said its opinion was that the combined ownership of voting and non-voting shares of Teltron by Famous Players would leave "approximately 55 per cent" of the total Teltron equity in the hands of Famous Players and that this constituted "effective ownership."

Justice Minister John Turner is proposing to put forward some technical amendments aimed at reassuring the doubtful and the disturbed.

These amendments do not affect the principle of the bill but would rather, in the words of a spokesman for Mr. Turner, provide "clarification" of some of its provisions.

If approved by cabinet within the next week or so, as hoped, they will be ready for Commons consideration when the languages bill next comes before the House in about two weeks' time.

The nature of the amendments has not been disclosed publicly. However, they presumably would be designed to allay some of the major misgivings that have been expressed.

The justice minister met the four western attorneys-general in Victoria Feb. 17. He has said that he will argue the case in cabinet for "constructive suggestions" that they put forward at that time.

FEARS EXPRESSED

Of the myriad objections that have been raised against the bill, perhaps the two chief ones are that it would force people to learn French and that it would discriminate against non-bilingual Canadians in recruitment to and promotion within the federal civil service.

The answer to the second point is that nobody is to be penalized for not having facility in the second language if he has not had an opportunity to learn it. "A willingness to acquire bilingualism at public expense" will be considered an adequate substitute.

The answer to the first point was stated by Mr. Anderson in a speech in Victoria last month. "The bill does not mean... that every English-speaking Canadian will have to learn French. It does mean that every Canadian will have access to public education in either official language, and will be free to use either official language when dealing with the federal government, federal courts and other public bodies in all areas of the country where the size of the minority justifies it."

To qualify as bilingual under terms of the bill, a district must have a minority constituting 10 per cent of the population. There is no such district in B.C., Mr. Anderson noted. There is one in Alberta, one in Saskatchewan and four in Manitoba.

Mr. Anderson's mail has shown a deep strain of misunderstanding, culpable or otherwise, on the intent and ramifications of the languages bill. There has also been plenty of good, old-fashioned bigotry.

One constituent wrote that the bill discriminates against "all our ethnic groups who now must learn a third language."

"Let the people of Quebec vote on separating from Canada, the sooner, the better," he went on.

Another suggested that Canada be split in two at the Manitoba border, with the West becoming a separate nation within the Commonwealth. "This idea comes up quite frequently," says Mr. Anderson.

Still another letter contained the following passage: "What in hell is the matter with your damned Liberal French-Canadian government? I use the hyphenated phrase with deliberate intent."

HOME GARDEN

Retain Native Growth

By HILDA BEASTALL

When we are lucky enough to own a piece of property with native growth already on it, let us not remove it all first and then wonder what to plant. This always reminds me of the day, many years ago, we were called in for consultation on what to plant on a newly acquired property.

Hilda

Looking it over, with arbutus trees and Douglas firs still standing in groups, we suggested the introduction of Oregon-grape, salal and a green groundcover for one area; and three groupings of broad-leaved cultivated evergreen shrubs at the edge of the tree shade facing the back of the house.

The new owner listened only long enough to hear the names and then exploded: "I've just paid five hundred dollars to have stuff of that kind cleared out by a bulldozer! They're all weeds!"

Weeds are defined as plants which grow where they are not wanted, but if gardeners used that term "native plants" for those found in our wild lands perhaps more tolerance would develop for them.

Tolerance is only a step away from admiration, for as we tolerate we learn of desirable attributes previously overlooked.

A wise plan for a new home owner with native growth on his property is to live with it a year before making any drastic alteration involving felling or bulldozing.

During the year, dead branches can be removed from undergrowth, and pathways established to reach points of interest.

In doing this, a love for the native growth will surely be awakened and a way will be found to blend a few cultivated plants into the picture without upsetting or destroying the ecology of the area.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Kathie Powell, age 12, of Rochester, New York, for her question:

Is it true that gelatin is made from horses' hooves?

The gelatin we buy to make desserts must be pure enough to satisfy our government food inspectors. So whatever goes into it is sure to be harmless to the human body. It so happens that gelatin is not only harmless but very beneficial. It is a body-building protein for healthy people and sometimes sick people can eat gelatin when they cannot digest any other kind of food at all.

Andy is so very fond of shivery, shimmery gelatin that he eats it whenever he gets a chance. Naturally he knows that our health inspectors would not permit the sale of foods containing risky ingredients. So he goes ahead, enjoying his gelatin without caring a whoop about what is used to make it. Suppose one of the ingredients were horses' hooves. Well, hooves are no more than oversized fingernails and toenails. And chances are you know quite a number of people who chew up their fingernails. This may annoy us, but it does not make us shudder with horror. Naturally we do not recommend fingernail chewing, but nails and hooves are made from very nutritious protein material.

Right now, you may be willing to accept the idea that horses' hooves, properly cleaned and prepared, are indeed used to make gelatin. However, as a rule there are no hooves of any sort among the ingredients. Most gelatin recipes call for skin and bones and these ingredients are taken from our highly hygienic meat and dairy animals. Some recipes process animals' bones and others process the skin. In both cases, the ingredients must first be cleansed of every particle of fatty material.

Has Many Uses

Bones are soaked in a liquid bath of hydrochloric acid which dissolves away unwanted minerals. They are then rinsed and rinsed in clean water. The brew is heated and kept at a temperature of about 92 degrees Fahrenheit for several hours. Then the liquid is drained away and the bones are recooked at a higher temperature in more distilled water. At last, they are ready to break down and jellyify and special ingredients are added to make perfectly sure that the gelatin is absolutely pure.

When the main gelatin ingredient is animal skin, a lime solution is used to dissolve away every trace of greasy fat. Hydrochloric acid and heating processes are used to break down the leathery tissues. The brew is a mixture of pure water and nutritious animal protein. It is boiled and concentrated and allowed to cool into slabs of gelatin. This bouncy stuff is chopped up and dried and usually ground into small crystals. The gelatins created for desserts are mixed with sugar, juices and assorted fruity flavors. All we need now is the right amount of warm and cool water to dissolve the crystals—plus a portion of patience to wait for the delicious, nutritious gelatin to set in a shivery, shimmery shape.

It's too bad, but all of the world's gelatin is not packaged to enhance the table, please the palate and build the body. A lot of the wonderful stuff is used to make capsules for pills. Firm vitamin capsules are made from rather hard gelatin and soft capsules for cod liver oil have a trace of added glycerine. A lot of gelatin also is used to cover photographic film. And, since germs like nourishing food, lab workers use gelatin broth to feed their bacteria.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Timmy Greene, age 12, of Gastonia, North Carolina, for his question:

How does a mole do his underground digging?

Mr. Mole is one of the world's greatest diggers and his digging is done in the darkness just below the surface of the ground. Nature has given him a pair of excellent shovels for the job. They are two wide front paws fitted with long, sturdy claws. His legs are too short to notice and the huge paws seem to be fixed directly onto his body. As he digs his underground tunnels, the mole moves his front paws somewhat like a swimmer doing the breast stroke. As they move to and fro they shovel a hole in the dirt ahead. The mole keeps pushing his streamlined body forward through the growing tunnel.

Many observers have clocked the speed of his digging. At a leisurely pace he may dig two to four feet of tunnel in an hour. But when in a hurry, he has been known to tunnel more than 10 feet in an hour. His tunnels zig-zag and fork from side to side. The purpose in digging there is to find grubs, bugs and other morsels of food to be found in the ground.

Low Fat Diet Develops Hearty Life

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

In Modern Medicine, there was a report of a big international conference on diet and coronary heart disease at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. There, Drs. Seymour Dayton and L. Pearson said that in Los Angeles they had taken two groups of veterans and had divided each of them first into two groups—one aged 54 to 65 years, and the other, 66 to 88 years. Half of the men in each group stayed on a polyunsaturated fat diet for some four years, while the other half of the men ate a usual diet. With the experimental diet, the men avoided eating fats, and especially fats of animal origin. They used some oils of vegetable origin.

In the younger group, there were 31 deaths due to a blood clot's having plugged up a coronary artery in the heart, among the men who ate an ordinary diet; while in the men on the low fat diet there were only 13 such heart deaths.

In the older group there was almost no difference in the fates of the dieters and the non-dieters. The figures were 39 and 35 deaths.

As usual in such studies, a number of men got tired of skimmed milk and soy-bean oil, and quit dieting. As was expected, the amount of cholesterol in the blood usually fell in the cases of the men on the low-fat diet.

Similar work was done by Dr. Osmo Turpeinen of Helsinki. On the low fat diet, the average figure for blood cholesterol fell from 268 to 217, and the two corresponding numbers of men dying from coronary heart disease were 30, on ordinary diet, and 17 on the special diet.

Dr. Paul Leren of Oslo had a similar experience. Of the men on the diet, 34 had heart attacks, and 16 died, compared with 64 heart attacks and 23 deaths in the untreated group.

These studies show that it is a good idea for men, and especially men with a tendency to get a heart attack (because of heredity, high blood pressure, diabetes or overweight) to avoid overweight, and to avoid foods rich in animal fats. Vegetable fats are not so bad.

According to Prof. Doris H. Milman, a study of 11 mildly schizophrenic students showed that marijuana is often used by youngsters with unstable personalities, and in them it can precipitate a mental upset or it can contribute to the production of a chronic mental disease, and thereby can disrupt the youngster's life. It can also lead him to the use of other stronger drugs, that can ruin him.

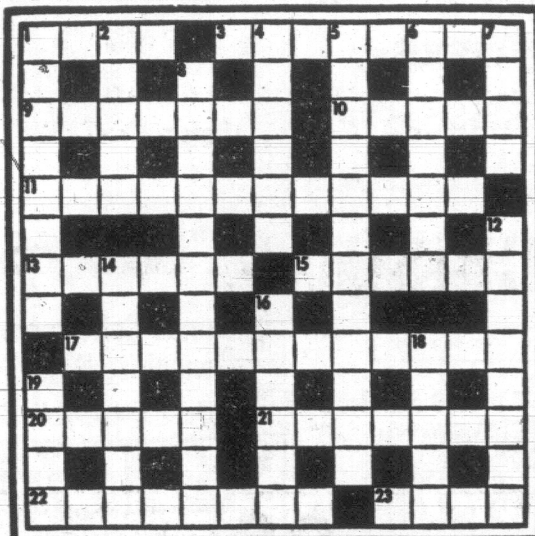

As Dr. Milman said in her paper, all of the young people studied had quick tempers, with little tolerance for frustration, or postponement of what they wanted. They demanded instant gratification and relief, and "found the drugs offered both of these." Professor Milman felt that the use of drugs by these mildly psychotic youngsters allowed them to put off the facing of problems which should have been faced and solved at an early stage of their lives. Because they did not face their problems, they went on into adulthood as immature, poorly developed personalities, dependent on drugs.

Quite a few people wonder what scleroderma is, and what can be done for it. Sclero means hardening, and derma means skin; so it means a thickening and toughening of the skin. Recent studies have indicated that the disease is not very curable. Some people with the skin changes have a thickening also of the lining of the gut, and this sometimes causes discomfort in swallowing.

SOLUTION MONDAY

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Preferred Him Drunk To Brown Sober!

By BOB BOWMAN

There was so much drinking in Canada about the time of Confederation that strong temperance movements were organized. One of the leading heavy drinkers was Sir John A. Macdonald, and he was not ashamed of it.

In fact on one occasion he staggered to a platform to make a political speech and told the audience that he knew they preferred him drunk to George Brown sober!

Even before Confederation parliament passed a Temperance Act in 1861 enabling municipalities to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor.

Another somewhat similar act was passed in 1878, and a royal commission to investigate the liquor problem was appointed in 1892.

Only one of its four members favored outright prohibition, and he submitted a minority report.

A general plebiscite was held in 1898 and 278,000 people voted for prohibition while 264,000 were opposed. All the provinces were strongly in favor of prohibition except Quebec which voted against it 122,000 to 28,000.

However Prime Minister Laurier said the margin for prohibition was too narrow and refused to enact legislation.

There was prohibition during the last two years of the First World War except in Quebec. Most of the provinces retained prohibition for a time after the war.

Ontario voted for prohibition as late as April 18, 1921, but gradually the system changed to government control except in Prince Edward Island which was dry until 1948.

The only way the islanders could get liquor legally was by obtaining prescriptions from doctors. They were kept very busy!

Other events on April 18: 1749—Royal order increased card money in circulation to one million livres.

1838—Special council appointed to govern Lower Canada.

1883—Citizens of Yorkton organized to defend community during Northwest Rebellion.

1960—President de Gaulle of France began four day state visit to Ottawa; Canada and U.S.S.R. signed three-year trade agreement.

Fun with Figures

By JAH HUNTER

Charlie had some cash in his hand. "I've got no candies," he declared. "Let's have some, and I'll pay."

"Okay," agreed Paul. "I bought three ounces of jelly beans."

"And I've got four ounces of the same sort, so we'll divide them all evenly between the three of us," said Andy. "You give me 21 cents, and I'll share it fairly with Paul."

How much to Paul?

(Answer tomorrow) Friday's answer: Mike had 410256.

Coyne Spins New Sound Out

By PETER LAWSON
Cashing in on the musical experience gained while playing with the Marquis are two members of a local group, Coyne.

The three-man Coyne is making an impression at dances and concerts throughout the lower island.

Ex-Marquis band men Norm Piercy, bass guitar, and Len Knoke, lead guitar, joined forces with drummer Brady Gustafson at the end of January to bring a unique sound to the Victoria rock scene.

Saturday evening the police-sponsored youth group COSY will hold a "splash and dance" happening at the Crystal Gardens, beginning at 8.

Music is supplied by the Peace Jeep, recent winners of the battle of the bands, also sponsored by COSY.

Gulliver's Travels, probably the best soft-rock group in the city, is back in at the Forge tonight and Saturday.

This could be a smart move by the Ore Room to recover some of the popularity it lost when other clubs in the city began to hire young groups.

Each musician in Travels has played in local bands for the last five years.

Reggie's on Government, the new club catering to all age brackets, was well received last weekend by the people attending.

The Weight, house band for the club, indicated they would be playing a type of folk-rock music, but it came as no surprise to hear them perform the standard sounds of the hit parade. Their material consists of such songs as Light My Fire, by the Doors and some Beatle renditions not too well copied.

The club itself is comfortably warm and pleasant, a welcome change from the days when the Starlight Ballroom occupied the same premises.

There is lots of room to dance and food is prepared in their own kitchen, another addition that has improved the surroundings.

Concert Slated For Local Pupils

A concert for elementary school students will be presented by Victoria Symphony Orchestra on Saturday at Victoria Senior Secondary School.

Conducting will be Laszlo Gati, resident musical director.

Bighorn Sheep Go to College For Survival

By DOUG MARTIN
VANCOUVER (CP)

Twelve skittish bighorn sheep from eastern British Columbia mountain country have been turned into college dropouts in a fight to preserve the endangered species in the province.

The 12 Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep are penned at the University of British Columbia, where studies are being conducted to find why deaths have slashed the once-numerous bands to a handful.

There are only about 2,000 of the Rocky Mountain bighorns left in B.C.

No single reason has ever been found for the periodic epidemics which decimate B.C. bands, but not those in Alberta. The big, wild sheep are found only in the two westernmost provinces in Canada.

"We're going to get a lot out of those sheep," says Prof. P. J. Bandy of UBC's agriculture faculty and the man in charge of the wildlife research unit of the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

"You can't go out and shoot an animal every time you want to examine it."

STUDENTS HELP OUT

Prof. Bandy has a number of students working under him on research programs at UBC. They include studies of rangeland, diet, parasites, the effect of competition for grazing land and other subjects.

Robert Hudson, 23, a post-graduate student from Hamilton, Man., is conducting a study of parasitic diseases, and believes the dozen wild sheep will prove invaluable.

The 12 sheep, all ewes, were captured from the Wigwam Valley in the southern Rocky Mountain Trench. Seven were flown to UBC by helicopter after their capture last winter.

They remained skittish and unapproachable even with the arrival of spring.

They are penned in with a 10-foot board fence with bars slanting back in over the corral to prevent them from leaping to the top and gaining a foothold.

"Once they get their feet on something, they can climb over anything," says Mr. Hudson.

The dozen sheep came from a band decimated by disease and lack of feed after a severe winter in 1963.

MAY BE LINK

Mr. Hudson is investigating a possible link between lungworm, a parasitic organism picked up from grasslands while the sheep are eating, and the die-offs.

Using the Bull River Band of the East Kootenay, a band that was cut 90 per cent from 100 to 10 animals—between 1963 and 1969, Mr. Hudson says:

"Autopsies showed the animals died of a number of diseases, most of them respiratory... What we're trying to establish is that the lungworm weakened the sheep by causing lung-tissue inflammation."

This being the case, wildlife officials could then learn when the sheep are most susceptible to the lungworm, and begin to combat the epidemics.

The studies are expected to take between a year and 18 months.

After that, the sheep will be returned to their valley.

Scientists To Study Rats' Hearts

Two Simon Fraser University scientists have been awarded grants totalling $16,340 to take a long, hard look at rats.

Dr. R. J. Tomanek will receive $5,650 to investigate the effects of aging and exercise on components of the heart cells of rats.

Dr. Eric Bannister will receive $10,690 to probe sub-cellular and enzyme changes in rats subjected to strenuous exercise.

The grants were awarded by the B.C. Heart Foundation, and are for one year, starting July 1.

Both projects will use an electron microscope and exercise wheel to observe reactions inside cells.

In Dr. Tomanek's study a group of rats will be exercised on a wheel over a 12-week period. Samples of heart tissue will later be examined under the electron microscope.

"We will look at the inside of cells because this is where the biochemical phenomena really occur. This will set the stage for beginning to understand the intra-cellular mechanisms."

In Dr. Bannister's project rats will run vigorously on a wheel. A blood analysis made immediately is expected to reveal changes in the enzyme content of the animal's blood.

Field Trip Slated

The younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a field trip to Bear Hill, off Oldfield Road.

CHERRY BLOSSOMS can be found in Vancouver, too, but Victoria doesn't have Robert Taferner, 20, who interrupts her tennis match at Kitsilano Beach to enjoy the spring scene. (CP Wirephoto)

Scouts to Hold Slide Show

A double feature of color slides will be given by St. Mary's 12th Garry Oak Scouts and Cubs next Friday at 8 p.m. in the Newcombe Auditorium, Provincial Museum.

Jack Scrivener will be commentator for slides depicting a trip across Russia on the Trans-Siberian railroad.

Dave Birch will talk on slides showing Scouts climbing the Black Tusk in Garibaldi Park.

Entrance fee may be paid at the door.

Two Mainland Schools Top Math Contest

Two Vancouver high schools placed first and second in the national Junior Mathematics Competition involving 791 schools.

Results of the annual competition were released today by the University of Waterloo which has sponsored the affair for seven years.

Top three schools were Sir Winston Churchill Secondary and St. George's School of Vancouver, and University of Toronto Schools.

J. Lloyd Crowe Secondary of Trail finished eighth and Oak Bay Senior Secondary was a respectable 23rd.

Brian Calvert, a Grade 11 student from Wheable Secondary, London, had the top individual score, with 101.25 out of a possible 120.

Open to Grade 9, 10 and 11 students, the contest this year had 17,250 entries, 10,200 of them from Ontario.

LARGEST CONTEST

The competition started in 1962 on a regional basis, but has since become the largest in Canada.

Entries came from schools in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C. There were also entries from two foreign countries: Lahr Senior School, Germany, and Hadassim School, Israel.

The mammoth chore of marking, grading and tabulating team and individual results was performed by members of the University of Waterloo computing centre staff, using its IBM 360-75, the largest and fastest computer in Canada.

Prizes include a one-week seminar on the Waterloo campus for the top 40 students. The contest is designed to test students' ability to handle ideas in mathematics, and is not a test of classroom knowledge.

World's End To Be Topic Of Minister

"The odds are three times greater that you will end your life by your own hand than be slain by someone else," says Rev. Arthur Wilmut, minister of the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

"I intend to investigate the growing incidence of suicide in our western world," Wilmut said today, "and it shows signs of increasing."

On Sunday April 27, he will speak on the subject The End of the World.

"Like the prophets of doom, I predict the end of the world. It will come soon—but without doom."

'Dresden Doll' Fined

WINNIPEG (CP)—A magistrate who said he had been presented with only the "bare facts" of the case, today assessed a fine of $500 and costs against 29-year-old Myrna Margaret Greene, who bumps and grinds as the Dresden Doll.

Local Grad Crop Sours Employers

A survey shows local employers don't think much of many of the high school graduates looking for jobs with their firms.

The study, just completed by the adult education division of the Greater Victoria school board, says young people frequently kill their chances for employment by their "first appearance."

The 50 businessmen surveyed listed personality, enthusiasm and grooming as the qualities they looked for first.

They ranked experience last. They also said these are the qualities missing most often.

"Too many looking for jobs just don't seem to have a target," Jack Kempster said today. He is the division's coordinator of special projects and interviewed all the employers.

TOO MUCH HAIR

The study shows some employers objected to extremes in appearance—long hair, beards and moustaches among boys—too much eye makeup among girls.

But if the applicant returned, sometimes several times, it carried weight with those doing the hiring by showing determination and enthusiasm.

The adult education division undertakes such surveys every three or four years so it can plan its own program to meet trends.

Some of the quotes from those surveyed:

"There seems to be a general attitude of 'How much can I get for doing as little as possible to earn it?' Lead questions by applicants are too often—'What's the pay? What about overtime? How much leave will pay?'"

"Very rarely does the job applicant enquire as to what the job entails or what he or she can contribute to the organization."

"There appears to be a definite lack of objectives, motivation, enthusiasm, self-confidence, personality, smart appearance and good grooming, self-expression, penmanship and spelling."

"There appears to be extremes in hair styles and in dress for both sexes."

"Good grooming, neatness and cleanliness are essential."

"Apparel does not necessarily have to be new, just clean and pressed."

"There appears to be a lack of ability to express themselves clearly, convincingly and confidently. Handwriting on applications is very poor and spelling even worse."

"Parents should be contributing more to the preparation of their children for a place in the working world—closer liaison between parents and teachers is vitally important; teachers cannot be expected to handle the situation alone."

Homesick Victorian Stole Yacht

AUCKLAND (AP) — An almost destitute young Canadian stole a yacht in New Zealand and tried to sail home in it. But after three weeks at sea he beached the damaged craft and abandoned it.

Today in Gisborne magistrates' court, the young man, Larry Gerald Boudreau, 18, an unemployed wine steward from Victoria, pleaded guilty to stealing the 24-foot yacht and to unlawfully taking a dinghy at Waitangi last March 28. He was convicted and remanded in custody until next Tuesday for sentencing.

The police prosecutor said Boudreau arrived from Australia in October. In March, almost destitute, he slept for four nights on Waitangi beach, unable to find work or accommodation. Deciding to sail home, he rowed out to the yacht in a dinghy which has not since been found. He sailed north for 10 days without a compass and with little food. High winds damaged the sails and he turned south. He sighted land last Wednesday at Waihau Bay, North Island, where he beached and abandoned the craft.

Hospital Labor Row Goes Before Hearing

By DON VIPOND

An involved and emotion-charged labor dispute involving about 800 employees at Royal Jubilee Hospital will be aired at a Labor Relations Board hearing Wednesday.

Internal labor war has been under way at the hospital for months.

The question the hearing will consider is who is going to represent employees in bargaining, the existing hospital employees' association or the Hospital Employees' Union Local 180.

This feud has led to association president Walter Panter's recent resignation to side with the union.

RAIDING CHARGED

A barrage of charges between the two labor bodies include contentions by the association that the union is raiding and claims by the union that an all-powerful association executive is "holding—the employees captive."

The employees' association's troubles are compounded at the moment by another issue.

The association says retroactive pay raises were promised 40 women, ward housekeepers, by binding arbitration. And now the hospital's board of directors is refusing to pay.

The association wants a Supreme Court ruling to settle this issue. A message from Dr. A. C. Pickles, the hospital's executive director, this morning said he and the board declined comment while the issue was pending.

MERGER VOTED

On the jurisdiction issue, Ray McCready of Vancouver, business manager for the union, said he was invited to a special association meeting in February where 72 per cent of 165 members voted for merger with the Hospital Employees' Union.

The association's business agent, Charles Burr, said today talk of merger is nonsense.

"It's not affiliation. It's a real takeover."

Burr said it is the fourth time the union has tried it. Attempts by the HEU to gain certification at Royal Jubilee failed in 1949, 1952 and 1956-7.

Juvenile Home Said 'Rotten'

The nature of a society is reflected in the treatment it reserves for its criminals, minority groups, outcasts... and its juvenile delinquents.

Thursday 125 people attended a public meeting at Goodwill Enterprises' Bay Street building to discuss alternatives to Brannan Lake (for boys) and Willingdon (for girls) for dealing with juvenile delinquents.

The meeting was sponsored by the Foster Parents' Association of the Family and Children's Service and the Big Brothers.

It told more about the people who attended than about methods for handling the much-maligned delinquent.

Many people and things can be blamed for causing juvenile delinquency, they said: parents (rich and poor), schools, authority (too much and lack of it), lack of facilities, cars and money.

GREATER PENALTY

A few held the view that what prevents crime and delinquency is the prospect of punishment. They wanted to see an increase rather than a relaxation of penalties.

That's like the argument that abolition of capital punishment would encourage people to kill other people.

Saanich juvenile officer Ed Anderson described Brannan Lake as a "home away from home" for its inmates aged 10 to 18.

"I think personally it's agood spot if the boys want to get down and study and get out of there."

Charles Barber of the Victoria Youth Council said there is a direct correlation between lack of facilities for youngsters in Victoria and the rate of juvenile delinquency.

But under questioning he admitted the statistics he had quoted were not necessarily accurate, and said they should only be used as a warning on which to take action.

There were no Brannan Lake "graduates" at the meeting, but Walter Donald, Anglican priest and radio announcer, played a taped interview with three former inmates.

They described the staff as "untrained" and the supervisors as "guys who are out to get you and give you a rough time," but added there were a few good supervisors and staff members. Cottage 10 is the security cell-block reserved for runaways. The four-by-eight cells consist of a concrete floor and a mattress. During daytime the mattress is taken out.

"After a week you're about ready to bat your head against the wall," a former inmate said.

"It's not rotten in the sense that they're mean—it's rotten in the sense that you're confined, and that's what kills a guy."

POINT SYSTEM

One of the boys said anyone under 16 caught smoking was penalized by a point system: points were deducted for possession of matches, papers and tobacco.

The boys agreed the Victoria Juvenile Detention Home is "more rotten" than the training school at Nanaimo.

"It's like being in solitary confinement all the time—one month in there is like three months at Brannan Lake."

Boys and girls are sent to the home prior to a court hearing in Victoria.

Don Bingham, director of programs for the department of health and welfare and former director of the Family and Children's Service, said the service needed alternatives in order to fulfill its purpose.

"It won't work unless other resources are provided, and this meeting is a show of support for the other resources."

George Warnock, director of the John Howard Society, came up with the only alternative to get a round of applause at the 2½-hour meeting.

He suggested establishment of a residential school in each school district to handle seat-warmers and trouble-makers. Problem students would be sent to the school on the recommendation of a committee of teachers and school board officials, and handled by special "treatment and diagnostic teams."

Propane Engine Search Continues

The health department is still searching for an economical method of converting diesel bus and truck engines to propane fuel to cut air pollution, Health Minister Ralph Lofmark said Thursday.

He said the hunt which began last fall now is concentrated in correspondence with the San Diego public utilities commission which currently is experimenting with a special carburetor allowing use of propane instead of diesel fuel in the same engine.

Kempster said employers were almost unanimous in stating that the search was continuing.

Five Mines Ready For Rescue Tests

NANAIMO (CP)—The annual competitions in mine rescue and first aid work, sponsored by the Vancouver Island Mines Safety Association, will be held here Saturday, May 24.

Teams from five mining firms have entered the rescue section. First aid competition is open to any organization.

Mortgage Plan Sparks Interest

Premier Bennett said Thursday 1,800 written inquiries have flooded in so far this week as a result of advertisement of the government's new second mortgage offers.

He told reporters that a total of 5,000 persons have asked about the program since he announced in the budget speech that a $5,000 second mortgage alternative would be available as part of the home acquisition grant.

He said the current interest rate to be charged for the second mortgages will be 8 per cent with a 10 per cent discount on the interest if instalments are paid on time during a year.

Bennett said the second mortgages are available only for new homes which were not occupied before Feb. 7.

He added that if the breadwinner dies, the government's second mortgage will be totally forgiven with no charge levied for this insurance nor any fees applied for processing or registering the mortgages.

Classics Profs Meeting at Uvic

Using classical Greek democracy as a model for modern society could be a serious misconception.

That's an argument Dr. Malcolm McGregor, head of the classics department, will pursue when he speaks at a conference of Canadian and American classics professors at the University of Victoria, Saturday.

Fifty academics from the northwestern U.S.A. and Canada will meet for the 58th annual conference of the Classical Association of the Pacific States, northern section.

Registration is 9:30 a.m. in the McLaurin Building, Room 109, and Dr. McGregor's speech is at 3:15 p.m., Room 109.

St. John Brigade Plans Inspection

Annual inspection of the Victoria St. John Ambulance Brigade will be held at Central Junior High School at 8 p.m. tonight.

Officer in charge of the parade will be provincial staff officer, H. Croil.

The inspection will be followed by a display of nursing techniques by nursing cadets and first-aid treatment by ambulance cadets and adult members of the brigade.

Grits Decide Tonight On Recount

PORT ALBERNI — A meeting of Liberals here tonight is expected to request a judicial recount of the April 7 byelection ballots.

The official count Thursday added a single vote to the unofficial results announced after the byelection and it went to Tom Barnett of the NDP who was formally declared winner with the new total of 12,612 votes.

The official count listed 12,357 votes for Liberal Richard Durante who took the seat in the 1966 election from Barnett only to have a court decision order the byelection.

"I would venture to guess we will be asking for a recount," Durante told reporters in Ottawa before catching a plane which was to return him here for tonight's meeting.

Liberal constituency president Moe Bauche also hinted a recount will be sought.

'WORTHWHILE'

"The rule-of-thumb is that when the difference is roughly equal to one vote per poll, then it is worthwhile having a judicial recount," Bauche said. Barnett's official lead of 255 votes over Durante came from 227 polls.

Barnett said the close tally of the unofficial and official counts indicated the byelection was properly conducted by the electoral staff.

He said the victory margin was sufficient that a judicial recount would not change the result.

The official count confirms the earlier announcement that Progressive Conservative candidate Blair McLean drew only 2,350 votes.

DUNCAN — The first indication of school board belt-tightening in the wake of the budget bylaw came Thursday night at a meeting of the Duncan-North Cowichan Joint Recreation Trustee Ernie Goddard told the commission:

"If money is involved in your requests for use of school property from now on, forget it. We are sympathetic toward your requests but with $366,000 to trim off the school budget we can't afford to offer any financial support."

Chairman Gary Griffiths had read a letter from school board secretary Jeff Dyson stating that school board policy regarding use of school facilities by outside organizations is being revised.

Griffiths asked if that meant, for example, that Cowichan Timbren football club would be denied use of school shower facilities.

SUBSIDIES

Goddard said light, fuel, overtime janitor service and supervisory personnel provided would be considered subsidies and could not be given without payment.

Baden Millard, a member of North Cowichan Recreation

Commission, said Chemalunus and Ladysmith school boards offer their facilities to non-profit organizations for maintenance costs and non-charitable organizations pay from $75 to 100.

COMMITTEE NAMED

"We are not stopping the use of the gym and other facilities," Goddard said, "but if we have to pay anything in any way we will say no."

He suggested the board would be open to requests as long as they did not involve money.

Ronald Price, Duncan recreation commission representative on the joint commission, moved that a committee of two from each commission contact interested groups in the community "as to their required use of school board facilities."

The motion was carried unanimously.

The vote March 29 defeated the school board's attempt to spend $366,000 more on operating costs than a government-set ceiling.

400 TO COMPETE IN TRACK MEET

DUNCAN — About 400 athletes from B.C., Alberta, Washington and Oregon will compete at the Lieutenant-Governor's Invitational Track Meet here May 18.

Ton Hamilton of CEEVAC—Cowichan Valley Athletic Club—told Duncan-North Cowichan Joint Recreation commission Thursday night a Washington club already had contacted him about participating in the annual event.

"They want to bring 26 athletes along," Hamilton said.

About 300 competed last year.

He appeared before the commission to seek funds for promotion of this and other CEEVAC events which would cost "about $3,500 this year."

He said North Cowichan and the south end of the municipality had given grants but "nothing has come from the city of Duncan so far although we have been told it is under review."

Chairman Griffiths told Hamilton the joint commission was not in a position to grant money but said the plea would be taken back to the separate commissions.

Flights Tripled To Gulf Islands

GANGES — Air passenger service between the Gulf Islands and Vancouver and Victoria increased Tuesday to three flights daily, Victoria Flying Services Ltd. said Thursday.

Agent John Sturdy said flights from Vancouver will depart from the government float wharf here at 8:30 a.m., noon and 4:30 p.m. Return flights will leave the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver at 9:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Flights for Victoria will leave here at 10 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. Flights from Victoria will leave the Inner Harbor at 8 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Reservations are required and stops will be made at Galiano, Mayne, Pender and Saturna Islands upon request.

Early resumption of summer schedule is the result of increasing traffic between the Gulf Islands, Victoria and the mainland, president Gordon Jeune said.

Victoria Flying Services operates a six-passenger DeHavilland Beaver and Cessna aircraft on the Gulf Islands run. It is expected the service will be further expanded this summer, Jeune said.

SOCCKER PARADE IN DUNCAN

DUNCAN — Five bands, 200 Shriners and about 400 young soccer players will parade through the streets starting at 11:30 a.m. Saturday to launch the Vancouver Island junior soccer championships.

The parade, organized by Shriners E. M. Waidie, will arrive at Macadam Park for official kickoff by Mayor Jim Quilley at 1:30 p.m.

15 Plowmen Ready For Saturday Tilt

DUNCAN — The annual Cowichan Valley plowing championships will start at 9:30 a.m. Saturday on land beside the Trans-Canada Highway at Koksilah, two miles south of Duncan.

A total of about 15 contestants have entered, nine of them in the B.C. championship class. The two top finishers in that event will be eligible for competition at the national championships this fall.

Entered are Chilliwack representatives, Charlie Thomson, Charles Hayton, Bill Dyble, Jack Andrews and Bill Higginson. The Mar brothers—Jim, Doug and Whaley—of Saanich also will compete along with Joe Saville of Salmon Arm.

Judges are Archie Stevenson of Duncan, Henry Thomson of Chilliwack and B.C. field crop commissioner Norman Putnam.

BONNER TO QUIT, SAYS CONSTITUENCY

Former attorney-general Robert Bonner, now M.L.A. for Cariboo, will not run in the next provincial election, the president of his Social Credit constituency said. (See earlier story on Page 2.)

"It's definite he won't be running again," said Jim Bann in a telephone interview from Quesnel. "We will be looking for a new man to stand in Mr. Bonner's place. I talked to him last night."

Meanwhile, contacted in Quesnel, Mr. Bonner said he plans to make a statement about his political future Sunday.

Trudeau 'Neutral' As Strike Nears

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said today the threatened strike-grounding of Air Canada will be solved, if it is to be solved at all, by direct negotiations between the company and the union involved.

He said in the Commons that the government is taking "a completely neutral position" in the dispute which may result in a strike at 11:59 p.m. EST Sunday.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Mr. Trudeau made a probable strike almost inevitable by saying Thursday that Air Canada had made an extremely generous wage offer which was bigger than the government itself would have proposed.

David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, said Mr. Trudeau had come down on the side of management.

Mr. Stanfield asked twice whether Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey is returning from vacation to take a hand in the negotiations.

NO DIRECT REPLY

Mr. Trudeau declined to reply directly but said the acting minister, Manpower Minister Allan MacEachen, is assisting in any way he can.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Trudeau should get some proper advice before making another intervention as he had Thursday.

Mr. Trudeau asked whether Mr. Stanfield was advising that Air Canada should accept the demand of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers for a 20-per-cent wage increase.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Mackasey should be on the scene.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker asked whether Mr. Trudeau would use the prestige of his office to bring the disputing parties together, in view of the prime minister's statement that the government is strictly neutral. Mr. Trudeau said he hasn't considered doing so.

VICTORIANS CAN STILL FLY

Air travel to and from Vancouver Island will not be entirely cut off if Air Canada machinists go on strike Sunday. (See story on Page 2.)

Mr. Diefenbaker asked also whether the government would introduce legislation preventing strikes that might stifle the economy.

STILL UNDER STUDY

Mr. Trudeau said the government is still studying the recommendations made by an independent inquiry into labor legislation.

Wallace Nesbitt, Conservative transport spokesman, asked whether Canadian Pacific Airlines' franchise will be extended to the Atlantic provinces, now served by Air Canada.

James Richardson, minister without portfolio responsible for aviation, said the Canadian transport commission would approve any reasonable request by other airlines to provide service to the Atlantic region.

Mr. Nesbitt said he was asking about a permanent franchise for CP Air to operate to the Atlantic provinces.

Mr. Richardson said there has been no application to provide such service. The commission had no plans for changes in authorized routes. Mr. Trudeau said in reply to Russell MacEwan (PC—Central Nova) that a cabinet committee has drawn up contingency plans for movement of mail and certain persons.

Manitoba Digs In As Red River Rises

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last-minute flood-fighting preparations were being taken in Manitoba's Red River valley today as high water continued to roll northward from North Dakota.

At the border town of Emerson, 65 miles south of Winnipeg, machinery moved earth fill into position to plug gaps in the dike surrounding the town when necessary.

A flood control spokesman said permanent dikes on the river towns are high enough to contain predicted levels and it does not appear necessary to raise them.

Outside the town dikes, 400-odd farm homes have taken advantage of a federal-provincial protection program introduced after the last big flood year of 1966. Aid was given to raise homes and buildings beyond the high-water mark and build farmstead dikes.

Sandbags and plastic sheeting have been made available to more than 250 other homes on the flood plain.

The river continued to rise today but remained below flood stage.

At Lumsden, Sask., 17 miles north of Regina, the flood waters of the Qu'Appelle River are expected to remain at a level about two feet above dikes for another four to five days. The waters are contained by sandbags put up by township and other volunteers earlier this week. The Saskatchewan government has asked 90 Armed Forces personnel to remain on patrol in the town until Sunday for maintenance purposes.

CUT A CHANNEL

Emergency Measures Organization crews cut a channel across a highway in the Lumsden Valley to allow faster drainage of the Qu'Appelle into Mountain Lake.

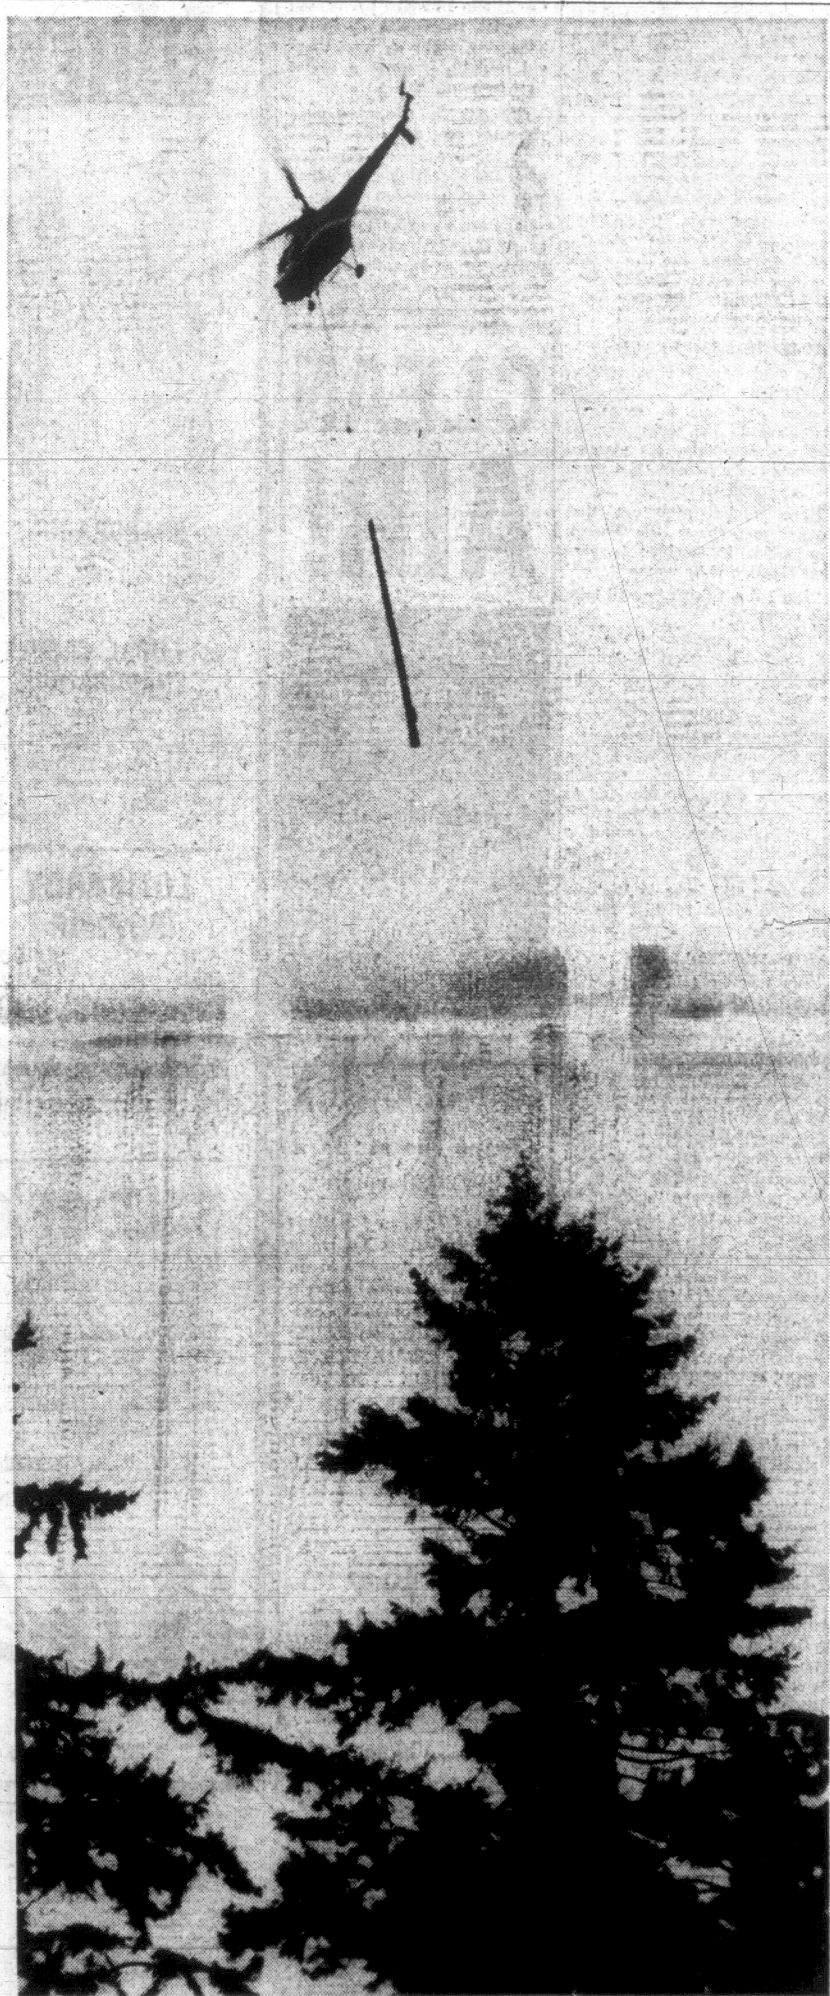

About 100 cottages and 1,000 bathhouses on small lakes 40 miles downstream from Lumsden are threatened as the river is expected to raise the lake levels two to four feet above normal.

As Manitoba awaits the on-rushing crest of the Red River, a more immediate problem is posed by the swollen Assiniboine and Souris Rivers.

Flood control in Winnipeg said 50 Armed Forces personnel were at work through the night under artificial light at St. Francois Xavier, on the Assiniboine 15 miles west of Winnipeg.

The river was within a foot of breaching dikes at a highway bridge in the area and officials said a further rise of six inches would make the position critical.

Nixon Orders Resumption Of N. Korea Spy Flights

UP, UP AND AWAY goes this power pole, en route to the steep rocky side of Mount McDonald at Goldstream Park, 12 miles northwest of Victoria. Pilot Roy Webster of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and his Sikorsky-55 helicopter solved the problem of placing poles in holes blasted for them in precipitous slope. Chopper will also be used to string a 2,200-foot power line up the mountain to the Langford Ranger Station, 1,450 feet above sea level. (Bill Halkett Photo)

'Planes Will Be Protected'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today ordered resumption of United States spy plane flights near North Korea and said: "They will be protected."

Nixon reported the flights had been discontinued after the shooting down of one of the unarmed planes Tuesday by North Korean jet aircraft.

Then he said: "I have today ordered that these flights be resumed. They will be protected. That is not a threat. It is merely a statement of fact."

Nixon told his fifth news conference as president that the North Korean attack on the EC-121 had been "unprovoked, deliberate, without warning."

He reported the plane was flying away from North Korea at the time of attack because its mission had been "aborted," that is it had been ordered cancelled.

FIGHTERS SPOTTED

Presumably the cancellation was ordered because U.S. radar had picked up the take-off of two MIG fighter planes from a North Korean field.

The U.S. plane, Nixon said, had never gone closer than 40 miles to the Korean coast and at the time of the attack was 90 miles from North Korea over the international sea.

The reason for the reconnaissance flights, Nixon said, is threats and hostile actions against South Korea by North Korea.

He noted the U.S. has 56,000 troops in South Korea and said threats against South Korea are also threats against these troops. It is the responsibility of commanders to do everything necessary to protect them, he added.

RULES OUT RETALIATION

Nixon pictured the reconnaissance flights as part of the defence strategy for those forces. He said "We have had a policy of reconnaissance flights for 20 years" and reported there had been 190 such flights this year in the North Korean area.

The shooting down of the plane Tuesday apparently cost 31 American lives. Nixon apparently ruled out earlier this week any military retaliation—such as an air strike against the North Korean base from which the fighter planes took off.

He decided instead on a protest directly to North Korea.

Nixon said the plane incident is different from the Pueblo affair because there was some question for a time where the U.S. spy ship was at the time of its capture by North Korean gunboats.

"There was no uncertainty whatever where this plane was," he said. "There is no question of what they claim is their air space."

Returning to his pledge to provide future flights with protection, Nixon said: "When planes of the United States or ships of the U.S. are in international air space, they are not fair game, they will not be fair game in the future. That was the basis for this interim decision."

NOT WITHDRAWING

On Southeast Asia, Nixon said he is "somewhat optimistic, although we still have some hard ground to cover," to bring peace to the area.

He also said he is not considering a unilateral withdrawal of United States forces from Vietnam.

TROOPS PROTECT CZECH CENTRES

PRAGUE (AP)—Police reinforcements and soldiers guarded strategic points in Czechoslovakia today, but there were no reports of disturbances protesting the replacement of Alexander Dubcek as Communist party chief.

The 190-member central committee at a crisis meeting Thursday named Gustav Husak, the dour pro-Moscow head of the Slovak party, to replace Dubcek.

Trucksloads of police reinforcements and army armored cars were outside university buildings, at the National Assembly, near student dormitories and at factories.

No plans for demonstrations were reported so far. Moscow is reported to have warned that Soviet occupation troops would step in if local forces could not keep order.

CTK, the Czechoslovak news agency, said the central committee had finished its plenary session and further details of the leadership reshuffle would be announced later.

Soviet Army Chief Now No. 2 in Power

By ANATOLE SHUB

MOSCOW (WP) — With the deposition of Alexander Dubcek in Czechoslovakia, the marshals of the Soviet army have manifested the greatest political power they have ever enjoyed in Communist Russia.

Marshal Andrei Grechko, the 66-year-old defence minister, brought about in Prague what the Soviet Communist Party politburo secretariat and a host of party and government envoys high and low were unable to do at conferences in Dresden, Moscow, Cerna, Bratislava, Prague, Kiev and elsewhere over the past year.

Grechko's ultimatum to Czechoslovak President Lud-

vik Svoboda last week forced the rehabilitation of discredited Czechoslovak Soviet agents, the ouster of Dubcek and Liberal hero Josef Smrkovsky, and the admission that last spring's Czechoslovak renaissance was a "counter-revolution." Grechko thus completed the political job which a half-million Warsaw Pact soldiers commanded by his deputy, Marshal Ivan Yakubovskiy, began with the invasion last Aug. 20.

UNACCOMPANIED

Grechko came to Czechoslovakia unaccompanied by any leader or official of the Soviet Communist Party. He moved on to East Berlin to treat as an equal with the Communist Party chiefs of occupied East Germany and Poland, Walter Ulbricht and Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Even before this week's decisive "second round" in Prague, one of the highest leaders of the Yugoslav Communist Party in Belgrade was telling visitors: "Do not overestimate the influence of such politicians as Andrei Kirilenko, Pyotr Shelest or even Alexei Kosygin. The political summit in the Soviet Union today is composed of Brezhnev, Grechko and Yakubovskiy—and nobody else matters."

The Soviet army has been on almost continuous manoeuvres in eastern Europe for nearly a year, while the Soviet military budget has increased some 25 per cent since 1967. Russia, according to London's Institute of Strategic Studies, has pulled even with the U.S. in the missile race, and new Soviet rocket tests have been announced for the Pacific next month.

FEWER MEETINGS

Meanwhile, the party central committee—theoretically the country's leading force—has been meeting less and less frequently, with virtually none of its debates ever made public. Since the invasion of Czechoslovakia, the central committee has met only once—briefly, late last October, ostensibly to hear a report on agriculture. (Preceding the meeting, there had been widespread rumors of resignations in the politburo.)

Another central committee meeting may take place next week, to ratify the "Prague triumph," but there has been no confirmation so far.

Garden, House Chemicals Show Cancer Link

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A number of the world's most widely used agricultural, garden, household and industrial chemicals are about to be named as causes of cancer in mice when given in big doses.

This will happen this spring as the result of a $2.6-million federal study of common pesticides, herbicides and animal food additives. Dr. Kenneth M. Endicott, director of the U.S. National Cancer Institute, said in a recent interview.

This will not mean these chemicals do or do not cause cancer in man. But the announcement is certain to cause major concern, and new pressure for more control of some of the thousands of chemicals that pervade man's environment.

The study will point a strong finger of suspicion at several chemicals and trigger far more intense investigation of their effects.

Also, Endicott said, "I'm

Some folks seem less interested in urban renewal than argument renewal.

Th' Czechs hev a choice o' bein' under wraps or ropes.

North Korea has won twice—at Russian roulette.

satisfied there will be enough anxiety" to cause "some new regulatory activity."

"We probably are going to have to revise our national standards for toxicity testing to include more long-term tests," he predicted. "We are even confronted by the possibility that we may have to hold some compounds back for years while we test."

Under suspicion—and still undergoing evaluation after delay of this report for more than a month—are 51 out of 130 common pesticides, herbicides and other chemicals tested in more than 20,000 mice.

Endicott would not name

the 51. "Some will be cleared, so it would be 'unfair' to identify them now, he maintained.

Also, he emphasized, the doses at which many mice developed tumors are "enormously higher than any to which any human beings are ever likely to be exposed."

This is not quite as reassuring as it sounds. It is sometimes necessary to use massive doses to get any response at all in mice, even to compounds which may harm humans in small, regular doses.

NICHOLSON TO BECOME ST. JOHN KNIGHT

Lieutenant-Governor John R. Nicholson will be invested Saturday as a Knight of Grace, Most Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

The ceremony will take place in Government House at 3 p.m. After being invested by the order's chancellor, N. Ian MacLaren, Ottawa, the lieutenant-governor will invest some 21 men and women who will be admitted to or promoted in the order.

Prior to the ceremonies, the annual meeting of the Council of St. John for B.C. will be held at St. John House, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Chairman will be provincial president W. S. Pipes, Vancouver.

On completion of the ceremonies, a reception will be held at Government House for officials and guests.

Moment of Panic On a Parking Lot

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Everything happens to me! At least it seems that way. Especially if I'm working on a schedule that necessitates split-second timing. Like the other day when I had an appointment at 5:15 p.m., and decided to include a stop at a supermarket on the way.

Over the years I've become a firm believer in locking my car whenever it is parked. So much so that it's now second nature when I step out to snip the lock on the drive side, go around to the opposite door, reach in for my purse and my keys and then lock the door on that side.

I went through the drill when I stopped at the supermarket the other day.

Only to find after I'd snipped everything up on the drive side and hurried around to the opposite door that for some unaccountable reason which I've still not had time to fathom, it was locked tight. Have you ever stood beside a car with the door tightly locked and your purse and keys inside?

It's a panicky moment: Your skin prickles. Your hair stands on end. And you have to fight off the urge to scream — and scream again.

If you hurdle that first moment without opening your mouth you then begin to wonder what to do. WHAT TO DO!!!!!!

Actually the only thing I could do was phone my sister, who has access to my apartment in an emergency, and ask her to go over there, pick up my extra car keys and bring them to me.

I reasoned there had to be a telephone in a supermarket. So hurried in to look for one.

First door I tried was locked. When I rattled the knob a young man glared at me through the glass and waved at me to go away.

It was then I noticed he was counting the day's take. So you can guess I moved off quickly before he decided to put his foot on a burglar alarm.

Around the next corner I came to a glass enclosure where a young lady did loan me her telephone. I got through to my sister and went back to the parking lot to wait.

With thought of my appointment in mind, I had another look at my car. And suddenly I realized that one of the no-draft windows didn't seem to be locked.

However, when I tried to move it from the outside it stuck and refused to budge.

I shook and rattled and banged and pushed. I broke my finger nails and I said a few potent words. Nothing happened.

A car drew up in the parking space beside me and a voice wanted to know "what on earth" I was doing.

It was Oak Bay's Alderman Frances Elford.

She joined me. Together we shook and rattled and banged and pushed. We broke more finger nails and we said a few more potent words. Nothing happened.

***

Just then a young man came across from another car and asked if he could help.

He pushed. Shoved. Grunted. And that so-and-so no-draft window slid open as if it was on greased hinges.

The young man grinned. Flipped the lock and opened the door.

And, there I was, back in my car.

By now there was barely 15 minutes left to get downtown for my appointment. But my sister was somewhere on the way with my extra keys and I hesitated to leave.

Alderman Elford solved that one by offering to wait until she arrived.

I took off in high. Arrived downtown at precisely 5:12 p.m. Found a free meter. Jumped out of my car. Snipped the door on the drive side, hurried around to the opposite side to get my purse and keys and... yes... you're right. The darned thing was still locked.

I told you everything happens to me.

P.S. To keep the record straight let me add that this time there was no emergency. That no-draft window was still open. So I was able to retrieve my purse and keys. And I kept my appointment, right on the dot.

More B.C. Jobs For Students

Student job hunters on the west coast have a better chance of getting work than those in the rest of western Canada, says a Victoria Manpower official.

Eric Fleming, placement officer at the University of Victoria manpower office, said employment on the west coast was better last year than in the east, although precise figures are not available.

By the end of April 3,800 Uvic undergrads will be looking for work if they have not already found a summer job.

High school grads will number about 1,200 at the end of June, but the picture will be complicated by an even larger number of Grade II students seeking employment.

MAY IMPACT

"The impact of local advertising won't be felt until May and June, when local firms start hiring students to serve the tourist industry," Fleming said.

Wednesday manpower minister Allan McEachen said there would be more jobs opening up this summer, but more students to compete for them.

He added weight to a recent warning by the Canadian Union of Students that half the Canadian university undergraduates would be unemployed this summer.

Earlier this month the federal department announced a stepped-up advertising campaign urging employers to make jobs for students.

Statistics on employment vary: McEachen said manpower found jobs for 13,000 students last summer; CUS said the figure was 17,000, but noted the "job" sometimes consisted of cutting grass two or three times a week.

BIG OIL RIG LAID OFF

Southeastern Commonwealth Drilling Co. has a $10,000,000 floating oil rig and may soon have no place to put it.

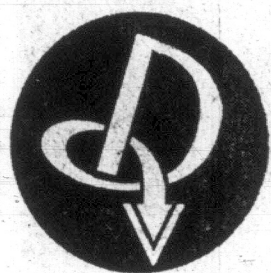

The company has been informed that its drilling contract with Shell Canada Ltd. off the B.C. coast will be terminated within six months.

WINNER DOWNTOWN VICTORIA ASSN. MARCH PRIZE

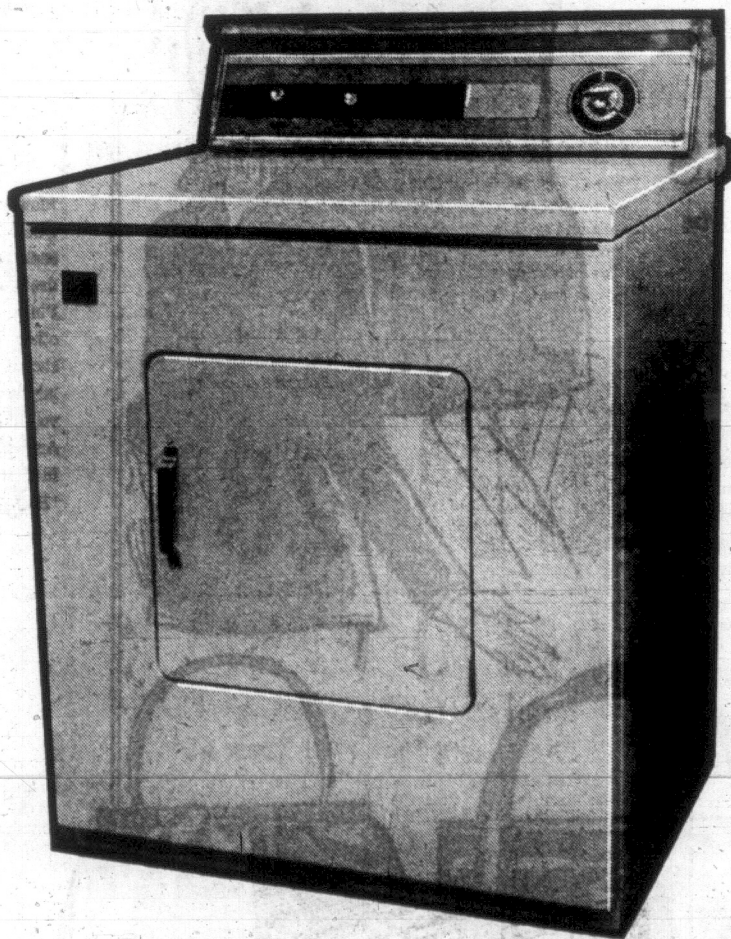

Pictured above are Mrs. Iris R. Demers and her son, Randy, who are the winners of the March Downtown Victoria Association Monthly Family Allowance Contest. Their prize is a women's Easter outfit by Miss Sun Valley, retail value $150, and a man's 2-piece suit needed by Savile Row, retail value $150. Mr. Roy-Taylor and Mr. Keith Dorman are seen congratulating the winners upon their good fortune.

Arthur Mayse

At the start of this week, Sidney publisher Gray Campbell dropped in with an advance copy of a book that only one man in Canada could have written. It is titled "Potlatch," and in this his second interpretation of West Coast Indian ways, artist-author George Clutesi shows the full brilliance of his talents.

Clutesi, a son of the Tse-Shant whaling clan, also performs a service: to White and Indian alike. He cleanses his people's noblest feast of the vulgarizations that have obscured its true significance.

He accomplishes this in a story that is certain to delight readers of all ages. It is not fragmented into separate tales, as his earlier "Son of Raven, Son of Deer" was, but moves through the 28 days of Tloowah-nah, a feast of the fourth and highest degree.

Although I don't recall that Clutesi tells us so, the potlatch he re-creates is obviously set in the earlier days of his people.

The traditional gift-givings that conclude it are generous—a fine sealing canoe for the chief who is guest of honor, and lesser presents for all. Clutesi, however, makes plain that the giving of material possessions is only one aspect of a gathering called for purposes that go deeper.

Tloowah-nah offered place and time for the clans to perform their sacred mysteries, and to give thanks to the Creator of All. Songs both old and new are sung by those with the right to offer them. With a diplomacy that white councils might envy, the visitors are reminded of the potlatch-givers' precise territorial borders.

Certain days are set aside for the relaxation of comedy, tomfoolery, and buffoonery. For a charming sequence of this sort, I refer you to a passage in which a canoe-maker coaxes his robin-wife into the great lodge.

Each play has its purpose; and part of that purpose is the education of the U-Ma, the beloved children of the clans. The capture by "wolves" of 10 of their number, and the subsequent rescue, are designed to impress on them the fact that they are protected, as well as the importance of clan solidarity and vigilance.

The smashing of a yellow cedar chamber pot by a grotesque visitant from the woods is intended to teach them that such vessels are for the old and infirm. Hardy youth should take to the timber.

Clutesi's love for his people and the near-reverence he holds for their past serve to kindle the song-studded narrative. The result is that those pages come alive, and thereby make good his intent.

"It is meant for the reader to feel," this fine Canadian tells us in his preface, "and to say I was there and indeed I saw."

Clutesi, whose name is correctly pronounced with a soft, falling-away extra "e" that few whites can manage, was an eye-witness at his people's last Tloowah-nah as a very young man. Potlatch was then illegal, made so by a federal ruling that played hob with Indian economies all up and down the coast.

Far-distant Ottawa, relying on Indian agents and missionaries for its evidence, had banned all manner of West Coast Indian festivals and rites. Ceremonial gear had also been confiscated where it could be found, and sold to museums.

Whether Clutesi over-idealizes in his reconstruction of a long-ago hosting by a Nootka-affiliated clan, I'm not prepared to say. I only know that the author is more convincing by far than the Indian's critics.

It is also significant to note that white authority which once acted with such missionary zeal has adopted a somewhat less restrictive attitude toward Indian culture in recent years.

Publication date for Potlatch, a handsome, author-illustrated book of 188 pages, will be May 1. I understand that Clutesi's next will deal with Indian whaling, and that this writer who has now hit his stride is already at work on it.

SALLY ANN READY TO SALLY FORTH

Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal officials have set their sights high for this year's campaign . . . and are confident of success.

This year's drive begins May 1 with a target set for $78,700, an increase from last year's quota of $70,000.

Publicity chairman Wilt Dick says the campaign committee, headed by general chairman Wallace J. MacKay, isn't overly anxious.

Last year netted $78,300, just $400 less than the 1968 target.

Plans are well in hand for the residential canvass which begins May 5, spearheaded by residential division chairman Mrs. A. J. Temple and co-chairmen, Mrs. W. J. Anderson and Mrs. George Farmer.

Last year the Salvation Army spent $335,870 on its various services in the Greater Victoria area.

3.9-Mill Boost Only Beginning

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich council approved a record $7.6 million municipal budget Thursday night, up $1 million on the previous year.

The municipal mill rate was set at 32.6, an increase of 3.9 mills over 1968.

Tax increases of $20 to $44 a year are indicated, on the basis of new assessments, in a sampling of five selected areas.

But this is only half the picture. The other half will be provided by school boards when they set the education mill rate later this month.

In addition, municipal sewer and garbage costs are paid separately and amount to about $40 per household this year for most residents.

Comparisons are not simple because of substantial changes in the sewer levy approved last September. There will be increases and decreases depending where a person lives. Garbage is up by $7 per year, largely because of the switch to weekly collection.

Council sat for a record four evenings in a row lasting a total of 14 hours compared with three evenings and 11½ hours last year.

The budget review trimmed $423,850 from expenditures and chopped the provisional mill rate increase from 7.49 to 3.9, a saving of 3.59 mills.

The biggest increases in expenditure this year, as anticipated, were for roads.

The road maintenance budget was jumped from an expenditure of $69,079 last year to $262,000 this year, largely to recover from the damage of the severe weather last winter.

The road construction budget was tripled—from an expenditure of $194,060 last year to $597,650 this year, designed to begin to catch up for years of neglect in this area. The figure includes a carry-over of $93,200 from 1968.

Major savings were accomplished by chopping $100,000 off drainage work, transferring $100,000 from the 1968 surplus into road capital, $80,500 from two road projects, $50,000 off park improvements and a number of smaller items.

provement to Talmie from Douglas to Oak.

Both decisions were on split votes, the first by 5-to-4. Ald. Edward Lum said that every year Saanich tried to hold its mill rate after the education mill rate was known and council cut back on roads.

"Roads is the area we have cut year after year and we have to bear the consequences because this can't go on forever," he said.

Ald. William Campbell agreed and opposed any cuts in road construction. Both men said public opinion supports increased expenditures.

Ald. Frank Waring said cutting $70,000 off Carey-Glanford was false economy. It meant only $8 extra in taxes to a person living in the affluent Ten Mile Point area.

The trimming of $80,500 from the tripled road construction program brought the strongest comments of the night.

It had been proposed to spend $170,000 to start four-laning Carey and Glanford, but this was reduced to $100,000 with the explanation that it was simply spacing out the time needed to complete the project.

Also cut was $10,500 improvement to Quadra Street.

Other aldermen said they weren't opposed to road expenditures, that the budget was triple last year's expense and that some of the work could start with the remaining $100,000.

The liveliest encounter was provided by Ald. Leslie Passmore, after the vote was taken, when he said that road cutting was at the expense of people living west of Quadra Street.

"The west is not getting the attention they should have been. I'm the only chap over there except for Bill," he said.

(This was a reference to Ald. Campbell, who with Ald. Passmore are the only members of council living west of Quadra.)

Mayor Hugh Curtis took exception to the comments, and listed such municipal projects as the arena, senior citizens centre, Gorge beautification and acquisition of Gorge Park in the west.

He said it was a "mythical line down the middle of the municipality" but Ald. Passmore replied it was "a very real one."

Throughout the exchange, and later, no one added up the road expenditures to see which side gets the most, except one reporter.

Surprisingly, perhaps, it showed $266,100 will be spent on roads west of Quadra, $210,900 east of Quadra—and $110,150 on Quadra itself.

The east has a number of fairly small expenditures—the biggest is $37,000—while the west has a smaller number of roads but two big ones—$60,000 on Interurban, North to Courtland, and $100,000 for Carey-Glanford.

Cutbacks Rule Out Esquimalt Library

The former chairman of the Greater Victoria Library Board said today it is mathematically impossible for Esquimalt to have its branch library this year.

Ald. Alan Newberry, the Saanich representative on the board, was commenting on council's decision to cut the proposed $4.42 per capita charge to $4. Victoria city finance recommended a similar reduction.

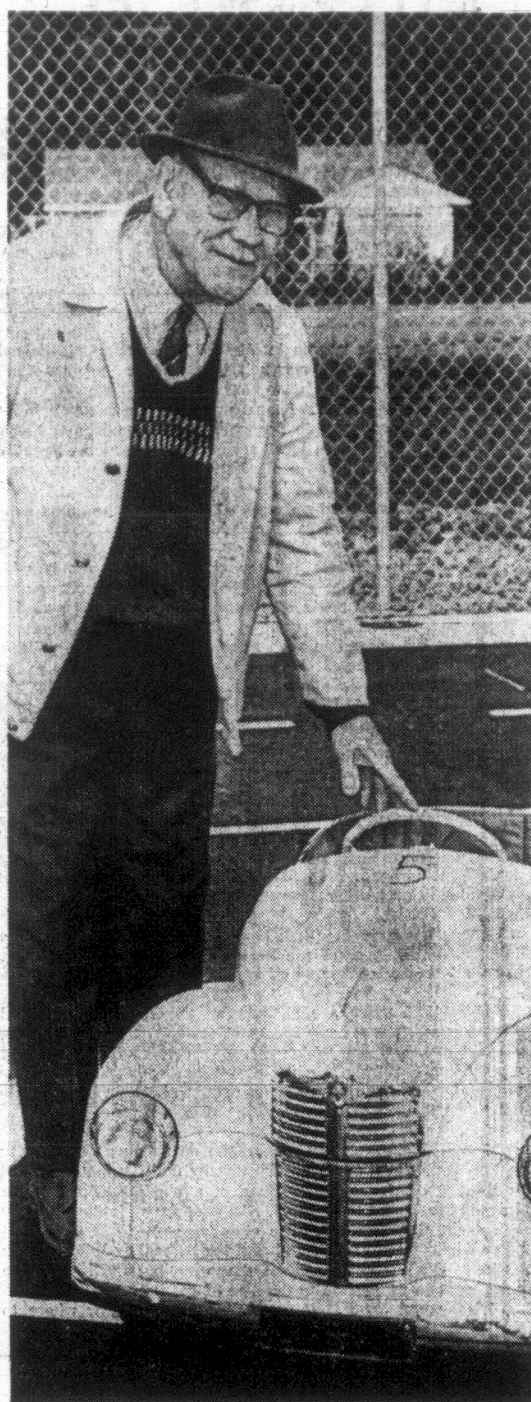

He said a 25-cent per capita increase will provide an additional $37,000 for the library from the area. But the increase in library salaries alone is $52,000 "so we can't even meet our salary bill."

He also said it might be necessary to reduce service at the Saanich branch library, only one in the area, "or close it down. It's that serious."

Asked if the cutbacks might produce layoffs, Ald. Newberry said he hoped not "but it is either that or a drastic withdrawal of service, such as the purchase of fewer books, unless some miraculous mathematics can take place."

He said if municipalities, and Saanich in particular, are not prepared to support Esquimalt for a branch library, then the Saanich branch library had to be questioned.

"If we are going to have to cut back at the main branch, surely we will have to cut back at the Saanich branch," he said.

George Gillett . . . ready for "go sign" on safety village.

Safety . . . by George! At Tom Thumb Village

By PAT DUFOUR

The dream of a retired official of the department of highways traffic division will come to fruition Saturday, April 26 when the Tom Thumb Safety Village is officially opened at Colwood's Juan de Fuca Recreational Centre.

George Gillett, 2234 Sooke, saw a story in a Toronto paper years ago which told of a similar village in Hamilton, Ont.

Gillett made up his mind that the west needed one too. He enlisted the help of the South Van Isle Lions Club, which now sponsors the village, and set to work.

The provincial government has contributed to the project by blacktopping the "roads" of the village. The Greater Victoria Safety Council is also taking an interest.

Gillett is sure "that the village will be the best of its kind on the continent."

He says it's the only one in the west. "Vancouver has some instruction available in Stanley Park but is on a small scale, and not a village."

The Lions also plan to have a Spooketees Club at the village which will guide youngsters in the safe use of bicycles.

School children will be taken on organized tours of the village, receiving instruction both through films and practical application.

Vancouver Island's newest "urban centre" gets the green light at 2 p.m. April 26.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today the steadily mounting municipal tide in favor of primary treatment for sewage is closing in on Greater Victoria's civic holdouts.

He applauded announcements this week by Sidney and Port Alberni councils that they plan to provide primary treatment this year for sewage discharged into the sea.

"I believe that most people in British Columbia are anxious to do everything necessary to eliminate health hazards caused by inadequate sewage disposal systems," Loffmark said.

"The only holdouts are some municipal officials in the Victoria area."

"WHO IS RIGHT?" "Mayor Hugh Curtis" of Saanich, for instance, continues to advocate dumping of raw sewage into the waters around Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula because he says the municipalities cannot afford to build treatment plants.

"But his MP David Anderson (L—Esquimalt-Saanich) says there is lots of money in Ottawa going begging for treatment plant subsidies."

"I wonder who is right—Mayor Curtis or Mr. Anderson?"

The health minister added he believes "we cannot afford to fail treating sewage which goes into the waters along our shores."

Urban Renewal Crews on Job 'Within Days'

Federal Team To Report On Dock Needs

Decision Closer After Inspection

By BOB MITCHELL

A federal government decision on whether to go ahead with large-scale improvements at Ogden Point docks moved closer this week following a four-day visit by a fact-finding team from the department of transport.

Bert Cavey, chief of harbors and properties, and F. K. Devos, senior marine economist, looked at harbor facilities at Ogden Point and elsewhere, and talked with individuals favoring a major updating of the Ogden Point facilities.

Cavey said Thursday they were in Victoria "just to see what improvements are to be made."

He said a decision on what federal agency would handle the task of making the improvements would be decided on the basis of a report to be submitted to Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

He did not want to comment on the future of Victoria facilities generally "until we've pulled all the facts together in a report."

DREDGING

Basic improvements would call for dredging the berths and approaches at Piers A and B to a depth of 36 feet, raising Pier South B six feet to its original height above high water, and paving the piers—total cost $300,000.

Other improvements which would run into millions of dollars include more lumber assembly and storage space, travelling dockside cranes and covered storage area.

George Farmer, Victoria Chamber of Commerce harbor spokesman, said the CNR, which manages general cargo and lumber movement at the docks, would support "any recommendation we put forth" to the DOT.

The CNR now handles minor improvement details, such as lighting and paving, he said.

CO-OPERATIVE

Victoria MP David Groos described the DOT officials' visit as "beneficial from their point of view and our point of view."

He said the CNR has shown "considerable co-operation" in making preparation for cruise ships scheduled to visit Victoria later this year.

Flood-lighting has been installed at Pier A, and the shed there has been redesigned to allow buses to drive in and pick up passengers who disembark from the ships.

School Addition To Low Bidder

The Greater Victoria school board accepted the lowest of four bids for a five-room addition to Cloverdale elementary school at a tender opening Thursday night.

The contract will go to H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. for $163,210. Subject to department of education approval. Bids ranged up to $169,423.

Referendum allocation for the project was $163,400.

Officials Relieved Roadblock Cleared

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer this morning signed the agreement clearing way for construction to start in the Rose-Blanshard area.

The minister attached his signature to the final documents two days ago after the Times revealed lack of the signature was stalling the building of 184 low rental housing units.

Contractor George Wheaton said he was happy the apparent impasse had been broken and said construction crews would be in the area within days of the official contract being signed.

It is anticipated that the official contract forms for the $2.4 million project will be in Victoria early next week.

Two Greater Victoria MPs played key roles in removing the latest roadblock confronting the scheme which has been close to three years in the planning and preparation stage.

Victoria MP David Groos, in the city for discussion on Ogden Point docks, touched off ministerial interest Monday when he telephoned Hellyer in Ottawa to ask him to give priority to an early decision.

David Anderson, Esquimalt-Saanich MP, took up the battle in Ottawa.

HADN'T SEEN THEM

Groos indicated this morning the prime cause for the delay was brought about by the failure of Ottawa officials to get the five contract proposals to the attention of Hellyer.

"The minister had not seen the proposals until yesterday" (Thursday), Groos said this morning. "That was when the CMHC who had been studying it in Ottawa brought it forward."

All documents involved in the scheme have been in Ottawa for at least three weeks.

"Central Mortgage and Housing, the Crown corporation involved in the scheme, rarely take anything but the lowest tender," Groos added. "But in this case there were other considerations such as more units, more economical maintenance, underground wiring and generally improved appearance."

THREE LEVELS

All five contractors' proposals had been approved by the city and the province, plus technical experts from all three levels of government before being sent to Ottawa.

Mayor Hugh Stephen and other city officials expressed delight this morning that the last hurdle was finally over.

"I think people should be made aware of the role played by Mr. Groos," Stephen said. "After my initial call he moved very quickly to get to the minister."

Groos was due to fly back to Ottawa earlier this week but decided to stay on in the city to handle any problems at the local level.

"I'm very glad the matter has been brought to a happy conclusion," Groos said today. "It's a good example of federal, provincial and municipal co-operation and there is no doubt in my mind that the scheme will be an attractive addition to Victoria."

Cost of the 184 units will be shared by the federal and provincial governments with Ottawa paying 75 per cent of construction costs and the province 25 per cent.

Operating costs will also be shared with Ottawa again paying 75 per cent of operating losses and the province and city sharing equally the remaining 25 per cent.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

OFF-TRACK BETTING REJECTED

Victoria city council this morning unanimously rejected two applications to open off-track betting messenger service shops in the city.

The decision did not surprise one of the applicants, William Captain, who said council's decision was "more or less what we expected."

Council had earlier unanimously rejected a similar application by letter from K. G. Parks.

Aldermen heard police chief John Gregory in camera before voting on the Captain application.

A total of four applications for off-track betting licences had been submitted to council, but one was withdrawn and another applicant did not appear at the meeting.

DISCRIMINATION

Captain said council's attitude represented "discrimination in our free enterprise society."

"How otherwise is it right for a bet to be legal on one side of the fence and illegal on the other side?"

The Parks application by letter was dismissed abruptly by a unanimous council after the assistant city clerk read a sarcastically worded letter to council.

There was no discussion. Once the letter had been read an angry Ald. Ian Stewart moved for immediate rejection.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you give me an address to write to, or furnish me with some information concerning the Canadian University Overseas program? M.E.P.

A. Details may be obtained by writing the executive secretary, Frank J. Bogdasavich, 151 Slater Street, Ottawa 4, Ont.

Q. I am told that engineers' graduation rings are made from a special historic metal. Is this true, and if so, what is the metal? G.D.L.

A. Graduate engineer's rings are made of iron. There may be some historical significance but engineers are divided as to the source. A local engineer suggests that Rudyard Kipling's tales may have been responsible. One reported that the rings are made of iron from a bridge that once collapsed in Quebec.

DRIVERS FACE CHARGES FOR MAKING WIDE TURNS

City police will soon begin a firm crackdown on offenders of "one of the most abused traffic laws in the city."

Motorists who make wide, sweeping turns from two-way streets on to a one-way street will be charged under the Motor Vehicle Act, Traffic Inspector Richard Berry said.

"It's quite obvious persons are ignorant of the law," he said. "They are not aware of the proper turning movement."

"With more one-way streets coming and people not toeing the line we are going to have to do something about it."

The Inspector said the turn, from a two-way to a one-way street, must be made the same as a right turn—as near as practicable to the left hand curb.

"For any passenger vehicle this is possible."

The Motor Vehicle Act states that the driver should "turn the vehicle to the left so as to leave the intersection as nearly as practicable in the left hand lane available to traffic moving in the direction of travel of the vehicle upon the highway being entered."

Insp. Berry said proper turns would relieve congestion, speed up traffic and help avoid accidents.

Improper turns could mean three demerit points!

'If Money's Involved, Forget It'—Trustee

Grits Decide Tonight On Recount

PORT ALBERNI — A meeting of Liberals here tonight is expected to request a judicial recount of the April 7 byelection ballots.

The official count Thursday added a single vote to the unofficial results announced after the byelection and it went to Tom Barnett of the NDP who was formally declared winner with the new total of 12,612 votes.

The official count listed 12,357 votes for Liberal Richard Durante who took the seat in the 1966 election from Barnett only to have a court decision order the byelection.

"I would venture to guess we will be asking for a recount," Durante told reporters in Ottawa before catching a plane which was to return him here for tonight's meeting.

Liberal constituency president Moe Bauche also hinted a recount will be sought.

'WORTHWHILE'

"The rule-of-thumb is that when the difference is roughly equal to one vote per poll, then it is worthwhile having a judicial recount," Bauche said. Barnett's official lead of 255 votes over Durante came from 227 polls.

Barnett said the close tally of the unofficial and official counts indicated the byelection was properly conducted by the electoral staff.

He said the victory margin was sufficient that a judicial recount would not change the result.

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN — The first indication of school board belt-tightening in the wake of the budget bylaw defeat came Thursday night at a meeting of the Duncan-North Cowichan Joint Recreation Commission.

Trustee Ernie Goddard told the commission:

"If money is involved in your requests for use of school property from now on, forget it. We are sympathetic toward your requests but with $366,000 to trim off the school budget we can't afford to offer any financial support."

Chairman Gary Griffiths had read a letter from school board secretary Jeff Dyson stating that school board policy regarding use of school facilities by outside organizations is being revised.

Griffiths asked if that meant, for example, that Cowichan Timbren football club would be denied use of school shower facilities.

SUBSIDIES

Goddard said light, fuel, overtime janitor service and supervisory personnel provided would be considered subsidies and could not be given without payment.

Baden Millard, a member of North Cowichan Recreation

Commission, said Chemainus and Ladysmith school boards offer their facilities to non-profit organizations for maintenance costs and non-charitable organizations pay from $75 to 100.

COMMITTEE NAMED

"We are not stopping the use of the gym and other facilities," Goddard said, "but if we have to pay anything in any way we will say no."

He suggested the board would be open to requests as long as they did not involve money.

Ronald Price, Duncan recreation commission representative on the joint commission, moved that a committee of two from each commission contact interested groups in the community "as to their required use of school board facilities."

The motion was carried unanimously.

The vote March 29 defeated the school board's attempt to spend $366,000 more on operating costs than a government-set ceiling.

400 TO COMPETE IN TRACK MEET

DUNCAN — About 400 athletes from B.C., Alberta, Washington and Oregon will compete at the Lieutenant-Governor's Invitational Track Meet here May 18.

Ton Hamilton of CEEVAC-Cowichan Valley Athletic Club told Duncan-North Cowichan Joint Recreation commission Thursday night a Washington club already had contacted him about participating in the annual event.

"They want to bring 26 athletes along," Hamilton said. About 300 competed last year.

He appeared before the commission to seek funds for promotion of this and other CEEVAC events which would cost "about $3,500 this year."

He said North Cowichan and the south end of the municipality had given grants but "nothing has come from the city of Duncan so far although we have been told it is under review."

Chairman Griffiths told Hamilton the joint commission was not in a position to grant money but said the plea would be taken back to the separate commissions.

Flights Tripled To Gulf Islands

GANGES — Air passenger service between the Gulf Islands and Vancouver and Victoria increased Tuesday from one to three flights daily, Victoria Flying Services Ltd. said Thursday.

Agent John Sturdy said flights from Vancouver will depart from the government float wharf here at 8:30 a.m., noon and 4:30 p.m. Return flights will leave the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver at 9:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Flights for Victoria will leave here at 10 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. Flights from Victoria will leave the Inner Harbor at 8 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.
